President Names Dulles Acting Head Of U. N. Unit

Selection Stresses Continuation of Bipartisan Policy In Foreign Affairs

President Truman yesterday named John Foster Dulles, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's chief adviser on foreign affairs, as acting chairman of the American delegation to the United Nations.

The appointment was made necessary by Secretary Marshall's return to Washington this weekend, and by Ambassador Warren R. Austin's return within a few days for a medical checkup.

To succed Austin as chief American delegate to the U. N. Assembly, the President named Benjamin V. Cohen, former Counselor of the State Department and close associate of former Secretary James F. Byrnes.

Rusk Named Alternate

Dean Rusk, chief of the Office of United Nations Affairs in the State Department, was named as Cohen's alternate.

Dulles was "thoroughly surprised," the Associated Press reported from Paris. He told a reporter that a news bulletin from the President's vacation retreat at Key West, Fla., was his first word of the appointment. He expressed gratification at the President's action.

Here in Washington the choice of Dulles was regarded as a dramatic proof that the President does not think of partisanship where the United Nations is concerned.

If he had wanted to subordinate Dulles, a leading Republican, he could have named Dr. Philip K. Jessup, or Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, or Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp, all of whom are members of the delegation at Paris.

Marshall's Hand Seen

However, Dulles has enormous experience in United Nations affairs, and has represented the United States at past Assemblies and at the last Council of Foreign Ministers. All reports from Paris indicate that he and Secretary Marshall have cooperated well.

Dulles made no secret of his Republican sympathies during the campaign, or of his role as Gov. Dewey's adviser. At one point he flew to Albany for consultations with his party leader. He issued a statement from Paris when Dewey was defeated, regretting the result but pledging his continued cooperation.

Judging from the announcement from Key West, the President bears no grudge against him and feels Dulles' conduct was entirely proper. There is no doubt here that the decision was made on Marshall's recommendation.

Good Material for "Voice"

The "Voice of America" is expected to make much of the news in its broadcasts to foreign countries, as a clear sign that the bipartisan foreign policy is still intact.

Dulles' duties as acting chairman will be much more than representing the United States at leading U. N. meetings and perhaps taking a hand in whatever negotiations may take place over the Berlin issue. He will also take Marshall's place at morning meetings of the American delegation, where the day's problems are discussed in advance and positions laid out for the various meetings of the day.

The choice of Cohen as leading Assembly delegate puts into the forefront a trusted adviser who until now has usually stayed in the background. Cohen went to Potsdam with Secretary Byrnes in 1945, and for the next two years played a leading part behind the scenes as a State Department policy-maker.

He left the department after the Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers last year, but agreed to serve on the delegation to this year's Assembly. The Assembly plans to adjourn December 11 after 2½ months in its temporary home in Paris.

But Shake-up Due at Capitol

McGrath Expects Few Changes In Key Administration Posts

By Robert C. Albright

Post Reporter

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), fresh back from a Key West vacation with the President, yesterday predicted the only big shake-up in Washington will come on Capitol Hill.

McGrath told an overflow press conference he will stay on as Democratic chairman at least for the time being and expects 99 per cent of the Administration's personnel to retain their old posts.

A reporter asked if that went for the President's Cabinet, too. McGrath said newsmen would have to ask Mr. Truman about his Cabinet.

Committee Experts Face Oustin

He was more specific about what will happen at the Capitol to committee experts brought in by the Republican Congress.

"We'll try to find some Democratic experts," he said, "I think we can find some."

In the dual role of Rhode Island Senator and Democratic chairman, McGrath discussed everything from New Deal legislation to increased Democratic committee ratios at a press conference really called for another.

More than 70 reporters had assembled in the office of Leslie Biffle, Senate Democratic official and liaison with the President, also just back from Key West, when word got around he would "meet the press."

Self-effacing Biffle, who almost never holds press conferences, countered by appearing late on the scene with McGrath in tow. He greeted reporters cheerily, then stepped back. From then on it was up to McGrath.

Peppered With Questions

Peppered with questions, the Democratic chairman:

1. Predicted Mr. Truman won't send any tailor-made take-it-or-leave-it bills to Congress—that he will simply recommend the specific points in his program and let congressional committees write their own legislation.

2. Declared himself personally in favor of some form of excess profits tax, but declined to spell out a tax program "until we see what the budget picture is."

3. Asserted Democrats are committed to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act and substitute a new law "closer to the Wagner Act." He singled out for criticism the requirement that labor leaders sign anti-Communist affidavits and said

Excess Profits Tax Opposed By George

Vienna, Ga., Nov. 18 (AP)—Senator Walter F. George, who will return to the chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee, said today an excess profits tax would lead "to destruction of business." President Truman has backed restoration of such a tax.

He said in an interview that he saw "no sense" in reenactment of such a tax and if it becomes necessary to increase revenue, he will favor a hiking of the normal corporation rate.

There is little hope for a future income tax cut during 1949, due to increased aid to western Europe and proposed additional funds for national defense.

The Georgia Democratic Senator said the 1948 income tax reduction measure had not hit government revenue as hard as expected because increased business made up for the reduction in rates and increases in exemptions.

Treasury figures based on collections from July 1 through October 29 show a net loss of only 114 million dollars, which Senator George termed "surprisingly small."

Doughton Declines To Commit Himself

Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), slated to head the House Ways and Means Committee which will have the first say on the President's tax program, yesterday declined to commit himself on any changes in the tax law.

Reached by long distance at Boone, N. C., the veteran tax legislator, who fought the President's call for an excess profits tax in the Eightieth Congress, said he will come to Washington without any preconceived notions on taxes.

"I want to know first what we are going to be asked to appropriate and next what the revenue outlook is under present law," said

Byrd Urges State Program Of Higher Study for Negroes

President H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland revealed yesterday he had asked the Maryland State Legislature to enact a Negro higher education program, which may open up the State university's graduate school at College Park to Negroes.

The university head made public a 50-page report he said he had sent to the State Legislative Council.

The report recommended:

1. That Negroes, for their undergraduate study, continue to attend Morgan State College at Baltimore and Princess Anne State College at Princess Anne, Md.

2. That Morgan State College be placed under the control of the Board of Regents of the university.

3. That adequate funds be provided for development of both of these colleges, their work to be coordinated so as to avoid duplication, with new departments established if needed.

4. Creation of advisory boards, composed entirely of Negroes, for these two colleges.

5. Provide for an adequate number of scholarships to be used under direction of the Board of Regents for qualified Negro students to study medicine, dentistry, engineering and pharmacy outside the Polio cases in Greater Washington reached 250 yesterday with the report of a 9-year-old boy patient from McLean, Va., at Children's Hospital.

Battle Won At Suchow, Nanking Says

Reds Reported Surrendering or Retreating After Loss of 130,000

Nanking, Nov. 18 (AP).—A complete government victory was proclaimed today in the fateful battle of Suchow.

Masses of Chinese Communists were reported surrendering or retreating after suffering 130,000 casualties.

Maj. Gen. Chang Liu-shih, military spokesman, asserted that Communist troops north, east and south of the big base had been broken into small bands and were grounding arms. He listed government casualties at 40,000 men.

(The Communist radio, for the first time since the battle broke, made no new claims of victory. As heard by the Associated Press at San Francisco, it was content with rehashing events of three days ago.)

Reds May Strike Again

More sober opinion among Chinese officials is that the government won the first round in 10 days of bloody combat. The Communists were believed withdrawing to regroup for a probable second assault.

Even the pessimists conceded that Nanking is safe for at least one more month. Optimists declared Chiang Kai-shek's fortunes are rebounding after hitting the toboggan when it looked as if the day was lost.

A new possible trouble spot cropped up as both sides prepared for the next phase of the struggle north of Nanking.

A Shanghai report said a Communist truck column had been spotted moving toward Tsingtao, the United States naval anchorage which is being reinforced by 1250 United States Marines from Guam. Tsingtao is 225 miles northeast of Suchow.

Officials in Nanking suggested the trucks might be headed for the Posham mines west of Tsingtao to pick up coal.

General Chang told his news conference that "the battle for Suchow can be considered as concluded," but added: "What the Communists will do now is a subject of conjecture."

Chang said all the railway from Suchow to Nanking now was in government hands. Trains are moving only as far as Kuchen, 65 miles south of Suchow, because the Communists blew up the tracks. At the height of the battle, Liu's Red veterans held 3 miles of the line.

It seemed clear that a grave tactical error by the usually adroit Gen. Chen Yi, who commands the Tailless Navy Jet . . .

Looking more like a deadly projectile than an airship, the Navy's newest jet fighter streaks through Patuxent skies

By The Associated Press

A tailless jet fighter, capable of more than 600 miles an hour, and designed for use from carriers, has completed its basic test flights, it was reported last night.

The Navy called the new craft "in reality a flying wing."

The plane has two vertical stabilizers and rudders at the trailing edge of the wing, with control also effected through combined ailerons and elevators. These are known as "ailevators."

Powered with two Westinghouse turbo jets, the Chance-Vought plane, technically known as the XF7U-1, has a high rate of climb, the Navy said.

To offset the forces created by high speed flight, the plane's controls are equipped with hydraulic boosters.

The pilot's cockpit is pressurized for high altitude flight and the pilot's seat can be ejected when it is necessary to bail out.

The plane is scheduled to go into production at the Dallas, Tex., plant of Chance-Vought.

Crusade In Europe

Ike Credits Mountbatten With Suggesting Invasion 'Harbors'

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

XIII

I left the United States on January 13 to undertake the organization of the mightiest fighting force that the two Western Allies could muster. On the evening of the second day I was back in London. Now began again the task of preparing for an invasion, but by comparison with the similar job of a year and a half earlier, order had replaced disorder and certainty and confidence had replaced fear and doubt.

Immediate subordinates included Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, Lieut. Gen. Carl Spaatz, and Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, all tested battle leaders and all experienced in the problems of developing real allied unity in a large operation. Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory was assigned to the Allied forces, with the title of Air Commander in Chief.

Our team acquired an important member with the arrival of George Patton, whose transfer from the Mediterranean I had asked. Sometimes he would spend the evening with me at my quarters, and though this usually involved the certainty of sitting up till the wee hours of the morning, conversation with him was always so stimulating that it was difficult to remember that the work day began before dawn when operating under double daylight saving time.

I made a particular point of directing George to avoid press conferences and public statements. He had a genius for explosive statements that rarely failed to startle his hearers. He had so long practiced the habit of attempting with fantastic pronouncements to astound his friends and associates that it had become second nature with him, regardless of circumstances.

A speech he made to an American division shortly after his arrival in the United Kingdom caused more than a ripple of astonishment and press comment, and I well knew that it would be far easier to keep him for a significant role in the war if he could shut off his public utterances. He promised faithfully to do so.

Indiscreet Opinions Voiced by Patton

Later in the spring, however, another storm broke around his head. Before a British gathering he expressed indiscreet and inappropriate opinions about the need for Great Britain and America to combine to run the world after the victory should be won.

Because the memory of the Sicilian slapping incident was still fresh in the public mind the statement, widely publicized, attracted far more attention than it would otherwise have done. His public critics were confirmed in their conviction that he was totally unsuited to command an army.

For the first time I began seriously to doubt my ability to hang onto my old friend, in whose fighting capacity I had implicit faith and confidence. However, my concern was not so much for his particular statements, which were the object of criticism at home, as it was for his broken promise with the resultant impli-

Stratemeyer To Direct New Air Defense

Tactical Command Combat Units Merged With Present Force

The Air Force yesterday revamped its combat units within the United States to provide a more effective aerial defense of the homeland.

It created a new "Continental Air Command" which will have over-all direction of the present air defense and tactical air commands.

Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, now head of the Air Defense Command and wartime commander of American Air Forces in China, was named commander of the new force. Headquarters of CAC will be at Mitchel Air Force Base, New York.

Ryder to Direct Guard

Meanwhile, Army Secretary Royall selected Maj. Gen. Charles W. Ryder, veteran commander of the Ninth Corps in Japan, to be assistant to the Army chief of staff in charge of the National Guard and Reserve programs.

President Truman recently ordered that the reserve components of the armed forces be put under "active, capable, high ranking officers" to stir some of the reserve programs out of their doldrums. Ryder, 56, is a West Pointer and a veteran of both World Wars.

Officials said the Air Force reorganization has three main objectives:

Move for Austrian Treaty Soon May Be Made by West

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.

Post Reporter

New efforts are being made quietly in Washington, London and Paris to break the long deadlock with Russia over the Austrian treaty, it was learned yesterday.

In all three capitals officials are re-examining the record of past failures to get a settlement, and have decided that the time may soon be ripe to try again.

So far Secretary Marshall and Foreign Secretary Bevin have not declared themselves on the subject, although last summer they felt no negotiations on Austria were possible as long as the blockade of Berlin continued.

Allied officials in Vienna, however, have strongly supported the Austrian government's contention that Austria is a distinct and separate problem, and that it is a mistake to deal with Austria as a sort of footnote to diplomatic discussions about Germany.

Austria May Ask Talks

Judging from recent statements by Foreign Minister Karl Gruber, it is possible that Austria itself may ask the four powers to resume the negotiations that were suspended in May. These talks would be carried on by deputies of the Foreign Ministers, as they were before.

Gruber discussed the treaty problem in Paris last month with Secretary Marshall, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France and British officials who were there for the U. N. sessions. Perhaps because of Gruber's appeals, there has been a perceptible change of attitude toward the Austrian problem in recent weeks in the Western allied capitals.

The main Austrian question that baffles Western diplomats is whether Russia is ready to abandon her support of Yugoslav Marshal Tito's demand to annex a part of Austrian Carinthia. The treaty discussions collapsed last May over this point; the Russians wouldn't budge, and the Westerners thought further argument was useless.

Note to Soviet Unanswered

Gruber is reported to have said that the treaty could be settled in two weeks if Russia gave way on the Carinthian claim. Last spring, after the treaty talks failed, the Austrian government sent a note to Russia asking for "clarification" of the Soviet attitude on Carinthia, but the note was never answered.

Now, however, Tito has broken with the Cominform, and a bitter

Walkout Grips Dunkirk Port; Troops Arrive

Paris, Nov. 18 (UP).—The government tonight sent a strong force of soldiers and security guards into war-famed Dunkirk where 2000 dock workers struck five days ahead of schedule and barricaded themselves behind the locked iron gates of the port.

A nation-wide longshoremen's strike scheduled to paralyze all French ports Monday was already effective at Dunkirk.

Strikers seized the port entrances and locked the iron gates put up by the Germans during the occupation. They reinforced them with barricades of wire and packing cases, and pushed up freight cars from behind.

Channel ferry boats en route from England, were diverted to Calais. Troops patrolled Dunkirk's war-scarred streets but so far had made no effort to dislodge the strikers.

Other longshoremen in Marseille, La Rochelle and La Pallice began to leave the job. Paralysis of French ports seemed inevitable by Monday although Communist leaders of the dock workers' union asked Premier Henri Queuille to receive them for final talks.

With United States longshoremen also on strike and French merchant seamen threatening to join the walkout here, Marshall Plan shipments to France would be at a standstill.

Minister of Industry Robert La Coste told the National Assembly today that the coal strike, now 45 days old, had cost the nation $52,800,000 in lost production.

Marshall Given Degree

London, Nov. 18 (UP).—London University tonight awarded honorary degrees to United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall and British wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Marshall, who is in Paris, was awarded the honor in absentia.

Jews Reject Negev Order

Britain Asks U. N. to Reduce Size of Israel by Three-Fifths

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP).—Britain asked the United Nations today to repartition Palestine and reduce the size of Israel by three-fifths.

Israel's opposition to any such proposal was demonstrated sharply several hours later in Tel Aviv when the Israeli government rejected flatly a directive of the Security Council to withdraw its troops from the Negev.

At the same time, the Israeli government said it welcomed the action of the Security Council two days ago in calling for an armistice as a bridge for a Palestine peace. Israel urged the U. N. to name the time and place the Israelis could meet representatives of the Arab states "to begin negotiations for a permanent peace."

Only tonight in Paris the acting Palestine mediator, Dr. Ralph Bunche, asked Israel and the seven Arab states to begin negotiations for an armistice to replace the present Holy Land truce.

Bunche said he believed the "interests of all parties to this dispute would be best served by direct negotiations undertaken by the parties themselves."

The British submitted to the General Assembly's Political Committee a draft resolution calling for solution of the Holy Land problem on the basis of the plan of the late mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte.

Under that plan the Negev, or southern desert, would be given to the Arabs. In turn, the Jews would receive western Galilee. The original U. N. partition plan gave the Negev to the Jews and western Galilee to the Arabs.

An American informant said the United States delegation will make a preliminary statement on Palestine at the next meeting of the Political Committee. The committee had been scheduled to meet Friday, but the meeting was postponed tonight. No reason was given and no date was set for the next meeting.

Dock Strike Hits South As Peace Hopes Fade

U. S. Conciliators Meet With Both Sides Today in First Joint Talks

By John G. Norris

Post Reporter

Effects of the crippling Atlantic Coast dock strike spread throughout the East and as far south as Texas yesterday as hopes for a quick settlement faded.

Federal conciliators meet today with union and employer representatives in New York—first get-together since the nine-day-old strike started.

This was an encouraging sign, but William N. Margolis, chief conciliator, told reporters in New York that he expected negotiations to continue "into next week."

Walkout Continuation Seen

Continuation of the walkout of AFL dock workers was predicted by Margolis, assistant chief of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, after a meeting with Joseph P. Ryan, union president.

Government officials here, however, regarded the scheduling of a conference between the longshoremen and stevedoring firms today as a good omen.

Before an early settlement can be expected, Ryan must regain full control of his union and it is not believed that a joint meeting would have been set had not his status improved. The strike started with wildcat walkouts by locals rejecting a settlement accepted by the veteran dock workers' chief.

Many States Affected

With all ports from Maine to Virginia closed by the stoppage, effects of the strike have spread to other industries throughout many States.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has laid off 100 marine terminal employes in Baltimore. Furloughing of a similar number by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is expected there today. The carriers reported 3200 carloads of export freight piled up in their terminals.

Officials of the American Sugar Refining Co. announced that their Baltimore and Brooklyn plants will be closed next week if the strike continues. This will mean laying off 950 persons in Baltimore, it was said.

Supplies of raw sugar at other refineries in the East are running low, and most of them disclosed plans for shutting down. The Franklin refinery in Philadelphia said it would close Saturday.

Grain Rerouted From Houston

The Association of American Railroads put an embargo on shipping all bulk grains to Houston, Tex. The Texas port is not strikebound, but the volume of rerouted grain shipments has overloaded elevator capacities.

Houston normally handles about 200 carloads of grain daily, and port officials said there were 939 carloads there yesterday.

Thousands of tugboat workers, railroad men and others normally engaged in handling import and export freight have been laid off throughout the North Atlantic States because of similar embargoes on freight destined for ports in the area.

Business was booming, however, in the ancient port of Halifax. Ocean liners and freighters bound for American coastal cities have been diverted there. The Mauretania sailed yesterday and the Britannic and Aquitania are among those unloading or loading. The Queen Elizabeth is due next Wednesday and the Queen Mary several days later at the Nova Scotia port. The United States Lines' flagship, SS America, is strikebound in New York Harbor.

Members of the Halifax Longshoremen's Association (AFL) called a strike in suport of the American union's walkout, but later called it off. They decided they were legally bound to continue work under their contract.

Ryan later told a news conference he had informed the union's Halifax locals "not to act as strikebreakers," the Associated Press reported.

He also said the Cunard White Star Line, which has been diverting its ships to Halifax, would not be allowed to be a party to any agreement reached between the shipping association and the ILA.

The line, owner of the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, is a member of the association. It had no immediate comment.

Ryan said he warned Harold P. Borer, managing director of the Cunard Line, that if the line continued to "use the threat of Canadian laws to break our strike" and then tried to receive the benefits of

'Jerry' Thomas, Marine Boss at Tsingtao, Is an 'Old China Hand' Who Knows the Ropes

Commander of the United States Marines in war-embroiled China is 52-year-old Brig. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, known throughout the corps as a "high-pressure Marine"—one who gets things done in a hurry.

Leatherneck Boss 'Old China Hand'

BRIG. GEN. GERALD C. THOMAS

It's said that "Jerry" Thomas is as courageous at a desk as he is on the battlefield. This is a tribute to his trait for making rapid-fire decisions and following them through.

Little known outside the corps, the Missouri-born Leatherneck is one of the most popular officers in it. That's chiefly because of his prodigious memory. On arriving at a new station he can at a glance call out the names of officers and men who served with him years ago in Haiti, China, England, Egypt, the Solomons, at sea and at State-side stations.

An "Old China Hand"

"Jerry" Thomas is an "old China hand." He served with the Marine detachment at the American Embassy in Peking (now Peiping) in the midthirties. Today, as commander of the Marines in China—formally, Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force, Western Pacific—his headquarters is at Tsingtao, about 90 miles southeast of his first China station.

In Peking, Major Thomas' commanding officer was Col. A. A. Vandegrift. A few years later, when Brigadier General Vandegrift took over the First Marine Division for the invasion of Guadalcanal, "Jerry" joined the campaign as operations officer, and later as chief of staff.

The sturdy, dark-complexioned, handsome officer was "sparkplug of the troops in the Solomons," reported Dick Tregaskis in his "Guadalcanal Diary." The same description of Thomas is recorded in the private diary of Marine Corps Commandant Clifton B. Cates, then a regimental commander. After the Battle of Tenaru, Cates noted that Lieutenant Colonal Thomas was "sparkplug" of the drive.

When General Vandegrift was called from the Solomons to Washington to become commandant of the Marine Corps, Thomas accompanied his chief here, and for three years—until leaving for the China command in the summer of 1947—served as director of the corps' plans and policies division—a setup akin to the Army's general staff. They say he cut through paper work in the same way he cut through enemy positions in the field—in the quickest way possible.

Missouri-Born, Carolina-Reared

"Jerry" Thomas was born in Slater, Mo., brought up in Greenville, N. C. His father was foreman of a construction gang; his mother, a Latin teacher. From the former he inherited a robust physique; from the latter, a flair for literary expression.

He attended Illinois Wesleyan U. before enlisting in the Marines in 1917. The following year he got into action in the Meuse-Argonne offensive and was gassed. He was commissioned in the field.

During his tour of duty at Marine Corps headquarters here between the Solomons and China, General Thomas lived in Georgetown (4412 Bolta pl.). His wife and the two youngest children are with him at Tsingtao; a daughter is in New York, and his oldest son, Gerald, jr., is attending Naval Academy preparatory to entering the Marine Corps.

In the darkest days on the 'Canal—and there were some mighty dark days—Thomas never lost his gift of bon mot. When a Marine outfit was fagged out after a fierce skirmish, he urged that the unit advance rather than sit back and prepare for the customary Jap counterattack.

"We want to give them (the Japs) a sense of futility," he declared.

U. S. Steps Up Aid Flow to China Cities

By The Associated Press

American aid to stricken China was stepped up yesterday with a pledge of wheat, flour and rice for some of her hungry millions.

The Economic Cooperation Administration announced that 12 emergency shiploads or approximately 120,000 tons of United States foodstuffs are being sped to key cities in north and central China.

Harlan Cleveland, ECA's China director, said the shipments will provide enough to feed the 12,270,000 residents of the seven principal cities of China.

He said the program will deliver about 15 pounds of rice or flour a person a month in the cities of Shanghai, Swatow, Canton, Nanking, Tientsin, Peiping and Tsingtao. Tsingtao is the North China port where United States Marine reinforcements are being sent to help evacuate American civilians fleeing before the advance of Communist armies.

The State Department announced today that 183 Americans and 267 refugees of other nationalities were evacuated yesterday from the northern port of Tientsin abroad two United States Naval landing craft.

Two shiploads of wheat have been diverted from the United States Army and are now en route to the Tientsin-Peiping area. Two other shiploads are scheduled to arrive there November 22, followed by a cargo of flour on November 29.

Besides wheat and flour from the United States, ECA said 10,000 tons of rice obtained on a loan from the British is en route from British Hongkong to Shanghai. Shanghai has a population of five million.

Ninety-three per cent of the banking business arising from the Marshall Plan is concentrated in New York banks, the Economic Cooperation Administration disclosed yesterday.

The Bank of America, San Francisco, has handled almost all the rest.

The banks are authorized by ECA to make payments to American corporati s for recovery goods sold to European countries and China. The banks later are reimbursed by ECA; the purchasing country pays a fee for the banking service.

Banks in a number of other parts of the country have protested the lopsided share going to New York, ECA officials said. It is ECA's policy, however, to let the purchasing country pick the bank, and this usually results in the choice of an institution with which the country has had dealings in the past.

The Chase National Bank, New York, has handled $108,894,104 of a total of $687,609,410 in such "letters of commitment," or authorizations, so far issued by ECA.

Other New York banks have shared to the following extent:

J. P. Morgan & Co., $87,761,600; Bankers Trust Co., $98,318,676; French American Bank Corp., $73,168,371; Manufacturers Trust Co., $60,041,436; Irving Trust Co., $54,540,579; National City Bank, $54,386,915; Bank of Manhattan, $33,303,161; Guaranty Trust Co., $24,046,422; Brown Brothers, Harriman, $21,828,696; Central Hanover Bank, $17,421,039; Chemical Bank & Trust Co., $5,035,803; Corn Exchange Bank & Trust, $560,664; New York Trust Co., $396,984; Grace National Bank, $13,964.

Outside New York, these institutions were listed:

Bank of America, San Francisco, $44,657,292; First National Bank, of Boston, $1,595,500; Bank of California, San Francisco, $1,500,000; Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia, $109,430; Continental Illinois National Bank, Chicago, $28,150; National Bank of Detroit, $624.

Battle Won, Nanking Says

Communist armies of east China, and wily one-eyed Gen. Liu Po-cheng, Red commander in central China, proved costly.

Chen deployed his troops on the plains east of Suchow in clear weather, and the Chinese air force struck them with all it had—more than 100 bombers and fighter bombers.

Liu, whose troops attacked from the south, cutting the railway from Suchow to Nanking, likewise found no cover from the aerial storm.

Both generals, who are used to fighting in rough terrain which provides a natural cover, seemed to lack the antiaircraft guns which their Manchurian comrades have been useing to such good effect.

Instead of waiting for the cloudy weather which can be expected with approaching winter, they chose to gamble with Nanking's airfield no more than an hour's flying time away.

It seems that at the least Chen's eastern armies and Liu's forces of the center have been forced to withdraw for regrouping.

In North China, the government also reported a victory. The Nationalists claimed more than 35,000 Communists were killed in two days of fighting for Paoting, capital of Hopeh Province. This was considered an overgenerous estimate.

Press dispatches indicated Paoting still held out and that a relief force was moving down from Peiping.

Subs Outstrip Surface Defense, Admiral Says

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 18 (U.P.).—Undersea warfare and methods of overcoming the superiority of modern submarines are getting top priority from the Navy's planners, Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of naval operations, said today.

He told the Wilmington Rotary Club in a prepared address that the submarine has outstripped the defensive power of the surface ship.

Austria Talks May Be Tried

struggle is going on between them. In these circumstances, it is felt here, Russia may be willing at last to throw Tito's claim overboard and to remove the greatest single obstacle to an Austrian settlement.

There are growing indications, also, that the Russians would like to get out of Austria—for a price, of course. The factories and business enterprises they are operating in eastern Austria are deteriorating much faster, according to reports reaching Washington, than those in the Soviet zone of Germany.

See Risk in Treaty

The Communist Party in Austria can not gain ground as long as Soviet troops and the secret police are stationed on Austrian soil. The recent kidnapings and arrests in Vienna and in the Soviet zone only make matters more difficult for the miserable Austrian Communist Party, which holds only a handful of seats in the Austrian Parliament.

Officials here concede that there is a risk in getting out of Austria—the risk that the Communists might undermine the Austrian government as soon as western allied troops were withdrawn.

But official opinion in the western capitals is swinging around to the view that the advantages of a treaty outweigh the risks. So long as the treaty terms do not endanger Austria's political or economic independence, western officials think it is a risk worth taking.

Fear Danger

Ruhr Ruling Protested By French

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP).—French fears that Britain and the United States are pushing German recovery too fast appeared today to be a greater danger to the French government than the Communist strike problem.

The National Assembly's committee on foreign affairs protested violently the recent decision of the British and American military governments to return control of Ruhr coal mines and steel mills to German trustees.

The committee demanded that French representatives to the London six-power conference on the Ruhr take a stand not only for international control over distribution of the industrial area's coal and steel, but for "international technical and commercial control as well."

All French factions are united against pushing German recovery, and differ only as to degree.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle at a news conference yesterday called the British-American decision the "gravest" of the twentieth century.

The Communists voted against the Assembly committee's protest today, but only because it was not strong enough.

Officials in touch with the French Foreign Office said the government may invoke the 20-year Dunkirk alliance with England on the ground Britain disregarded a clause binding each signatory not to enter into any obligation "inconsistent" with the pact.

fighter and light bomber units in continental United States under one commander charged with defending the Nation against air attacks.

To Command Bombers, Too

Stratemeyer will have at his disposal both the interceptor fighters and warning network of the air defense command and the fighters and bombers of TAC, which normally are engaged in training with Army troops and development of new ground-air technique.

(2) To make possible better coordination of the training of the Air National Guard and Air Reserve through the Continental Air Command and six Air Force area commands. The latter will be responsible for such training under general supervision of CAC.

(3) To provide better coordination between the Army and Air Force by making the geographical limits of the six Air Force areas coincide with the six Army areas.

Navy districts, however, remain different from these newly revamped sectors.

Saville to Succeed to Post

Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville will succeed Stratemeyer as head of the air defense command. Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee was named commander of tactical air command. He succeeds Lieut. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, who last week was put in charge of the Air Force Reserve and National Guard programs—air counterpart to General Ryder's new post.

In the new setup the following Air Force and Army commands will have the same geographic limits:

First Army and First Air Force; Second Army and 14th Air Force; Third Army and Ninth Air Force; Fourth Army and Twelfth Air Force; Fifth Army and Tenth Air Force; Sixth Army and Fourth Air Force.

Headquarters of the Fourteenth Air Force will be moved from Orlando, Fla., to Langley Air Force Base, Va. Headquarters of the Twelfth Air Force will be shifted from March Air Force base, Calif., to Brooks Air Force Base, Tex. The other air force headquarters will remain as at present.

cation that he would never improve in this regard.

Investigation quickly revealed two points which influenced my decision. The first of these was that in advance of the meeting Patton had refused to make any speech and had merely, under the insistence of his hosts, risen to his feet to say a word or two in support of the purpose of the particular gathering.

The second point was that he had been assured that the meeting was a private one, with no reporters present, and that no information concerning its details would be given to anyone.

In the meantime the incident had become one for an exchange of cablegrams with the War Department, but as usual the Secretary and the Chief of Staff left final decision to me, to be based completely upon my judgement as to the needs of battle.

During my investigation George came to see me and in his typically generous and emotional fashion offered to resign his commission so as to relieve me of any embarrassment. When I finally announced to him my determination to drop the whole matter and to retain him as the prospective commander of the Third Army, he was stirred to the point of tears.

At such moments General Patton revealed a side of his make-up that was difficult for anyone except his intimate friends to understand. His remorse was very great, not only for the trouble he had caused me but, he said, for the fact that he had vehemently criticized me to his associates, when he thought I might relieve him His emotional range was very great and he lived at either one end or the other of it. I laughingly told him, "You owe us some victories; pay off and the world will deem me a wise man."

Two considerations, one of them decisive in character, combined to postpone the target date of the invasion from May to June. The first and important one was our insistence that the attack be on a larger scale than that originally planned by the staff assembled in London under Lieut. Gen. Frederick Morgan.

Later Date Gave Air Arm a Chance

Another factor that made the later date a desirable one was the degree of dependence we were placing upon the preparatory effort of the Air Force. An early attack would provide the Air Force with only a minimum opportunity for pinpoint bombing of critical transportation centers in France, whereas the improved weather anticipated for the month of May would give them much more time and better opportunity to impede the movement of German reserves and demolish German defenses along the coast line.

The virtual destruction of critical points on the main roads and railroads leading into the selected battle area was a critical feature of the battle plan. Nevertheless, acceptance of the later date was disappointing. We wanted all the summer weather we could get for the European campaign.

Along with the general plan of operations we thoroughly considered means of deceiving the enemy as to the point and timing of attack. Our purpose was to convince him that we intended to strike directly across the Channel, at its narrowest point, against the stronghold of Calais.

The complementary attack against southern France had long been considered—by General Marshall and me, at least—as an integral and necessary feature of the main invasion across the Channel. The United States was at that time committed to offensive action in the Pacific and the necessary additional craft could not be diverted from that theater.

Montgomery Wanted To Abandon 'Anvil'

In the face of this, General Montgomery proposed the complete abandonment of the attack on southern France, which then had the code name of Anvil. He wrote to me on February 21, 1944: "I recommend very strongly that we now throw the whole weight of our opinion into the scales against Anvil." I refused to go along with this view. But it became clear that there was no other recourse except to delay the southern attack for a sufficient time to permit ships and craft first to operate in Overlord and then to proceed to the Mediterranean for participation in that battle.

One of the most difficult problems, which invariably accompanies planning for a tactical offensive, involves measures for maintenance, supplies, evacuation, and replacement.

Since the nature of the defenses to be encountered ruled out the possibility of gaining adequate ports promptly, it was necessary also to provide a means for sheltering beach supply from the effect of storms. We knew that even after we captured Cherbourg its port capacity and the lines of communication leading out of it could not meet all our needs.

To solve this apparently unsolvable problem we undertook a project so unique as to be classed by many scoffers as completely fantastic. It was a plan to construct artificial harbors on the coast of Normandy.

Hoots and Jeers Greeted Proposal

The first time I heard this idea tentatively advanced was by Admiral Mountbatten, in the spring of 1942. At a conference attended by a number of service chiefs he remarked, "If ports are not available, we may have to construct them in pieces and tow them in." Hoots and jeers greeted his suggestion, but two years later it was to become reality.

Experience in Mediterranean warfare had demonstrated that each of our reinforced divisions in active operation consumed about 600 to 700 tons of supplies per day. Our maintenance arrangements had to provide for the arrival of these amounts daily.

In SHAEF my principal logistic officers were Lieut. Gen. Sir Humfrey Gale and Maj. Gen. R. W. Crawford, both widely experienced and extremely able. The commander of the American logistic organization was Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee. He was an engineer officer of long experience, with a reputation for getting things done.

Because of his mannerisms and his stern insistence upon the outward forms of discipline, which he himself meticulously observed, he was considered a martinet by most of his acquaintances. He was determined, correct, and devoted to duty; he had long been known as an effective administrator and as a man of the highest character and religious fervor.

Gen. 'Courthouse' Lee Unyielding, Effective

I sometimes felt that he was a modern Cromwell, but I was ready to waive the rigidity of his mannerisms in favor of his constructive qualities. Indeed, I felt it possible that his unyielding methods might be vital to success in an activity where an iron hand is always mandatory.

At a secluded spot in eastern England the British army constructed every type of tactical obstacle that the German might use in defending against our attack. The British built pillboxes, massive stone walls, and great areas of barbed-wire entanglements. They planted mine fields, erected steel obstacles for underwater and land use, and dug antitank ditches. Each of these was a replica of similar defenses we knew the Germans had already installed. Then the British set about the task of designing equipment that would facilitate destruction of these obstacles. They used the area for actual test of the equipment so developed and for trying out new battle techniques.

Senior commanders used every possible moment in visiting and inspecting troops. Records left by a staff officer show that in four months, from February 1 to June 1, I visited 26 divisions, 24 airfields, five ships of war, and numerous depots, shops, hospitals and other important installations. Bradley, Montgomery, Spaatz and Tedder maintained similar schedules. Such visits, sandwiched between a seemingly endless series of conferences and staff meetings, were necessary and highly valuable.

As the time came for shifting our concentrations toward the ports, the southern portion of England became one vast camp, dump and airfield. At our request the British government stopped all traffic between this part of England and the remainder of the United Kingdom, just as it did between the United Kingdom and Eire, since enemy spies abounded in neutral Eire.

After the abandonment of the May target date, the next combination of moon, tide and time of sunrise that we considered practicable for the attack occurred on June 5, 6 and 7.

We wanted to cross the channel with our convoys at night so that darkness would conceal the strength and direction of our several attacks. We wanted a moon for our airborne assaults. We needed approximately forty minutes of daylight preceding the ground assault to complete our bombing and preparatory bombardment. We had to attack on a relatively low tide because of beach obstacles, which had to be removed while uncovered. These principal factors dictated the general period; but the selection of the actual day would depend upon weather forecasts.

It was a tense period, made even worse by the fact that the one thing that could give us a disastrous setback was entirely outside our control. Some soldier once said, "The weather is always neutral." Nothing could be more untrue. Bad weather is obviously the enemy of the side that seeks to launch projects requiring good weather, or of the side possessing great assets, such as strong air forces, which depend upon good weather for effective operations.

If really bad weather should endure permanently, the Nazi would need nothing else to defend the Normandy coast!

One of the most dramatic stories of World War II involves General Eisenhower's last-minute decision to use two divisions of paratroopers in the Normandy invasion. His chief air adviser called the plan "futile slaughter," General Eisenhower, one week before D-Day, went to his tent alone and sat down to think over his final decision.

This is one of the stories told for the first time in tomorrow's installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published in this newspaper. It was the greatest invasion in the history of warfare, and General Eisenhower tells in the next installment what happened in the last few hours before the final great decision was made.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published November 22, 1948, by Doubleday & Co. Copyright by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

West Europe's Unity Vital, Dulles Says

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP).—If western Europe chooses to remain feeble and disunited, its separate pieces may be drawn one at a time "into the orbit of the East," John Foster Dulles warned today.

Speaking to the American Club of Paris, Dulles said Americans want a strong and unified Europe capable of standing up for itself. He denounced as "ignoble" any charge that the United States wants to use the Continent merely as a base for achieving world mastery.

Dulles, a Republican, was designated today by President Truman as acting chairman of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations Assembly. Although he said he was not expressing an official American position, the United States delegation here billed his speech as important.

In the last 30 years, Dulles said, Americans have made three great efforts to help the peoples of Europe preserve their free institutions. He listed these as the two World Wars and the European Recovery Program. He continued:

"We want Europe to have so much political strength that neither the United States nor any other power whatsoever will ever be able to use Europe for purposes alien to the free development of Europe itself. . . .

"We want a Europe capable of inventing a new industrial revolution that will continue to multiply the productivity of human labor."

U. S. and Britain Prevent Lie From Acting in Berlin Crisis

Paris, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—The United States and Britain made it clear tonight they will not let United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie play any role in solving the Berlin crisis at the present time.

The United States delegation revealed that currency experts had been called from Berlin and Washington to supply Juan A. Bramuglia, Argentine president of the Security Council, the latest information on blockaded Berlin's money problems. The British said they would answer any questions Bramuglia asked in his effort to mediate between East and West.

But the West has met with stony silence Lie's request for identical information, to guide the U. N. chief in his own mediation effort.

The big powers have never replied to Lie, according to a U. N. spokesman, and Britain has denied that she ever received his request.

A British spokesman said the British would give their information and advice only to the Security Council. That was also the attitude of the United States and France.

This series of moves seemed to have taken away from Lie and Herbert V. Evatt, Australian president of the General Assembly, their last chance of doing anything about Berlin—unless they can come up with a proposal less displeasing to the West than their letter of last Saturday asking for four-power talks.

New Greek Government Sworn In by King Paul

Athens, Nov. 18 (AP).—King Paul I today swore in a new Populist-Liberal government to replace a similar combination which resigned six days ago under fire for failing to suppress the Communist guerillas.

Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, leader of the Liberal Party, is again head of the government but it remained to be seen whether he would get solid Liberal support in Parliament.

Sophocles Venizelos, deputy party leader, has announced he will oppose the cabinet in an expected vote of confidence Saturday. He declined to enter the new coalition and called for a "super-government" above parties.

Constantin Tsaldaris, head of the Populist (royalist) Party, is again vice-premier and foreign minister.

The Liberals took over the key position of minister of war from the Populist, George Stratos. Constantine Rentis, former minister of public order, was given the war post with a Populist undersecretary.

Independent observers said Sophoulis must have felt confident that enough Liberals who deserted to Venizelos would return to him, or he would not have taken the leadership of the government again.

Truman, Forrestal Confer on Europe

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Nov. 18.—President Truman and Defense Secretary James Forrestal sat under a palm tree today and talked for 45 minutes about the situation in Europe.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said afterward that the crisis in China was not discussed.

The question of Forrestal's future in the Truman Cabinet, Rose said, was not discussed either.

Forrestal returned this week from Europe and asked for a conference with the President. He arrived here today at 12:15 p. m. with Maj. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, jr., chief of the war plans division; Marx Leva, special assistant to the Defense Secretary; Harold B. Hinton, another assistant, and Col. Robert Wood, an aide.

General Gruenther Sits In

General Gruenther sat in on the conference between Mr. Truman and Secretary Forrestal, which took place in the garden of the Southern White House.

Press Secretary Ross, reporting to newsmen on the conference, said:

"Secretary Forrestal gave President Truman a memorandum on what he had seen abroad, and an oral report. I am told that was the only topic of their conversation."

It had been widely assumed here that the critical situation in China, where Communist legions are on the march, would be the No. 1 topic when the two men met.

Ross, however, said that he had been "categorically informed" that this subject did not come up. "What's the situation on Forrestal's resignation?" he was asked.

"There is no situation," Ross said. "I am told that the tenure of Mr. Forrestal in the Cabinet did not come up."

Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, who is to resume his post of Speaker of the House in the Eighty-first Congress, arrived in Key West this afternoon at about the time Secretary Forrestal and his party were leaving.

In advance of his garden talk with Forrestal today, President Truman was host at luncheon to the Defense Secretary and these others; Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York State Democratic chairman; Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, Gov.-elect Fuller Warren of Florida, Representative George A. Smathers of Florida, Leonard Hicks, a Chicago hotel man, and C. V. Griffin, a Florida citrus grower.

President Truman plans to fly back to Washington at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. He is expected to arrive in the National Capital about 3 p. m.

Family on Relief Had Earnings Of $1000 a Month

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 18 (U.P). A family that earned from $700 to $1000 a month has been taken off the relief rolls after 24 years, Polk County Welfare Director Leland Ahern said today.

He said the parents had "covered up" the fact that 7 of their 17 children were employed. Members of the family rode in taxicabs and wore "dressy" clothes while the welfare department gave it $50 to $60 a month in groceries and furnished clothes for the children.

Ahern estimated total relief payments, which began shortly after the couple was married, at more than $10,000 in cash in addition to food and clothing. He said the family "managed to remain on relief through political pressure." He declined to identify the family.

3 Water-Thinned Paint Manufacturers Indicted

Attorney General Clark yesterday announced an antitrust indictment against three manufacturers of water-thinned paints and three of their officers.

Clark said the indictment, alleging price-fixing, was returned by a Federal grand jury at St. Louis and named as defendants:

The Reardon Co. of St. Louis and L. A. McLean, manager of its West Coast office at Los Angeles;

The Muralo Co., Inc., and its vice president and general manager, Chester Braham, both of Staten Island, N. Y.;

Wesco Waterpaints, Inc., Berkeley, Calif., and J. G. Penniman, its vice president and general manager, of Chicago.

Special to The Post

New York, Nov. 18.—Ambassador Eelco Van Kleffens of the Netherlands, in a speech here today, asked the American people not to reproach European nations for failing to unite.

He said such reproaches were not justified, and he warned that they might build up resentment on both sides of the ocean when, "at this time more than at any other, family quarrels are out of place."

The Ambassador, who was formerly his country's Foreign Minister and chief delegate to the United Nations, told a Wall Street audience he was speaking solely for himself.

Political federation in western Europe, he said, was difficult although not insuperably so. Ultimately, he thought, it could come about through democratic processes, perhaps with a body at the top like the Federal Council of the Swiss Confederation.

"But the thing to remember," he said, "is that federation does not come overnight. It took your Union years to crystallize. It took the Germans even longer, as it did the Swiss.

"It is natural that in respect of Europe we may be impatient, there being so much at stake. A common danger may well quicken the process, as it always does. But to federate a number of states widely different as to race, outlook, language, traditions and institutions, is a thing that cannot be done rapidly."

The progress toward unity already made by the five Brussels Pact signatories, he said, "is not federation yet, but it goes a long way, and, if it is permissible to be guided by emphatic Soviet criticism of the treaty, is a promising beginning."

As for economic unity, he recalled that Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg hammered out a uniform customs tariff in spite of "sour and angry faces" of vested interests—only to find that their difficulties were just beginning.

They discovered that they also had to unify their excise taxes and every form of indirect taxation; and this, in turn, involved revising their entire fiscal systems, bringing their wage and price levels into line, and doing away with foreign exchange barriers.

What Belgium and Holland are trying to do, he argued, was infinitely harder for all of western Europe. Therefore, "it is unreasonable when people say that, by not establishing an economic union and federation more quickly, Europe is not pulling its weight, or not doing its duty, or not carrying out moral obligations toward the rest of the world.

"Much is being done, although little of it strikes the public eye," the Ambassador declared. "There definitely is no fundamental unwillingness, in western Europe at least, to work for greater unity, but a growing realization that this work is necessary and desirable.

"Give those who labor these your trust, and a real chance to accomplish what cannot be accomplished overnight."

Egypt Unloads U. S. Ship as Prize Cargo

Port Said, Egypt, Nov. 18 (AP).—Egyptian authorities today began unloading the cargo of the American Victory Ship Flying Trader on the ground that it was destined for Israel.

The 10,000-ton vessel, operated by the Isbrandsten Steamship Co., was halted Tuesday at Port Said. The United States Embassy in Cairo is investigating the case at the request of the State Department, an embassy source said.

The Flying Trader's manifest described the cargo as bound for Genoa, Italy, and New York. It was loaded at Kohsichang, Burma, and Bombay, India.

Egyptian officials contended that labels indicated the goods were destined for Tel Aviv. They said they were confiscating 38 vehicles, 4000 bags of rice and a large number of batteries and automobile spare parts.

Egypt has announced a "blockade" of Israel. The United States does not recognize that blockade.

U. S. Squelches FAO Support Hike Proposal

By John W. Ball

Post Reporter

The United States yesterday squelched a proposal in the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization Conference that it assume more of the cost of operating FAO.

The proposal was raised by Indian Delegate P. S. Deshmukh. He said this country was not contributing as much to the cost of FAO as it is to the United Nations. Last year the United States contributed $1,250,000 to the FOA's budget of $4,607,000—about 27 per cent. It paid about 39 per cent of the expenses of the U. N.

William A. Jump, fiscal officer for the Agriculture Department and delegate to FAO, declared that he doubted if Congress would permit an increase in this country's contribution.

"The day will come," he declared, "when inevitably the United States will have to evaluate its international obligations. The attitude of the American taxpayers will be an important factor when that day comes."

Several nations supported the Indian proposal, asking that each country's contribution be based on its national income. The argument delayed action by Commission III of the conference at the Shoreham on the choice of a permanent site for FAO. Several nations are urging that FAO be moved from Washington to a "soft currency" country as an expense-saving measure.

Other developments at the 57-nation conference included:

1. One country within the Iron Curtain criticized the United States for opposing creation of a world food board that would buy agricultural products during surplus periods and resell them to needy nations when food is scarce. Poland's Delegate Zygnunt declared his country "favors a coordinated action in the field of world production and distribution of foodstuffs."

"It should be reminded," he said, "that this idea could not be put into effect because of the opposition of some countries—a situation we deeply deplore.

"Unfortunately the first effort to arrive at an international wheat agreement did not succeed mainly because of the failure on the part of the United States Congress to take proper action." (Poland was not a signatory to the wheat agreement.)

2. Ireland's Minister of Agriculture made an impassioned plea for an economic union between the United States and Great Britain, with smaller nations invited to join. He pleaded for a union as close in peace as in war, asserting that the only alternative is another war. He asked that customs duties be abolished, and "men, money and goods be allowed to move freely" between nations.

3. Mexico's Delegate Francisco de P. Miranda declared that one of the "major objectives" of FAO should be to aid "undeveloped nations to expand their industries."

John W. Nicholson, president of the United Hybrid Growers Association, told the delegates at a luncheon meeting that farmers same day may boost their corn production by 10 bushels an acre as a result of continuing improvements in hybrid seed. Nicholson's company has been conducting experiments in corn raising in Italy, increasing production there by 50 per cent an acre.

Announcement was made that a reception to the FAO delegates by President and Mrs. Truman will be held at the Shoreham on November 24.

Phantom Nimrod Peppering Victims In Mid-New York

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—A phantom marksman has been roaming midtown streets in an automobile since Monday taking potshots at strollers with a BB gun.

The latest victim, a 26-year-old woman, reported she had been shot in the chest with a pellet early today while standing on 51st st. at Broadway. She said she saw a man aim an air rifle at her from a moving taxicab.

A few minutes earlier, Leon Askin, a play director, told police he was struck in the head by a similar pellet before a subway entrance at 5th ave. and 53d st.

Two other women were hit Monday. All incidents have occurred in the same general midtown area.

British Propose Loan To Movie Industry

London, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—The government proposed to Commons today that it lend the British movie industry up to five million pounds (20 million dollars) over the next five years.

Under the cinematograph film production (special loans) bill, the government would set up a national film finance corporation to help the British industry meet its quota of 45 per cent of British screen time.

Steel Allocation Meeting Set Today

The Nation's steelmakers will be asked today to channel more steel into essential industries.

Representatives of the major companies will meet here this morning with Department of Commerce officials in their first face-to-face conference on extension and expansion of the voluntary allocations program since before the election.

Greater Willingness Expected

Expectations are that the steel barons will show a greater willingness to go along with Commerce chiefs' plans than at their last meeting early in October. Then the industry agreed to continue allocations of steel to the armed forces, Atomic Energy Commission and National Advisory Commission for Aeronautics for six months beyond the expiration of th epresent law March 1, and accepted a new merchant ship allocation, but turned down or postponed action on other Government extension or expansion programs.

Commerce officials, it is understood, will today:

1. Propose voluntary allocation of steel in three new fields: mining machinery equipment, terminal and bulk oil storage facilities, and for the East Tennessee natural gas line.

2. Ask continuation of the present freight car, tanker, barge and oil field tank and production equipment programs until next fall.

New Legislation Mapped

3. Will not propose now that any more steel be set aside for housing after the end of February, either in extension of existing programs or new programs.

Last month the steelmen turned down Commerce proposals to start new housing allocation programs in several fields in which steel is short—plumbing, heating, doors and oil storage tanks.

Government circles now are mpaping plans for new legislation extending and probably strengthening the steel allocation program. Steelmen had expected a new Republican administration to abandon the present voluntary plan. What will be proposed has not yet been decided.

1948 Nobel Peace Prize Is Cancelled

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 18 (UP).—There will be no Nobel Peace Prize this year, the Nobel committee of the Norwegian Storting (parliament) announced today.

It was the tenth time since 1901 that the committee has decided not to issue the annual award.

[There were no awards during World War II, from 1939 to 1944 inclusive. Cordell Hull former Uniteds States Secretary of State, won the award in 1945.]

The prize, which this year was to have been about $32,250, will be added to the Nobel Fund.

Mohandas K. Gandhi and Count Folke Bernadotte, both the victims of assassins' bullets, had been mentioned for the award. However, Bernadotte was not eligible because his name had not been placed on the list before February 1 in accordance with the committee's statutes.

Candidates included President Truman and Ewing Cockrell, president of the United States Federation of Justice; Premier Josef Stalin and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of the USSR, the late President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil and Pope Pius XII.

Indianapolis Grocers Wage 'Coupon' War

Indianapolis, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—A torrent of coupons overflowed cash registers in Indianapolis grocery stores today as housewives merrily chased in on a two-million-dollar "price war."

The price war began when a grocery chain mailed to every Indianapolis family a coupon book worth $5.50 in merchandise. By turning in a coupon with each purchase, housewives get a 10-cent reduction on any item in a long list of staples.

The response was overwhelming. Housewives surged into the stores to buy up peanut butter, sirup, noodle soup, salad dressing, catsup, coffee, tuna fish, floor wax and dozens of other products.

The coupon program originally was a sampling program by manufacturers to stimulate the sale of slow-moving products.

Harvey Hagelskamp, secretary of the Indiana Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers Association, said independent grocers were accepting coupons in self defense with the promise of manufacturers that they would redeem all coupons regardless of who turned them in.

One big grocery chain cut its prices 10 cents on the coupon items offered by its competitor.

Long Predicts Quick Death For T-H Law

Cincinnati, Nov. 18 (AP).—Senator-elect Russell B. Long, son of the late Huey Long of Louisiana, told the AFL today a lot of Congressmen who supported the Taft-Hartley Act will vote for its repeal.

"It is my hope that by the time Congress is in session one month, we will have taken that law off the statute books," Long said. He was 30 years old on November 3 and will be the youngest member of the new Senate.

Long spoke after Daniel J. Tobin, head of the teamsters, handed AFL President William Green a check for $62,500 as his union's share in the Political League's program for the next 14 months.

The amount represented the union's 10-cents-a-head contribution, agreed upon by the convention yesterday.

Tobin's check was the first received for that purpose. He presented it after getting an opinion from Counsel Albert Woll that it was legal under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The law prohibits union contributions in a campaign, but Tobin made sure the money was going for political education and information.

Tobin Had Supported Dewey

Tobin had expressed a preference for Republican candidate Thomas E. Dewey a few days before the last election.

Convention committees studying scores of resolutions and proposals on State and national legislation and routine union matters will start reporting tomorrow.

The meeting ends next Tuesday.

The major proposal under study would create an over-all legislative council to work out strategy and the type of legislation the AFL will indorse to replace the Taft-Hartley Act.

Most of the day was devoted to speechmaking. Delegates heard addresses by the British and Canadian fraternal delegates, and by Max Eastman, one-time social revolutionist.

Eastman's appearance before the convention was criticized by Bill Faber, secretary of the Ohio State Civil Rights Congress, in a statement to reporters.

Eastman, contributing editor of the "New Leader" and "Reader's Digest," said he had lived in Russia two years and once was a Communist sympathizer. He told the AFL he had changed his views and that the competitive capitalist system is the "goose that lays the golden eggs."

Eastman said Washington diplomacy was "Sunday School sentimentalism," which has brought the Nation to the edge of another war. He said the Republicans had "joined in the hymn singing."

The speaker declared Joseph Stalin, "one of the master dupesters in all history, is sitting in the Kremlin grinning at the way they fell for his tricks.

"He's sitting there now, pulling a big fracas in Berlin in order to distract their minds while he consolidates his hold n Manchuria and builds his own impregnable Ruhr in the Far East," Eastman said.

Faber said Eastman had been giving the delegates a "will o' the wisp chase." He said it was a dangerous sign that the AFL had invited Eastman to talk.

"He raised a phony issue," Faber said, referring to Eastman's attack on Stalin.

"He takes the delegates away from the fight for peace."

Faber was a visitor to the convention and his statement was volunteered.

Dock Strike Negotiators . . .

Snowstorm Heads East From Plains

Garden City, Kans., Nov. 18 (AP). A snowstorm blew eastward tonight from the Plains region after halting highway travel and disrupting communications in six States.

Cold air masses sweeping down from the Rockies spread snow up to a foot deep over eastern Colorado, northwestern Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, and parts of New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle.

Visibility in 19 southwest Kansas counties was reported nearly at zero. Traffic on all highways there was at a standstill and crews roamed the roads towing dozens of stalled cars out of ditches.

Clearing weather in the Idaho primitive area made possible air rescue of 20 snowbound hunters and an injured Forest Service worker.

"The Kansas storm will move east-northeastward through the southern Great Lakes region during the next 36 hours," the Chicago Weather Bureau said. It added that the storm wil be "attended by widespread precipitation." The southern section will get rain and the north snow.

The Denver Weather Bureau said heavy snow was falling from a point about 30 miles east of Denver to North Platte, Nebr., and Garden City. The storm also extended from the Colorado-Wyoming border to northeastern New Mexico.

Flying Boxcar Makes Successful Test Flight

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—A short, squat flying boxcar made a successful test flight from Mercer Airport this afternoon.

Witnessing the flight were a number of high-ranking Army officers and Bryan Woods, assistant to the Undersecretary for Air.

Company officials said the plane, the C-122, could be used either as a self-propelled plane with the engines or as a glider without them.

A 27-foot-long cargo compartment can hold 20,000 pounds of freight or 30 fully-equipped soldiers. Length of the fuselage is 56 feet, wing span is 86 feet and height of the vertical fin is 21 feet.

an agreement reached with the shipping association "then they can keep their ships in Halifax after the strike is over."

Asked what the ILA would do if Cunard sent ships to New York after the strike, Ryan invited reporters to "come down to the piers and see."

Margolis Meets With Lyon

At St. John's, New Brunswick, however, an official of the International Longshoremen's Association said stevedores there will not handle ships diverted from United States ports.

Margolis, who flew from here to New York to handle Government efforts to settle the strike, also met with John V. Lyon, chairman of the New York Shipping Association, the employer group, yesterday.

Major issues of the stoppage are pay and a new overtime formula. The longshoremen have rejected a settlement giving them a 10-cent increase over the old $1.75 an hour daytime rate, and a 15-cent boost over the $2.62½ night and weekend rate. They are demanding a 50 and 75 cents increase.

Negotiators also have been unable to agree on an overtime arrangement to replace the long-standing plan outlawed by the Supreme Court last June.

Pacific Strike Called Aid to Chinese Reds

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 18 (U.P.). An American Legion national commission charged today that the Pacific Coast dock strike had the effect of a "Communist blockade" on shipments to China, and urged that steps be taken "instantly" to get food to the Chinese republic.

Alaskan Democrats Oppose Wallgren Appointment

Anchorage, Alaska, Nov. 18 (AP). Alaska Democrats said today they have sent President Truman telegrams opposing the possible appointment of Washington Gov. Mon Wallgren as Secretary of the Interior.

Victor C. Rivers, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, said his group, Democratic divisional committees and Democrat club officers all have sent wires.

Rivers said, "We feel Wallgren represents those interests in the Pacific Northwest whose main interest would be to exploit Alaska rather than emancipate it."

The Westward Alaska Fisheries Council recently took similar action.

RECIPE

LEMON COCONUT CAKE
Snowdrift's new "quick-mixing" way to get a lighter, richer, moister cake!

Sift together in a large bowl:
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons double-action baking powder (3¼ teaspoons single-action)
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar

Add: ½ cup Snowdrift (quick-blending!)
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Mix until flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. If you beat by hand and take "rests," count beating time only. (If you use electric mixer, set at "low speed"; scrape bowl and beaters frequently.)

Add: 2 eggs
¼ cup lemon juice

Beat 1 minute. Turn into 2 greased 8- or 9-inch layer pans, with bottoms lined with thin plain paper. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 25 minutes. Cool on cake racks 5 minutes; turn out of pans, invert and cool. Put layers together with—

COCONUT FROSTING
2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup shredded coconut

Put all ingredients except vanilla in double boiler, over boiling water. Beat constantly with rotary beater 7 minutes, or until icing "peaks." Cool. Add vanilla. Ice cake; press coconut against sides of cake.

U. S. Aid to Schools Urged by Grange

Portland, Me., Nov. 18 (AP).—The National Grange Convention asked for Federal financial aid for schools today, but under conditions guaranteeing local control of school policies.

Such aid is needed by many schools, a convention resolution said, if adequate school opportunities are to be offered all children.

Grange action on the controversial issue was taken at a closed meeting. Some of the 73 voting delegates opposed the action. But the vote was not disclosed.

Insists on Local Control

The issue is expected to come up at the next session of Congress.

The Grange said such help should be limited to elementary and secondary schools.

Insisting upon local control, the farm organization said all Federal funds should be spent by State or local school officials "without interference" by Federal agencies or officials.

The Grange took notice of past strikes by teachers for higher pay in some areas. It also noted that many teachers have turned to other work.

Urges Better Salaries

"We deplore the fact," the resolution said, "that some of our teachers have been compelled to use extreme measures to improve their occupations."

The resolution said teachers should be paid such salaries that will "secure the best talent available to teach our children."

The Grange voted to hold next year's convention in California and help that State celebrate the 100th anniversary of the 1849 gold rush. The convention city and date of the meeting will be announced later.

Hebrew Union Elects

'Atomic Balloon' at Bikini . . .

NEW PICTURE—This is a hitherto unpublished view of the underwater atom bomb explosion at Bikini July 25, 1946, made from a plane directly above the lagoon. The extreme outer circle is the shock wave that rippled out over the lagoon. Inside the outer circle is the vapor cloud, the edge of which can be defined in the shadow portion of the circle. Breaking through the top of the mile-high vapor cloud is the column of water, already fanning out to form the mushroom-like top of the column. The cloud, or fog, was formed by an explosion at the top of the water column. It disappeared quickly after forming a mantle for this instant

McGrath Sees Few Changes

the same rule should apply to all Americans or none.

4. Stressed these other measures as "most important"—anti-inflation, housing; Federal aid to education, health aids, civil rights, full extension of reciprocal trade, further aid to Europe and new farm legislation.

5. Declared for a change in Senate debate rules "to prevent filibusters of unreasonable length" but declined to forecast what the Senate Democratic majority will do about it.

6. Said the House Un-American Activities Committee "has a rather dismal future . . . It has no future if it intends to act as it has in the past."

7. Came out for a change in the Hatch Act to permit Democratic and Republican National Committees to borrow money from banks "so we will have a line of credit like any other three or four-million-dollar business." Suggested no further limitations on political activities of Government employes.

8. Implied no attempt will be made to bar either the Senate's lone Wallace Progressive, Glen Taylor, or Southern States Rights ticket supporters from committee places.

9. Said that so far as the Democratic National Committee is concerned any party "purges" should be handled on the State level.

10. Announced his personal support of Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) for Democratic floor leader to succeed Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley.

In saying Democrats will find their own "experts" to service congressional committees, McGrath said he wasn't familiar with the exact language of the Congressional Reorganization Act on that point.

The law authorizes each legislative committee by majority vote to appoint up to four professional staff members in addition to clerical staffs "on a permanent basis without regard to political affiliation and solely on the basis of fitness to perform the duties of the office."

But a loophole authorizes each committee to "terminate services by a majority vote of . . . any such professional staff member as it sees fit."

McGrath said he was speaking as an individual Senator, and not as National chairman, when he said Congress should pass "a certain tax on excess profits."

But he stressed business has no need to "fear" a Democratic Administration. Under the Democrats, he said business is now enjoying "the greatest prosperity ever known."

Vast Storing Of Wheat, Corn Urged

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 18 (AP).—Plans to ask the Government for a 500 million dollar revolving fund to set up a huge stockpile of wheat and corn took shape today at a session of Farmers Union officers.

James G. Patton, Denver, Colo., president, said the Farmers Union wants the revolving fund set up like the rural electrification program. It would put enough elevators in small towns and storage bins on farms to hold a billion bushels of wheat and a billion bushels of corn, Patton expained.

Money for the revolving fund would come from the Government, Patton said, and farmers and elevator associations could borrow it on a 40-year basis, as Rural Electrification Administration organizations do.

The plan was indorsed in principle at the union's national convention, but it is up to the board of directors to plan the details.

Patton said the Nation has had 12 "wet" years and the union believes it is time to start a grain stockpile for the "dry" years.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan was expected to confer with the board of directors of the union here tomorrow about its 1949 legislative program.

The board wants a consumers' food subsidy and a 100 per cent support program on farm prices for farming families.

Brannan to Continue Talking Abundance

Kansas City, Nov. 18 (AP).—Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture, said today "we are going to continue talking to Congress about a program of realistic abundance."

The Secretary said at a press conference that he does not propose to talk of restricting farm production until all possibilities of better distribution and consumption have been explored.

"I don't want to talk to farmers about restricting production," he said. "A farmer just isn't made that way."

Nebraskan Named To Head Realtors

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The nominating committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards today named Theodore H. Maenner of Omaha, Nebr., as its choice for president for the next year. The election will be held tomorrow.

Maenner is a former president of the Omaha Board of Realtors and of the Nebraska Real Estate Association; vice president of the Institute of Real Estate Management and, in 1946, was chairman of the realtors' Washington committee.

Nominated for treasurer was H. Walter Graves of Philadelphia.

Government policies affecting housing came under fire of speakers today at the association convention.

Hobart C. Brady, Wichita, Kans., president, said the association would continue to oppose peacetime rent control and extension of federally owned and operated housing.

Earl Bunting, managing director of the National Association of Manufacturers, said the Government has poured 20 billion dollars of Federal funds into housing since 1933 without solving the shortage.

Fred B. Mitchell, San Diego, president of the California Real Estate Association, said when the Government offers one of its citizens use of a house at less than cost, "it is discouraging thrift and initiative whereby he can one day be independent."

Brady told the convention that "large-scale Government spending has contributed to the high cost of housing while lowering the buying power of the people."

Before an afternoon panel discussion, Ed Mendenhall of High Point, N. C., said real estate "is changing—in fact, has changed in some areas—from a seller's market to a buyer's market."

A prediction that, because of emphasis on homes for the low-income group, 1949 "will be another big year for residential construction" came from W. L. Cooper, Port Huron, Mich., realtor.

"I believe that we will build as many units next year as we have during this year, and it may be possible that we will end up with even more," he said.

Cooper cited income and savings statistics to support his statement that "there are plenty of people able to buy or build new homes at present prices—provided they can get what they want."

How the postwar business boom has given new life to older industrial and loft properties was related by F. B. Martin, St. Louis realtor.

These locations are in demand by the light manufacturer and small jobber who, with a buyer's market approaching, finds a competitive need for warehousing and storage space to provide prompter deliveries and faster service, Martin said.

As a result, he went on, many of these properties have been rehabilitated, and even the others "have commanded a higher rental than at any time during their existence."

Controls Urged

Psychological 'Quacks' Hit By Fishbein

Dr. Morris Fishbein asserted yesterday that "psychological quacks" are swindling the public out of millions of dollars a year by selling advice that is worse than worthless. The editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association said in an article written for the Women's Home Companion magazine that legislation is needed to control such "mental charlatans."

"In the whole United States there probably are not more than 3500 scientifically trained psychologists and psychiatrists who are qualified to give proper study and suitable advice to people suffering from mental and emotional troubles," he wrote.

But he said that "at least 25,000—many of them charlatans" are advertising themselves as capable of curing psychic ills.

The advice of such "modern witch doctors," he continued, "not infrequently leads to broken homes, ruined careers, nervous breakdowns and suicides."

"Few of the quacks have any scientific training. Some call themselves doctors but not one in a hundred possesses an M. D. or a Ph. D. degree—the only degrees that mean anything in psychiatry and psychology."

The AMA official said a quack may operate under any one of "various fine names."

Building Code Modernizing Law Drafted

Model legislation for modernizing building codes at minimum cost has been drafted for use by the various States, the Housing and Home Finance Agency announced yesterday.

The suggested program would enable municipalities to avoid excessive cost frequently incurred in revising or adopting building codes. It was drafted under HHFA auspices, in cooperation with the Council of State Government, the Department of Justice and the Department of Commerce.

An official of the HHFA said only States, and not the District of Columbia, are considered in the plan. He said the District could benefit, however, from a study of its effect on other cities if changes are enacted by State Legislatures.

Major advantage of the proposed legislation, according to HHFA Administrator Raymond M. Foley, is elimination of the need for publication of lengthy building codes by municipalities in newspapers, now generally required by law.

Under the plan, State statutes would permit municipalities to adopt a model code "by reference." So long as a proposed code is made available for ready public examination, it need only be properly identified in an ordinance. The full text, therefore, need not be published.

The model legislation also requires that copies of adopted building codes and all related documents be kept conveniently available for public examination.

It further places upon an appropriate local official the responsibility of keeping the governing body of a municipality constantly apprised of changes that should be made in its building code.

Drafting of the proposed legislation is the first major action of HHFA under its program for improved and standardized building codes, authorized by the Housing Act of 1948.

U. N. Moves to Protect Illegitimate Children

Paris, Nov. 18 (AP).—The United Nations draft declaration on human rights was amended today to pledge illegitimate children "the same social protection as those born in marriage."

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt, United States delegate, and P. C. Chang of China cast the only negative votes. The change, sponsored by Norway, carried 32 to 2, with 10 abstentions.

Mrs. Roosevelt said it is "unwise and unnecessary" to refer specifically to illegitimate children. She argued the declaration already provided equal rights for all children.

Headliners' Jobs In District Jail

Footnote to history: What yesterday's headliners are doing behind unpublicized bars of District Jail today—

Meyers

Ex-Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, 52, convicted by a jury of subornation of perjury, is perfecting the system of issuing tools in the jail's machine shop.

Mildred S. Gillars, 47, the wartime Axis Sally, is sewing bandages for Gallinger Hospital, while awaiting trial on 10 counts of treason. She is charged with broadcasting treasonable statements over the Nazi radio, beamed to American troops.

Meyers was convicted of inducing a business associate to lie before a Senate subcommittee investigating the former general's alleged wartime contract frauds. Sentenced to 20 months to 5 years, he also awaits trial on income tax evasion charges.

Meyers, as issuer in the tool crib, has perfected the card check on tools issued, according to Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections.

He was assigned to the tool job, Clemmer said, because "we didn't want to give him a cushy desk job and at the same time didn't want to give him a mop—that would be a waste of brains."

Clemmer stressed that "neither Meyers nor anyone else gets any special privilege in District Jail."

The only trouble Axis Sally has given jail authorities involved an abortive effort to teach a fellow prisoner how to speak German.

Clemmer said he spotted her recently showing another prisoner "how to hold a long German-like vowel" and Clemmer gave orders to authorities to put a stop to it.

FBI Laboratory Chief Will Address Chemists

D. J. Parsons, scientific chief of the FBI laboratory here, is scheduled to speak at 8 p.m., today before a meeting of the American Institute of Chemists. He will talk on "The Science of Crime Detection."

The meeting will be held at the Potomac Electric Power Co. auditorium, 10th and E sts. nw. Invitations have been extended to all chemists, chemical engineers and members of other chemical and scientific organizations.

Briton Will Address Workmen's Circle Here

Dr. E. G. Gooch, adviser to the United Kingdom delegation to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization Conference, will speak before the Workmen's Circle at 8:30 p.m. today at 1502 14th st. nw.

Dr. Gooch, a Labor member of the British Parliament, will speak on "Planning Plus Democracy—the Current British Experiment." The meeting will be open to the public.

Deer Herd 'King' Kills Challenger In Calif. Park

San Francisco, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—An eight-point white buck, the "king" of the deer herd in Golden Gate Park, killed a challenger for his supremacy in a two-hour battle of antlers that had park officials in an uproar.

The king deer and his challenger, a slightly smaller red deer, ignored the attempts of mounted police to separate them. They charged and clashed antlers for control of the "harem" of does in the park until the king cornered the red deer and fatally gored him deep in the flank.

Police lasso experts then roped the big buck and held him while San Francisco Zoo Director Carey Baldwin sawed off his antlers to prevent further killings. Baldwin termed the onslaught "not at all uncommon" with the advent of the mating season.

Sharp Cut in Costs Seem Unlikely, Contractor Says

The public should not be led to believe that there will be a quick or drastic reduction in construction costs, Dwight W. Winkelman, president of the Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., said Wednesday.

Winkelman's comments were made in a speech before members of the Washington Society of Engineers at the society's forty-third annual banquet at the Mayflower Hotel.

"There are indications that construction costs are tending to level off and stabilize at the present time," the speaker said, declaring that future construction costs would follow the general trend of prices in "our economy as a whole."

Winkelman predicted that the volume of building next year would parallel that of this year.

Meeting Set on Rules For Money Lenders

Attorneys in favor of and in opposition to proposed District regulations on operations of money lenders will hold an open meeting in the office of Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in an attempt to reconcile theories on the legality of the rules.

The conference was ordered by the District Commissioners after a public hearing on Monday failed to result in agreement on the legal authority for the proposed rules. Gray is the principal author of the rules.

Astronomers Set Hobby Show For Saturday

The third annual hobby show of the National Capital Astronomers will be held on Saturday from 8 to 10 p.m. in the anteroom of the Commerce Department Auditorium.

On display, club members said, will be a 10-inch Schmidt camera, a K-19 aerial camera adapted for astronomical photography and pictures taken with the instruments.

Also to be shown will be mirror-testing equipment, a sky scope and sunspot projector, a model of the solar system and many other pictures, charts and items of interest to astronomers. The show is open to the public.

Judge Gray To Hear Radio Station Cases

Judge John B. Gray, jr., associate justice of the Seventh Maryland Judicial Circuit, was named yesterday to preside over contempt proceedings against five Baltimore area radio stations and a news announcer.

Gray

Appointment of the 54-year-old jurist, who lives in Prince Frederick, Md., was made by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

The stations and the announcer were cited for contempt after broadcasting accounts of the murder of 11-year-old Marsha Brill in Baltimore last July 6.

The Baltimore Supreme Bench accused the stations of violating its "rule nine"—a regulation restricting the broadcast and publication of crime news. Replies filed by the stations questioned the validity of the rule.

Assignment of a county judge to try the case was made after a request for such action by the Baltimore Supreme Bench. The Seventh Judicial Circuit encompasses Prince Georges, Charles, Calvert and St. Marys Counties.

Clerks of the Baltimore Criminal Court were notified yesterday of the selection of Chief Judge Ogle Marbury of the Appellate Court. Judge Gray will hear the cases in Baltimore Criminal Court at a date not yet announced.

Cited were Stations WITH and its news editor, James P. Connolly; WFBR, WCBM, WBAL, all in Baltimore, and WSID, in suburban Essex.

The Brill murder, from which the cases arose, resulted in the conviction of Eugene James, a 31-year-old janitor. He was sentenced to death and has filed an appeal, which is still pending.

James also is under indictment in the District for the slaying of 11-year-old Carol Bardwell June 27 in Rock Creek Park.

Belgian Cabinet Crisis Threatens As Struye Resigns

Brussels, Nov. 18 (AP).—Minister of Justice Paul Struye resigned today. The action threatened the collapse of the already shaky coalition Catholic-Socialist Belgian government.

Struye, a Catholic Party leader, resigned after parliamentary debate on his policy of clemency toward former pro-German collaborators.

Premier Paul-Henri Spaak said the Ministers will meet Friday to decide whether to appoint a new Minister of Justice or to resign in a body. It was believed the Catholics would want to resign in support of Struye.

Struye's policy came up for debate after he commuted the death sentence of two pro-Nazi Belgians charged with being responsible for the deaths of several patriots during the German occupation. No vote was taken.

Despite Spaak's oratory, the Socialists appeared ready to vote no confidence in the government. Struye then announced he would resign to avoid a cabinet crisis in the present international situation.

Norfolk Senator Urges Session For Sales Levy

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—State Senator Edward L. Breeden, jr., today urged that a special session of the General Assembly be called soon to adopt a sales tax for the benefit of public education and also for public health and welfare.

The income tax has been "bled white" by the Federal Government, Breeden said, while local sources of taxation—such as real estate and license taxes—"have been put through the wringer for all they can stand."

Describing a "sad situation" in public education, Breeden said the "inescapable conclusion" is to "enact a Virginia sales tax and to do this promptly."

Britons Promised Holiday Sweets Bonus

London Nov. 18 (U.P.).—Food Minister John Strachey today promised Britons more sugar, sweets and tea but less turkeys for Christmas.

He announced Christmas bonuses of 2 ounces of sweets, a half pound of sugar and a quarter pound of tea for the Yuletide. Part of these increases are covered in general ratio increases effective December 5.

Compared with 11,000 tons of turkeys last year, Britain will have only 10,500 tons on hand this Christmas, the Food Minister said.

AMVETS File Suit to Force VA to Ease Requirements for Obtaining Flight Training

A suit sponsored by American Veterans of World War II was filed here yesterday seeking to force the Veterans Administration to ease requirements on obtaining flight training under the GI Bill of Rights.

Filed in District Court in the name of Willie G. Slocumb, jr., 27, of Portsmouth, Va., the suit is part of Amvets continuing battle with VA over flight schooling for veterans.

Amvets contends VA Administrator Carl R. Gray, jr., has "abused his discretion" under the law by requiring "an unwarranted burden of proof" of vocational intent for seeking the training. In limiting the flight training to those who can prove they need it in present or contemplated business, VA contends it is faithfully carrying out a law passed at the last session of Congress, banning recreational or avocational GI training.

Slocumb's suit seeks to have VA accept as vocational intent "the bonafide declaratory statement of the applicant that he will use the training in his business." The suit was filed for Slocumb by Robert E. McLaughlin, local attorney, who is acting for Harold A. Keats, national commander of the organization, AMVETS announced.

Named as defendants are Gray, two assistant administrators, H. V. Stirling and F. W. Kelsey, and A. H. Monk, director of training facilities for VA.

Slocumb, described as an Army veteran and now a commercial photographer seeking to make aerial photography his career, said he applied for the GI flight training and was refused.

Private Saves 4 Japs In Mine Trap 12 Days

Sendai, Japan, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—United States Army Pvt. Salvatore Forte, a former coal miner from Hatboro, Pa., today rescued four Japanese coal miners trapped for 12 days in a shaft.

Forte worked for more than a week driving a 90-foot shaft to them. They had been trapped in the mine since November 6.

All hope had been abandoned for them three days ago, but when Salvatore reached them, they were alive. The Japanese were rushed to a hospital and were expected to live.

Skull Crushed

Nurse, Hunted Four Months, Found Slain

Ossipee, N. H., Nov. 18 (AP).—Ruth Eisenberg, 22, missing Newark, N. J., nurse, was slain struggling with some one who jammed her silk panties down her throat and threw her body in a lonely foxhole grave, a medical examiner said tonight.

Miss Eisenberg

Medical Referee Francis Dube said the girl was suffocated by the wadded silk and her skull crushed in a wild battle "three to four months ago."

Ruth, daughter of a Newark school principal, vanished July 20 after leaving a Newtown, Conn., home where she was employed. Her body was found Wednesday.

Police said they hold no clews to her slayer.

Dr. Dube said it was probably a sex crime. He said the condition of the body made it impossible to determine rape. The girl's brassiere showed knife slits and her teeth were "tightly clenched," he said.

U. S. Attorney Sees No Reason to Suppress 'The Alcoholic Woman'

The United States Attorney's office yesterday said it saw no reason to suppress "The Alcoholic Woman," a medical treatise.

The book, written by Dr. Benjamin Karpman, chief psychotherapist at St. Elizabeths Hospital, was referred to the United States Attorney's office by the Police Department for an opinion after Lieut. Col. Walter O. Ulrey of the Volunteers of America had described it as "pornographic" and declared "someone immediately should prohibit and confiscate" it.

Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson said the book was "approved on the basis of being a scientific treatise on a phase of psychiatry."

He said there was no cause to "suppress" the book "as long as it is distributed through regular channels," the same as other medical and scientific books.

Wilson said were the book distributed on newsstands it would be a distortion of the book's purpose. Ulrey had claimed the book was being sold at newsstands, but was unable to name any.

"The Alcoholic Woman" is published by the Washington Institute of Medicine, 1720 M st. nw., and is a psychiatric study of the problems causing alcoholism as exemplified in the cases of three women.

Committee Starts Drive to Raise $150,000 To Finance City's 'Greatest' Inauguration

A drive for a $150,000 fund to finance "the greatest inaugural we have ever had" was launched yesterday by the 1949 Inaugural Committee at a meeting of committee leaders in the District Building.

The sum, $10,000 higher than the goal in 1941, will be used to meet expenses. Contributors will be repaid in proportion to the revenue derived from the sale of bleacher seats, concession sales, and perhaps the Inaugural Ball.

In 1941, a 92.12 per cent return on contributions was made, Robert V. Fleming, finance committee chairman, said. The goal this year will be a 100 per cent return.

The Capital Transit Co. has pledged $4000—$1000 more than in 1941—and the Potomac Electric Power Co. has promised $7000—$2000 more than in 1941, Fleming reported. A limited program was held in 1945 because of the war.

General Chairman Melvin D. Hildreth announced President Truman is expected to decide Monday on how many days off Federal workers will be given for the program.

A decision also will be made Monday on whether the Inaugural Ball should be held in the Armory as an invitation affair, or held simultaneously in 10 to 12 hotels with a touring group of entertainers.

Hildreth announced three new committee appointments. They are Dr. Ching Chong Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, chairman of the Chinese participation; Benjamin C. Sigal, attorney, chairman of decorations committee, and Joseph F. Major, legislative liaison representative for the War Assets Administration, chairman of agency participation.

Wright Plane Due in N. Y. Today En Route to District

The Wright brothers' historic Kitty Hawk airplane, en route to Washington, will arrive in New York today aboard the aircraft carrier Palau.

The plane, which has been in London's Science Museum since 1928, will be transferred to a special van for transportation to the Smithsonian Institution.

The plane was shipped from England aboard the British liner Mauretania, which was diverted from New York to Halifax because of the longshoremen's strike.

A brief ceremony will be held when the aircraft carrier reaches New York. The plane will remain at the Brooklyn Navy Yard overnight, and begin the trip to Washington Saturday.

Police escorts will feature its passage through the larger cities. Navy and Marine honor guards will accompany it in Brooklyn and Philadelphia, where it will remain from Saturday night to Monday morning.

The plane will arrive at Baltimore at 11:30 a. m. Monday, and at the District line at 1:30 p. m. It will be accompanied by a police escort from the District line to the Smithsonian Institution, where it will become the featured exhibit of the National Air Museum.

Blaze Routs 5 Rooming House Residents, Trapped Fireman Burned on Face, Hands

A fireman was burned yesterday and five residents were routed by a fire which broke out in the basement apartment of a two-story brick-front rooming house at 1917 H st. ne. and burned into the first floor.

Pvt. Dale H. Valentine, 33, of 3715 Shepherd st., Brentwood, Md., received first and second degree burns on both hands when he groped his way down the stairs from the second story. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Vanentine, who is in No. 11 engine company but was detailed to No. 13 truck company yesterday, said he entered a second-floor window by way of a ladder to see if any residents were trapped upstairs. Because of the smoke, he was unable to get back to the ladder and had to use the stairway. He was burned as he reached the ground floor.

Among those who escaped from the burning house was Floyd Carter, night employe of The Washington Post, who was asleep when the fire broke out and fled in pajamas and bathrobe. Others were Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Revolia Rogers, who manages the rooming house, Vinson Good, 10, and his cousin, Charles Montgomery, 9. Vinson lives in the basement apartment with his parents, who were out at the time.

A next-door neighbor, Mrs. Mary Marshall, smelled smoke and phoned the Fire Department at 12:36 p. m., and a box alarm was sounded five minutes later.

Less than an hour later, a fire in a grease flue on the roof of Kann's department store, 8th st. and Market sp. nw., was quickly extinguished, but apparatus tied up streetcar traffic in the vicinity for almost half an hour.

The firemen reached the roof by ladders and many customers and employes in the store were unaware of the blaze.

Supreme Court Hears Marzani Case Today

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court today will be asked to set aside the conviction of Carl Aldo Marzani, former State Department employe who was sentenced to serve one to three years in 1947 for concealing Communist affiliations while employed by the Government.

Originally convicted on 11 counts of making false statements to the Government, Marzani succeeded through the United States Court of Appeals in having nine of the counts dismissed under the statute of limitations. He is currently free on bond.

The two remaining charges involve a conversation Marzani had with Anthony J. Panuch, then deputy to the Assistant Secretary of State in which the former denied having been connected with the Communist Party.

Law Not Violated, Defense Says

Defense counsel will argue today that statements made in "informal" conversation with Panuch do not constitute a violation of the false-statement statute.

They will stress that "no suitable notice" was given Marzani before the talks, that he might be violating a law.

[In the conversation at issue, Marzani had spoken to Panuch regarding a request for resignation.]

The defense also holds that:

1. The trial court ruled out certain evidence merely because there were nine Negroes on the jury.

2 The evidence brought out under the nine counts which were later ruled out prejudiced the jurors in considering the two counts which remained.

Lawyers' Guild Aiding Marzani

In reply the Government denies the validity of the first argument and contends that the evidence brought in through the nine counts, later dropped, was relevant in showing a deliberate plan to lie in the Panuch conversations.

The National Lawyers' Guild, as "friend of the court," has submitted a brief in behalf of Marzani. Representing Marzani are Attorneys Allan J. Roseberg and Osmond K. Fraenkel. For the Government are Philip B. Perlman, Solicitor General; Alexander M. Campbell Assistant Attorney General; Robert S. Erdahl and Irving Shapiro, assistants.

Yule Display Planned for Silver Spring

Merchants of the Silver Spring Shopping Center will spend more than $3000 for a Christmas display in the center, Colesville rd. and Georgia ave., it was announced yesterday.

Santa Claus will arrive Friday, November 26, to make his daily headquarters in Holiday House, especially constructed in the center. Thousands of lights will form a canopy over the parking area in front of the stores.

A 20-foot Christmas tree decorated in silver and lights, on top of a service station, will form the hub for the string of lights to the marquee, 50 feet away. The Yule spirit will be carried out by three large tableaux above the center's marquee. They will be lighted at night.

Holiday operations were taken over this year by the shopping center merchants. They were inaugurated last year by the Retail Merchants Committee.

Meanwhile, the Retail Merchants Committe of the Silver Spring Board of Trade has announced it will decorate Silver Spring's Holiday Lane along Georgia ave. from the District Line to Cameron st. More than $5000 has been authorized for street decorations, according to Ralph Lutz, chairman. Illumination will begin December 3, with ceremonies at Jesup Blair Park, at the entrance to Silver Spring.

The shopping center's program will include radio broadcasts over Station WGAY Mondays through Fridays at the Holiday House. Beginning December 10, special broadcasts in which school children will participate will be held Monday through Saturday.

Three 'Creeper' Theft Gang Suspects Identified; Arraignment Today

Three alleged members of a "creeper" theft gang that has been preying on downtown office and Government buildings were paraded in a special lineup at Police Headquarters yesterday.

Police said the men were identified by 20 persons who viewed the lineup.

The three, arrested at their homes Wednesday night, are Reginald D. Beaver, 25, of 1146 3d st. nw.; Joseph W. Pitt, 20, of 2425 1st st. nw., and Calvin Walker, 25, of 634½ L st. nw.

They were charged with grand larceny and each held in $5000 bond. They will be arraigned this morning before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Police said they still are searching for two other members of a gang that, in the past several months, has taken property valued at about $5000 from buildings of the State, Treasury and Commerce Departments and such downtown buildings as the Munsey Building and the National Press Building.

Police said the usual procedure was for the thieves to "creep" into offices while workers were at lunch. They would empty pocketbooks and desk drawers of valuables and then disappear.

Beaver, Pitt and Walker were arrested by precinct detectives of the First Precinct who worked on the case with members of the Secret Service and special investigators for the Public Buildings Administration.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Aubrey Tolson, head of the general assignment squad, reported "nothing new" in the investigation into the theft of 3000 garments valued at $25,000 from the Luna Cleaners plant, 1605 14th st. nw., early this week.

Housebreaking, which he often investigates, struck home Wednesday night, Detective Sergt. James K. Hunter of the special investigation squad painfully informed reporters yesterday.

Hunter and his wife left their home, at 6805 Shepherd st., Landover, Md., for a visit. During their absence from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m., the house was looted of $85, a box of .38-caliber revolver bullets and a $5 bottle of cordial.

Policeman Faces Trial Board Today

Pvt. James B. Gilbert, 41, a motorcycle policeman, will go before the police trial board at 10 a.m. today on charges which resulted from his arrest in Prince Georges County October 31.

He is charged with conduct prejudicial to the good order of the department and with failing to report to roll call on time.

Gilbert's story is that he was returning in his car to his home in Boulevard Heights, Md., early on October 31, when he started to chase a speeder in the District and followed him into Maryland.

Prince Georges County police say they were called to the home of Mathias Simmons, in Meadows, Md., that morning. They said Simmons told them Gilbert had forced his way into the house saying he was seeking a suspect and refused to leave.

On Simmons' complaint, Gilbert was taken to the Upper Marlboro station and charged with disorderly conduct. When the case came up in Upper Marlboro Police Court, Simmons did not appear so charges were dropped.

Two Trapped In Stolen Car Plead Guilty

A 24-year-old motorist, who was trapped by police at 13th and Q sts. nw. Wednesday night after side-swiping several parked cars in a stolen car, yesterday pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to charges of:

Taking property without right, driving without a District permit, failing to observe an official traffic sign, failing to report an accident and two counts of leaving after colliding.

He is Wallace G. Johnson of 2211 L st. nw., who was ordered held under $1500 bond. A companion, James Pendleton, 18, of 1126 New Hampshire ave. nw., arrested with Johnson, pleaded guilty to taking property without a right and was ordered held under $500. Judge Thomas D. Quinn set December 2 for date of sentencing.

Police blocked the road and trapped the auto after a cab driver saw the car strike a parked auto and keep on going at Connecticut and Florida aves. nw. The cab driver followed, giving his dispatcher a running radio account of the chase, which was relayed to police.

Excess Profits Tax Opposed

Doughton. "Then I can discuss any proposed changes."

A high ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee, who asked not to be identified, meanwhile predicted flatly that "there won't be an excess profits tax." This source said an analysis of voting records on both sides of the aisle convinced him there won't be enough votes to pass such a tax even if it is presented by the President.

Knutson Wants Taxes Hiked for Corporations

By The Associated Press

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.), author of the law that cut individuals' taxes, said yesterday the corporation income tax ought to be boosted.

"A number of large corporations," Knutson told reporters, "are making too much money."

He said he has "given up any thought" of further slashes in taxes for the individual.

Knutson said he is going to leave those ideas with the new chairman of the congressional committee that writes tax bills.

For corporations, he mentioned a 4 per cent tax hike that would bring in about $1,100,000,000. The rate now is 38 per cent on income over $50,000, after the usual deductions are allowed.

Knutson pointed to the steel industry as an example of companies he said are making too much money.

Indian Steamer Upsets; 500 Reported Drowned

Calcutta, India, Nov. 18 (AP).—Reports from Bihar Province said at least 500 persons drowned today when a heavily laden steamer capsized.

The people aboard were returning from a fair. A sudden rush of passengers to one side caused the vessel to keel over, the reports said.

Revolt Flares on Cheju, 70 Miles Off Korea

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—revolt flared on Cheju Island, 70 miles off the Korean coast, today, and President Syngman Rhee ordered the island placed under martial law.

He ordered the commander of the Seventh National Regiment, stationed on Cheju to suppress the uprising "at the earliest possible time."

Scared Horse Subdued By Douglas in London

London, Nov. 18 (AP).—American Ambassador Lewis Douglas got a polite British cheer today for subduing an ornery horse with a frightened lady aboard.

The animal, startled by traffic lights at Hyde Park's Albert Gate, reared in front of Douglas' car yesterday.

New Police Manual With 500 Changes In Rules Supersedes Old Book Today

A new District police manual incorporating 500 changes from the present 11-year-old rule book goes into effect today.

The manual was put into final shape by Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher after consultation with a board of police officers headed by Inspector Walter Storm. The new regulations include the following principal changes:

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett is given absolute authority empowering him to transfer any man in the department, regardless of rank, except as otherwise prohibited by law. Such changes previously had to be routinely approved by the Commissioners.

All policemen must carry their badges and pistols while off duty within the District, maintain a telephone at home, and when requested, give explanations of off-duty movements and acquaintances.

Policemen may legally break into a building to make an arrest without a warrant "when a felony has been committed, or when he (the police officer) has probable cause to believe that felony has been committed; and when he has probable cause to believe that the felon is within the building involved and after he has identified himself, stated the nature of his business, demanded entrance and has been refused; and where the circumstances of the case are such that to attempt to secure a warrant would, in all probability, enable the felon to flee and prevent the officer from making the arrest. In all cases where it is possible for the officer to secure a warrant he should do so before attempting to break and enter and arrest without a warrant."

In case of juveniles a police investigation should be made to determine if the case can be disposed of without launching a child into a police record and Juvenile Court procedure.

Police Say 2 Girls Used as 'Bait' For Crime School

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18 (U.P.).—A 50-year-old housewife was held today on a charge of running a "crime school" and using two girls, 11 and 14 years old, as "bait" to get students.

Police said the school was responsible for one armed robbery and another attempt last week.

Three youths arrested for the robberies told police that Mrs. Florence Moomaw planned their "jobs" for them.

Operation of the school was revealed by the two girls who lived with Mrs. Moomaw. The 11-year-old girl also told authorities she had been assaulted by one of the three youths.

Red Tampering Shows 'Voice' Bites, Allen Says

By The Associated Press

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said yesterday that Soviet efforts to jam the Voice of America demonstrate that the State Department's foreign broadcasts carry a painful sting to Moscow.

He said in the State Department's official bulletin that 18 Soviet transmitters have been found to be taking part in an effort to drown out American official broadcasts in the Russian language.

Two Special Police Boards Are Set Up

The District Commissioners yesterday selected members of the Special Police Trial Board and the Complaint Review Board which become effective as part of the new Police Manual today.

McNeil

George E. McNeil, former president of the District Bar Association and former Assistant U. S. Attorney here, was named as the civilian member of the Special Police Trial Board. The board will include two police officers above the rank of captain and will hear cases involving complaints by civilians against policemen.

In addition, the Commissioners designated nine other attorneys affiliated with the District Bar Association and 10 from the Washington Bar Association as alternate members of the board. As trials are arranged attorneys will be selected by draw from the panel of names submitted by the two groups.

The District Bar Association group includes Hilary W. Costello, Fred J. Icenhower, Richard L. Tedrow, Northcutt Ely, Ralph Stein, Robert I. Rudolph, Allen J. Krouse, James C. Toomey and Roger Ratcliff.

The Washington Bar Association group is headed by Maurice R. Weeks, association president, and includes former Municipal Court Judge James A. Cobb, Charles H. Houston, Augustus W. Gray, William A. Powell, Wesley S. Williams, Frank D. Reeves, former Judge William C. Hueston of Indiana; Emory B. Smith and Austin L. Fickling.

The Commissioners appointed Joseph A. Wilner, attorney and businessman; Floyd D. Akers, auto dealer, and William J. Mileham, venetian blind dealer and the District's chief air raid warden during World War II. This board will review complaints by civilians referred to it by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett as of "questionable" merit.

Dr. Byrd Acts On Negro Issue

State, especially at Howard University.

6. Arrangements for cooperative graduate work between the University's College Park facilities, Morgan State College and Princess Anne, with heads of departments at College Park supervising all studies and research at all three places.

There are at present no Negroes in the university's graduate school, although the university's law school in Baltimore has admitted Negroes since a mandatory court decision 13 years ago.

The recommended program, which would afford Negro students University of Maryland degrees and the advantages of College Park graduate facilities, was termed by the university president a program of "gradual integration" with "controlled segregation" to produce "a minimum amount of friction."

Dr. Byrd said he had not gone into the matter of where Negro graduate students would live in College Park, if any came there to study, but many graduate students in all colleges live off the campus.

"We are asking the Legislature to set the policy," he said, "and then let us work out how we can do it."

The university now, he said, is required by a State law passed in 1892, and under terms of its charter written in 1916, to admit all students "regardless of race, color or creed."

In addition to these State laws, he asserted the Supreme Court requires the State to maintain equal facilities, and that he regarded his plan as one to achieve this with the minimum expense and conflict.

With respect to Negroes continuing at Morgan State and Princess Anne for undergraduate study, he said he felt Negro students "would never have equal opportunity" at the main campus in extracurricular activities, such as student government, fraternity life, athletics, etc., and that Negroes themselves realize this situation.

In regard to graduate schools, however, he said he felt it "foolish" for the State to duplicate present facilities, and that even if they were duplicated it would be impossible to provide the Negro units with adequate research and professional staffs to direct equal training.

The Pittsburgh Courier, a Negro newspaper, quoted Dr. Byrd as saying Negroes might be admitted to College Park next fall. Dr. Byrd said that depends entirely upon the Legislature.

Marylanders Thanked For Help to Austria

2 Thugs Beat Doctor, Take Instruments

Two thugs beat and robbed a physician in the street early yesterday and then forced him to take them to his home, where they stole medical instruments worth $500 and some garments.

Victim of the robbery was Dr. Walter E. McCawley of 1449 South Carolina ave. se.

Dr. McCawley said the two men struck him on the head with a blunt instrument at about 1:30 a. m. and knocked him to the ground in the 1300 block of South Carolina ave. se.

He had only $1 in his billfold. They took it. They also took his identification cards and a tan leather case containing a rosary.

The physician said what he thought was a pistol was then jabbed in his back and the men ordered him to take them to his home. When they entered the house, Dr. McCawley said, the thugs blindfolded him with a pillow case.

He said they left with his leather bag, containing instruments valued at $500, and several women's and children's garments.

Three Arrested In Montgomery Gambling Case

Three persons reportedly operating a numbers and horse racing lottery patronized by employes of the Army Map Service, Brookmont, Md., were picked up yesterday by Montgomery County Police.

Arrested were: Joseph C. Covington, 61, of 1200 Pennsylvania ave. se.; Rogers J. Whittington, 21, of 6100 MacArthur blvd., and Mrs. Marie M. Rettig, 43, of 1519 N. Capitol st. Covington was charged with possession of numbers and horse racing slips and the other two with gaming. Bond on all three was set at $2000. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for December 6 at 10 a. m. in Bethesda Police Court.

Police said the trio operated in Hilltop Tavern, 6100 MacArthur blvd., Brookmont, near the Army Map Service. Covington acted as "runner" for a District gambler, they reported, for bets delivered to Whittington, a bartender, and Mrs. Rettig, a waitress.

CIO Officials Cool To AFL's Latest Merger Proposal

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 18 (AP).—High CIO officials today threw cool water on the AFL's annual proposal for a merger of the two organizations.

Recent cooperation between the AFL and CIO in the political and international fields has stirred up fresh talk of labor unity. At Cincinnati, the AFL convention called on AFL leaders to approach the CIO and "reach out and grasp them by the hand and urge them to come back into the AFL."

The CIO may issue a counter-invitation, on its own terms, at its own convention here next week. But these bids mean very little if fundamental obstacles remain in the way of a merger.

CIO leaders are convinced fundamental obstacles do remain. They point to recent efforts of AFL craft unions to move into steel plants and other industries where CIO industrial unions now represent all the workers, regardless of craft.

Engineer 48 Years Retires; Never Got Past Cumberland

The Washington Post

END OF THE LINE—Engineer Edward H. Brown, ending 48 years' service with the B&O, pulls into Eckington yards

By John London
Post Reporter

Edward H. Brown, who has been railroading here 48 years—and never traveled farther than Cumberland, Md.—reluctantly arrived at the end of the line yesterday.

The leathery veteran of 70 jockeyed a diesel iron horse for the last time in the Eckington yards, as sentimental B. & O. buddies clapped and cheered.

Brakemen, conductors, engineers and firemen presented the strapping engineer with a purse lined with about $80. Also a pipe and tobacco for the reminiscing days ahead in the Alexandria home he's buying at 235 Lynhaven dr.

"Hate to leave the track," talk-minded Brown told reporters. "But either I stay and lose $45 of that $159 a month pension or retire."

So he retired, when the $50 silver pocket watch, on a gold chain, that's been keeping him on schedule 47 years, said it was 3 p. m.

The son of a switchman, born in Glen Dale, Md., said, "I came off a farm in 1900, and just wanted to do railroading."

"Got a job in the shop working on the turntable, then went to firing for five years, and got promoted to running."

Mostly he's hauled freight cars around the yards or on runs to Baltimore and Brunswick, Md. Once he rode as far as Cumberland, 156 miles, he said, but that was only once and a long time ago at that.

A week's vacation, maybe, not sure where, then he'll get a job—night watchman, or something like that. He'll need work, he said, to help pay for the house where he lives with his daughter, Anita, who has been out of work a year, and his wife, Nelly, whom he met in 1922.

"I lived at 919 8th st. ne.," he said, "and she was cashier in a grocery store and moved into the rooming house across the street."

"I just sat on my porch and flirted with her," Brown recalled. He posed for photographers, said so long to his railroad friends. Then, with his working overalls and lunch box tucked under his arms, he took a last look at the tracks, shrugged his broad shoulders and strode off.

Dope Den Probe Begun After 4 Are Arrested

Four men were arrested yesterday and turned over to the narcotics squad for investigation after police found evidence of a possible dope den in the basement of 1013 M st. nw. Pvts. Sam Weiner and M. E. Swope of the Second Precinct said the men were apprehended after the officers found empty packets, a syringe and several needles at the M st. address. No narcotics were discovered, police said.

Refusal To Testify

Two months ago we commended a proposal before the Committee on Un-American Activities that any Federal employe who refuses to testify before a congressional committee or a grand jury on grounds of self-incrimination should no longer be entitled to hold his job. A New York statute having this effect had been brought to the attention of the committee by Mr. Morris Ernst. The immediate problem was to induce witnesses accused of membership in the Communist Party to testify, although none of the witnesses standing on their right to avoid self-incrimination were then in the Government service. Now, however, an entirely new use for such a statute appears. If the proposal were in effect, it would have the effect of relieving the chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities of his seat in Congress.

Representative J. Parnell Thomas has been indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of defrauding the Government by making false salary claims and by obtaining a kickback from salaries paid to employes of the committee of which he is the head. We think his refusal to testify before the grand jury regarding these charges proves once more his unfitness to be a member of the House of Representatives. Democracy operates in the open. Men who take upon themselves the responsibility of public servants must at all times be ready to account for their stewardship. Refusal to do so does not, of course, prove that they are guilty of a crime. But it does deprive them of public confidence, and we think it should also deprive them of the right to hold public office.

If such a law is enacted by the Eighty-first Congress, it will not apply retroactively to Mr. Thomas. But his case points up the need for requiring all legislators and legislative as well as executive employes to speak up frankly before congressional committees or grand juries. The Committee on Un-American Activities may not be interested in pressing such a measure because of the predicament of its retiring chairman. Certainly, however, some other committee should sponsor a bill for this purpose.

Our Cultural Heritage

Can the tide of what is sometimes known as "progress" be stemmed or at least deflected enough to save some of America's most valuable cultural and historical assets? Can others already suffering decay be restored to their original form and beauty? These are questions the National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings, whose second annual meeting has just been held here in Washington, hopes to answer affirmatively. The vigor with which this yearling organization has grasped hold of the problem promises a good measure of success—and indicates that the time was ripe for just such action.

A planned extension of the Pennsylvania turnpike, for instance, will pass through instead of around Washington's encampment at Valley Forge. A proposed bridge across the York River will forever mar the Yorktown battlefield where Cornwallis' surrender capped victory in the Revolution. Evidences of aboriginal civilizations in river valleys around the country will be or are already being flooded behind rising dams. Nearby sites as famous as Oak Hill and Woodlawn are not yet out of danger of loss to what Ambassador Bonnet calls "the patrimony of culture and of beauty and of history" that is our heritage from past generations and should be our bequest to those that follow.

Some discretion must of course be exercised in selecting those buildings, sites, and monuments whose historic associations or artistic values call for conservation or restoration. A choice must always be made between progress and preservation, but the important thing is that the choice be made on sound criteria, balancing in each instance the merits of the past against the demands of the present. This is the task the National Council has set for itself and for the national trust it is asking Congress to charter.

The United States, perhaps because of its relative youth, is almost alone now in lacking such a Nation-wide establishment to hold and maintain and exhibit to the public those evidences of genius particularly associated with the Nation's life. A similar national trust, modeled incidentally on a Massachusetts organ, was founded in England in 1895 and incorporated in 1907. France has close to 30,000 historic and artistic sites under the protection of the state. Along with Ambassador Bonnet, we have no fear that the preservation of what our forebears accomplished will lead to a static veneration of the past. Rather, it should give each succeeding generation a better appreciation of the great achievements already a part of our culture and an enhanced will to build as greatly.

The Chauvinist

The French Communists, who have all but disrupted the economy of the country by a series of strikes, having no other purpose than to defeat the Marshall Plan, have gained an unexpected and doubtless unwelcome ally. General de Gaulle, who may return to power before the end of the year under whatever terms he may see fit to prescribe, has now announced his opposition to the Marshall Plan, if it means the restoration of the industries of the Ruhr Valley to German ownership. In the same interview General de Gaulle also repudiated the Western Union defense alliance recently concluded at Brussels, for the reason that supreme command of the united military forces has not been given to a Frenchman.

It is not to M. de Gaulle's views on the Ruhr that we take exception; for on this point, as our readers know, we have been sympathetic with him. What we must protest, and protest most indignantly, is M. de Gaulle's method of setting forth his views in the form of an ultimatum. His haughty, arbitrary, dictatorial, and highly irregular manner has now made it impossible for the other nations of the Western Union to accept his views without appearance of weakness. This may add to M. de Gaulle's prestige among a people still suffering from the humiliation of 1940; but it does not add anything to recovery of Europe or to the peace of the world. Indeed, in one afternoon M. de Gaulle appears to have undone eighteen months of patient effort to assure the political stabilization and economic recovery of Europe.

It has been well understood in the United States that General de Gaulle is a patriot whose primary concern has been for what he considers the interests of France. Very few Americans had fault to find with him for that; indeed, in the war days M. de Gaulle enjoyed a very considerable support from American public opinion in his fight against those who had envisaged the future of France as that of a subordinate power, under British and American domination. Whether M. de Gaulle realized it or not, this support was of great value to him, and probably had more to do with the grudging reversal of the French policy of the Roosevelt Administration than any of the general's own actions.

But what now becomes clear is that M. de Gaulle is not merely a patriot, but a chauvinist of an extreme type. The destinies of peoples other than the French are of interest to him only to the extent that they may bear upon the future greatness of France. His dream, apparently, is to restore France to the position it enjoyed under Louis XIV, before that monarch involved himself in a series of wars and diplomatic blunders. Just how M. de Gaulle proposes to effect this grandiose restoration we do not see. Perhaps he will revert to his former game of seeking to play the Russians off against the British and Americans, a game that ended rather disastrously for both France and himself.

It would be well for Frenchmen, before indorsing the statements of M. de Gaulle, to consider the possible effect of them on the American taxpayer. The American taxpayer is, of course, a long-suffering animal, but he is somewhat less a fool than Europeans commonly believe. He knows very well that he has condemned himself and his children to heavy burdens, for the sake of aiding the recovery of Europe, including France. He knows that for some time to come the dollars advanced to France under the Marshall Plan will compete with his own for goods and services in the American market.

He knows also that since it became evident that Soviet Russia was determined upon a course of aggression, there have been two schools of American opinion as to what policy the United States should pursue. One school has advised that the rest of the world be left to shift for itself and that the expenditure of American efforts and treasure be concentrated in the defense of this hemisphere. The other and dominant school has insisted that the destiny of the United States is inseparable from that of Western Europe. Now, however, Americans are confronted with an example of French isolationism more extreme than any of their own. At a moment when they had almost agreed in attributing the evils of the twentieth century to the malignant spirit of nationalism they are confronted with an example of nationalism as extravagant and bizarre as that of Napoleon or Bismarck, yet utterly without power to realize itself.

Docking ERP

One consequence of the East Coast longshoremen's strike is to cut down shipments to Europe under the Marshall Plan. The effect so far is not too serious, but prolongation of the strike might put a bad crimp in European recovery. The strike does not affect Gulf ports, so that normal shipments from those harbors are continuing. Among other things, this includes bulk oil in particular, and some grain. The situation on the East Coast is spotty, with bulk products such as coal and grain still being loaded at some ports. Since these are the most vital of ECA shipments, the reduced flow of them to Europe may carry through the crisis.

Non-bulk cargoes, however, are completely stopped and the reopening of the Canadian ports offers only a dubious alternative outlet for them. As long as the strike lasts the stream of recovery exports in such things as machinery, trucks, tractors, railroad equipment, cotton, fats and oils, and a host of other items—both for immediate consumption and for productive uses—will be no more than a trickle. It has been estimated that ECA goods are piling up on the docks at the rate of 20,000 tons a day. The cumulative consequence of this drought in shipments to Europe can only be to slow down progress toward European self-sufficiency. At worst it could postpone the day when the burden of recovery aid will lift from American shoulders.

The difficulty of distinguishing at the docks between ECA-financed and other shipments of nonbulk articles is difficult and may be insuperable under present export methods. However, Mr. Margolis, acting for the Conciliation Service today, might well suggest to the longshoremen that pending full settlement of the strike, they load all ERP cargoes that can be properly identified as such. The wisdom of this proceeding should be obvious to the longshoremen. Surely they cannot believe that depriving workers in western Europe of food, fuel, and productive goods will strengthen the union's position in the strike here. Just as the union is continuing to load Army goods, so should it, we believe, make every reasonable exception it can for economic recovery goods.

Curb On Filibusters

When the Democratic Party organizes the Senate in January, it will be confronted by a momentous question of strategy. Should it accept the Republican plan for the defeat of filibusters or should it once more rely upon good luck to get its legislative program enacted in spite of the unlimited debate provision of the present rules? Senator Barkley, who will preside over the Senate as Vice President after January 20, is known to favor curbing the filibusterers, but many of the other party leaders who will be taking over the reins in the Senate are said to be very hesitant about it.

The Republicans who have been in control of the Senate for the last two years were planning to adopt an antifilibuster rule because they had pointedly experienced the frustration that comes of substituting endless talk for prompt legislative action. A committee appointed by Senator Taft to investigate the matter is ready to propose a change in the rules permitting debate to be cut off at any time by a simple majority vote. At present a filibuster can be stopped only if two thirds of the Senators present vote to apply cloture. The instances in which this cutoff device has been invoked are extremely rare. As a preventive of filibusters, it is a flat failure.

One has to remember that attempts to apply cloture in the Senate have often failed to win even majority support in the past. Senators are still jealous of their right of unlimited debate. Possibly more important is the fact that some legislators have gone on record favoring such measures as the anti-poll-tax bill for political reasons and then have voted to allow continuation of the filibuster against the bill because of grave doubts as to the constitutionality of that measure. No weapon against the filibuster can guarantee success when tactics of this sort are employed. But at least the right of a majority to terminate debate at any time would center responsibility for the fate of any bill on the party in control of the Senate. That would be an improvement of great significance.

Republican sponsorship of this reform should not deter the new Democratic majority from putting it into operation. After all, the Congressional Reorganization Act of 1946 was passed by a Democratic Congress and first applied by the Republicans. The inescapable fact is that the filibuster is a chain around the neck of any party that happens to control the Senate. Its perpetuation is grossly unfair to conscientious legislators, to the President and to the people. The election has given the Democratic Party an opportunity to take over from the Republicans the honor and the credit of instituting this notable reform.

World Politics

To the small but distinguished group of American periodicals devoted to the study of world affairs a newcomer has been added. The first issue of World Politics, to be published quarterly by the Yale Institute of International Studies, has just come to hand. Volume 1, Number 1, is always an intriguing invitation to examine the content of a new magazine and to speculate about its place in the field of its particular interest. In this instance the invitation is broader. Arriving at a time when some of its elders are celebrating upward of a quarter-century of service, World Politics seems to symbolize the belatedly self-cognizant maturity of the United States as a world power.

Another quarterly, Foreign Affairs, issued its twenty-fifth anniversary number only a year or so ago. The Foreign Policy Association, whose research publications and efforts in the field of popular education are well known, observes its thirtieth birthday this Thursday. Both these efforts began just after the first World War. The United States then had achieved status as a great power, but relatively few people recognized all the responsibilities of that position—among them the duty of trying to understand the rest of the world. The second World War brought home, as the first had not, the fact that the United States had "arrived." And to fill the wider need for information a number of publications have sprouted in recent years.

Judging from the first issue and the editor's promise of future performance, the newest addition is not materially different in approach from most of its predecessors. It is written by and for the experts and specialists in foreign politics. We welcome World Politics to the American scene in the confidence that it will contribute to knowledge of the intricacies of world affairs and provide the grounds for informed opinion. We hope, at the same time, to see more and wider efforts added to those already in existence for educating the layman in his own personal stake in world politics. That is a job still to be done.

Mid-European Union

Our participation in launching the idea of a mid-European federation got a valuable sidelight from Dr. Ruhmann in your issue of November 4. Though this participation is a strong historical support for our disinterested share in the European Recovery Program and the Western Union, its center of gravity lies in its moral value. For the American tradition has always been to preserve our own independence while simultaneously helping others to gain or to maintain theirs. We have realized that the best guarantee of our own independence is the independence of others. That is why we could never recognize the annexation of the Baltic states.

To stop short of declaring our stand, as Mr. Lippmann did (also in your issue of November 4) by saying merely that we would reject appeasement which surrendered our vital interests or betrayed our moral principles, would be to erect a moral Maginot Line. Between this moral Maginot Line and the recognition of the iron curtain there would be practically no difference. It is in the trend of our history and it is our national duty to insist on the independence of all peoples, even the Russian people. Remembering this, and remembering specifically our positive—not merely defensive—role in the Mid-European Declaration of 1918, we may ask what should be our declared stand regarding mid-European union now. And we may ask also what should be Mr. Lippmann's attitude toward this stand.

Shanghai

Ernest T. Nash's letter of November 13 qualifies as one of the silliest pieces of muddleheaded sophistry that has appeared in your columns for some time. To describe Shanghai as "that great Asiatic outpost of democracy" is just sheer nonsense—at least, I feel sure that the teeming masses of poverty-stricken, miserable Chinese, whose breed in that city is slightly more numerous than that of its foreign residents, will be quixotically stirred and profoundly touched by the delicate reminder that "British political courage and British arms" saved and preserved them . . . in that democratic stronghold.

What has "British leadership" in furnishing a "democratic city government for Shanghai" (democratic for whom??) to do with the furthering of democracy throughout China and its attendant effects on her economy, society, and culture? Historical observation suggests that the primary objective of British as well as other foreign (chiefly European) nations in China was to push a program variously described as financial or mercantile imperialism.

It is quite a revelation now to discover that "British political courage and . . . arms" were engaged in saving that "great Asiatic bastion of democracy," where, since foreign intrusion really started to make progress in the early 1800s, the Manchu despots, dictatorial "strong men" (e.g., Yuan-Shih-k'ai), provincial warlords, and an effete form of pseudo-republicanism under Chiang and his increasingly affluent familial ties, have held sway over the Chinese people.

Contrary to Mr. Nash's apparent inside information, the majority of us labored under the impression that on VJ-Day not American military and economic power but Chinese civil administration succeeded to what Mr. Nash describes as "British responsibilities in Shanghai." China, for reasons probably metaphysical, was listed among the "Big Five" powers allied in the recent war. Since Shanghai purportedly lies within China proper, the city would clearly revert, after alien occupation, to the jurisdictional sovereignty of a country upon which was conferred the legal fiction of equality with Britain and the other Big Five nations during the prosecution of World War II.

Whether American arms and supplies should now be poured into the Chinese sieve, kept porous by Chiang's inept and corrupt regime, is at best a debatable question. But to have someone urge that this assistance be based on the asinine shibboleth that "every American voice should insist that democracy is not betrayed at Shanghai," can not fail to recall another classic inanity bandied about not too long ago, viz, ". . . making the world safe for democracy."

Armistice Day

What is the sense of the United States continuing to celebrate Armistice Day as a national holiday?

World War I cost the people of the United States in the neighborhood of 40 million dollars, as well as millions of personnel casualties in killed and maimed. In the settlement, Germany was to pay enough indemnity to compensate for the monetary cost. Did she pay 10 per cent of that cost? Could she pay for our killed and maimed at any price?

In the light of after events, who granted whom the armistice? After devasting Belgium and France, and a goodly section of Russia, Germany "acepted the Armistice to save her own country from like devastation. It was most emphatically an armistice, even if it did last some 20 years. There never was a bona fide peace. Not on the part of Germany. During the 20 years of the armistice, Germany was busy taking advantage of the lull to prepare for the future, while we looked on and said, "Naughty, naughty," and not too loudly at that.

When ready, Germany started World War II. Where was the armistice then? What good had it done for us? World War II cost us close to 200 billion dollars and vastly more casualties than World War I.

Why should we continue to celebrate our national stupidity on an armistice that, in the end, darned near got the shirt licked off us?

Revamped Foreign Policy

The communication just addressed to the Big Four powers by Messrs. Lie and Evatt is an indication of the concern felt by the rest of the world over the present state of international tension. It is also an indication that the rest of the world does not hold the Western powers entirely blameless for this state of affairs.

So far as the United States is concerned, our responsibility—if any—is to be found within the substance of the so-called bi-partisan foreign policy. There are some, apparently, who would like to have this policy treated as an article of accepted doctrine. They, as I shall argue is demonstrated by the recent election, are in the minority.

If one reviews the events of the past two years, and especially the running commentary upon them, the evidence cumulates that during this period the bipartisan foreign policy underwent a gradual evolution; it became a largely Republican policy. This was particularly striking in the months preceding the election. Had the election turned out in accordance with the confident anticipations of those who were chiefly responsible for shaping the recent conduct of foreign affairs, no changes would have seemed necessary. The bipartisan policy would have seemed wholly suitable for adoption by the new Administration.

In the event, it is largely unsuitable. It is inconsistent in many of its aspects with traditional Democratic Party views of how international affairs should be conducted. And, if pursued without change, it is calculated to bring the Democratic Party to early defeat because of the incompatibility between the recent trend of international events and the election mandate for a constructive program of domestic legislation.

Unless the Democratic Party succeeds in carrying through to conclusion a program of constructive welfare legislation its electors will assuredly conclude that their trust was misplaced. Yet how can such a program be carried through successfully unless international tension can somehow be eased? Otherwise, ever-increasing expenditures (where shall they stop?) for our own rearmament and that of western Europe must be superimposed upon continuing expenditures for foreign aid and for a broadened domestic welfare program.

Even with higher taxes, this would necessitate a choice between permitting inflation to continue or imposing price and rationing controls. The former would cost the Democratic Party the support of labor. And to think that the latter is a feasible alternative is seriously to misread the temper of the times.

It is scarcely conceivable that the country could be united behind a policy which attempted to blend the reactionary elements implicit in "cold war" with a domestic program which is bound to be viewed by some as "socialistic experimentation." Price control is unworkable unless the objectives it furthers are widely accepted. Such acceptance can certainly not be obtained for a policy which seems to support vested interests abroad while opposing them at home.

Unless this fact is appreciated and quickly acted upon by the leaders of the Democratic Party, by its membership in Congress both new and old, and by organized labor, which is now in a position to influence Democratic Party policy profoundly for good or ill, irreparable harm may be worked within the next few months.

The fleeting opportunity to remove the men—is it necessary to name them?—who can be identified as architects of the more military aspects of the bipartisan policy, to place the conduct of foreign affairs in the hands of men who understand and accept the implications of the recent election, and to make a constructive reply to the Lie-Evatt note, must not be missed. It may never recur again.

Third Party Failure

EVER SINCE the election Henry Wallace and the Communists have been trying to explain away the pathetically small vote for the Wallace party. While the official total is not in, it is not likely to be much larger than the unofficial return of little more than a million votes.

The alibis have an empty sound. The failure cannot be explained away either by Wallace rhetoric or the gobbledygook of the Communist Party. Rejecting all forms of isolationism, the voters emphatically said no to Wallace's charge that the Marshall Plan is a device of Wall Street to involve the United States in a war with Russia.

To suggest, as Wallace has done, that the "Red Smear" contributed to the outcome is to evade the issue which is what the Third Party candidate did throughout his campaign. Facts spoke louder than words as it became more and more apparent that Wallace was following every twist and turn of the Moscow line.

IN THE LIGHT of the outcome, the Wallaceites can take little comfort in denouncing the "capitalist press." The Wallace campaign was fairly extensively reported and, with conspicuous exceptions, this was as objective as the reporting of the major party campaigns. It seemed to me that Wallace got a fairly frequent hearing on the radio.

To blame the poor showing on the "capitalist press" is to ignore previous denunciations of that press as impotent and discredited. It also conveniently ignores the fact that attacks in the press and on the radio directed against President Truman were sometimes as virulent and distorted as those aimed at Wallace. Newspapers with an estimated 80 per cent of all readers favored the election of Governor Dewey over Mr. Truman.

Very much the same preponderance of press support was given to FDR's Republican opponent in 1936 and 1940. The newspaper backing for Roosevelt, as war leader, was somewhat greater in '44. Quite clearly the press does not sway any great mass of voters.

Over and over again during the campaign Wallace demonstrated his political ineptitude. Seldom has any man in American political history been so ill equipped for the rough and tumble of campaigning.

Besides his impassioned and often windy rhetoric, summoned up in response to crowd applause, he brought to the contest little more than a grim and dogged persistence. Those who predicted he would withdraw before the election had no comprehension of the fires of frustration burning in the Wallace bosom. Measured in sheer human endurance, it was an extraordinary performance.

Fortunately he did not retire even though many of his old associates pleaded with him to get out, arguing that he could only contribute to the election of Dewey. If he had stepped out in the closing week or two, we should never have known the real weakness of the Wallace movement.

All this makes the big talk about the future of the Wallace party sound like just what it is—empty bombast. It is hard to see how Wallace, who is 60 years old, can be revived for any political purpose.

THE MAJOR claim to come out of the Wallace post-mortem in Chicago was that the Third Party forced Truman in his campaign to move left. Since that is not susceptible to any measurement (certainly not by polls), it will be argued for a long time to come.

The Wallaceites, in my opinion, can make out a fairly good case. One of the objectives of the Truman strategists was to recapture as much of the Wallace vote as possible by a strong New Deal line.

On the other hand, if the President really wanted to win reelection, he had no alternative but to take the liberal-labor side regardless of whether there had been a Third Party in the field. He had to win the support of organized labor and organized farmers and he did it by promising all that the New Deal had promised.

Strangely enough there are those on the extreme right who seem determined to give Wallace another and perhaps far more favorable opportunity. I mean those who are saying in the aftermath of the Truman victory that the will of the majority who voted for the candidate promising change and reform can be balked. They are saying that a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats can make the election meaningless.

In other words, they are saying that the democratic system is null and void. That, incidentally, is a kind of subversiveness which makes communism look almost respectable. Mr. Truman's victory came from those who believe in New Deal reforms; in the kind of changes the President talked about in his campaign. To frustrate it would be to hand Wallace an opportunity for the kind of comeback that now seems highly impossible.

To The Republicans

Take heart, my good friends; and have done with repining;
You have erred, to be sure;
but then, erring is human.
Yet you have to admit, when it comes to divining
(Forgiving or not), there's been only one Truman!

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Grand Alliance

SOMETHING OF great importance is about to take place. Despite previous denials, negotiations between Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett and the European Ambassadors on a North Atlantic pact are to be resumed almost immediately.

These negotiations are virtually certain to lead to an event of the first magnitude—a treaty which will be in effect a military alliance between the United States, Canada and a number of European countries. Although the whole matter has heretofore been wrapped in considerable mystery, it is thus worth examining just where the negotiations now stand, and what they are all about.

THE IMMEDIATE task of Lovett and the representatives of Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg is simply to write the treaty. It should be ready sometime in January, and will then be submitted for approval to the President, the Congress and the Canadian and European governments.

There will no doubt be disagreements on wording, but agreement on the broad outlines of the treaty has already in fact been reached. It will be modeled on the existing Rio pact. The heart of it will be that each member nation is committed to go to war against an aggressor if another member nation is attacked. To this basic commitment provisions for pooling of resources and mutual consultation will be added. And there will be two small loopholes.

One loophole, necessitated by the American constitutional system, will provide that the commitment is limited by the constitutional processes of the governments concerned. The other loophole will reserve to each government the right to determine for itself whether or not aggression has taken place.

All this is pretty well agreed. Yet a number of vital issues remain to be settled. The first of these is simply the question: Who is to be invited to join the pact? There are now seven prospective members. But there are six other nations to which invitations may be extended.

These are Norway, Denmark, Eire, Portugal, Iceland and, last but not least, Italy. There is little doubt that Italy and Portugal would quickly accept an invitation to join. Eire and Iceland are more doubtful. Norway and Denmark hope to avoid any break with their neighbor, Sweden, which is at the moment dead set against coming in. They are now trying to make some special regional arrangement with Sweden, but under any circumstances it is now probable that Norway and Denmark will accept if they are asked to subscribe to the pact.

But are those six countries to be asked to join? The French are more than doubtful, especially as regards Italy. They point to their own prewar experience as a tragic object lesson in the danger of making commitments which cannot be fulfilled. More practically, they fear that as a consequence of bringing in other countries, American aid in rearming Europe will be spread too thin, and the French share will thus be inadequate.

The American policy makers, on the other hand, are more and more convinced that Italy and the rest must be invited to join. They agree that under the peace treaty, any revision of which could be vetoed by the Soviets, Italy will remain a military liability. But the political effects of excluding Italy might be disastrous; to the Italians, and indeed to the Kremlin, it might seem an open declaration that Italy was to be thrown to the wolves. As for Norway, Denmark, Eire, Iceland and Portugal, a glance at the map is sufficient to suggest the strategic meaning of these countries.

The French have other worries. Before signing the pact, they would certainly like a commitment from this country on the specific amount of aid to be extended toward the rearmament of France. And they would also certainly welcome assurances that in the event of war the United States would base its strategy on holding Western Europe, rather than Spain or some other outpost.

No flat commitments on either point can be, or will be, made. Yet the American makers of policy are unanimously persuaded that the rearmament of Western Europe and the North Atlantic pact are inseparable, and the policy of arming Western Europe obviously implies the intention of holding Western Europe in case of war.

Thus French doubts on this score will no doubt be stilled. The strong probability is, moreover, that the pact will be extended despite French hesitations, if only because both Britain and the United States, the two most powerful signatories, favor its extension. Therefore, the consequences of the talks which are to start again in a few days may well be the organization of the whole great border area of the North Atlantic, excepting only Spain, into a vast defensive alliance, supported and underwritten by the might of a rearming United States. This will be a direct consequence of Soviet policy since the war, and it might lead the rulers in the Kremlin to wonder whether, after all, the game they have been playing is really worth the candle.

Md. Schools Ask Nearly 32 Millions

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (Spl.).—A budget request for $31,987,889 was submitted for 1950 today by Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, jr., State superintendent of schools, who also foreshadowed a greatly expanded building program for Prince Georges and Montgomery County schools.

Dr. Pullen said plans are now being drawn to seek between 10 million dollars and 15 million dollars for school construction during the next three to five years in each of the two counties.

The budget figure, 12.5 per cent higher than current appropriations, covers expenditures for the school system during the coming fiscal year.

Father Burke Wins Award For Theology

The Rev. Eugene M. Burke, assistant professor of dogmatic theology at Catholic University, has been named winner of the annual Cardinal Spellman theological award, it was announced yesterday.

Burke

Cardinal Spellman presented Father Burke with the award in "recognition of outstanding work in the science of sacred theology" in ceremonies at St. Paul's College, Catholic University affiliate during the meeting of the American hierarchy which opened at the university Wednesday.

In his speech of presentation, the Cardinal declared: "There is no need in the presence of theologians and students of theology to dwell on the vital role which theology plays in the life of the church."

In acknowledging the award, Father Burke pointed to the service which the award renders theology in encouraging theologians by recognition and financial assistance.

Father Burke is national president of the Catholic Theological Society of America, in whose name the Cardinal Spellman award is bestowed annually. He has been a member of the university faculty for eight years. An editor of the American Ecclesiastical Review, he is one of the founders of the national society of theologians.

Postlude

Serkin's Skill Rouses Audience

Rudolf Serkin and the Busch Quartet roused a capacity audience in the Library of Congress to unwonted heights of enthusiasm last night in a concert of familiar but great music.

Johannes Brahms' G minor Robert Schumann, and Beethoven's E Major piano sonata, Opus 109, made up the progarm. Serkin was the focal point of all that happened. His pianism moves from tremendous breadth in solo playing to perfectly balanced ensemble work with equal ease.

In the ponderous sonata, he handled fleeting moments of the presto with the same skill that made the final variations memorable. Few artists so overcome technical problems that they are able to view such music from a purely objective vantage point. Serkin, who will play in Constitution Hall on November 29th, is one such rare pianist.

The Busch Quartet joined him in making the romantic measures of both Brahms and Schumann live in warm fashion. Their style is uniquely suited to these composers.

Earlier in the evening, music by Susannah Coleman occupied a program at the Arts Club.

Two violins, two pianos, and a singer demonstrated the varied facets of this Washington composer's talent. She is happiest in lyric writing for solo instruments, either voice or single piano. Her sophisticated style in songs to Mother Goose rhymes is quite unusual, and Ina Holtzscheiter and the composer made them sparkle. The introduction of boogie-woogie in "Rock-a-bye-Baby," and the easy rhythmic variations throughout keep interest high.

Fanny Henbest played a Missal Theme for piano in which she has been heard previously. The theme is noble, and the modal treatment given it enhances the glory of the original tune. A prelude seemed to us to suffer from something of the same trouble which bothered a suite for two violins and piano. Too many notes without definite reason rob them of a beauty they would have possessed in more economical style. It is however real tribute to a creative artist (and Mrs. Coleman is a fine pianist) that an entire evening can be made worth while from her writings alone.

Hotel Places First Telefax Device in Use

The world's first automatic telegraph machine for hotel guests was placed in operation yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel, publicly inaugurating the new communications' service Telefax.

The new slot-machine telegram sender and receiver apparatus replaces the standard telegraph-tape, operator-staffed substation installed there by the telegraph company at the hotel's opening in 1918.

Dedication services yesterday afternoon featured Singer Kate Smith, who officially unveiled the two-cabinet machine and sent its first telegram, a plug for the Army nurses' recruiting program, to Army Surgeon Gen. Raymond W. Bliss.

Public operation of the machine is as simple as dropping a letter in a mail slot, for telegram sending; or picking one up from the mailbox, in telegram receiving. The system still retains normal wordage rates and 10-word minimum charges so familiar to the customers.

Participating in yesterday's services were representatives of the Federal Communications Commission, headed by acting Chairman Rosel H. Hyde; Western Union officials, including F. E. d'Humy, company vice president of engineering, and Wardman Park executives, headed by George D. Johnson, vice president and general manager.

The machine, latest development for telegraph service, serves in similar capacity to earlier models already installed in some New York telegraph branch offices and a few business concerns, Western Union representative said. It uses some of the principles of Ultrafax, the speed-of-light communications system recently demonstrated here at the Library of Congress.

The new system provides round-the-clock telegraph service for the hotel, with the desk clerk equipped with rate schedules to handle cash charges. It is designed to handle up to 200 telegrams within any eight-hour period, or 600 properly spaced messages in a 24-hour day.

In operation, Telefax sending machines receive telegrams to be sent on standard size telegram blanks. The sender first presses a button to start the machine, then feeds the telegram through a slot where it is engaged by the machinery and run over a roller.

Auto Permit Suspensions Lag As Cases Pile Up

The Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits suspended 435 fewer permits in October than it did in September, but this was the result of a training program that set the board behind statistically, it was explained.

The program combined with "other work" contributed to a backlog of cases that will not be reflected until the next report is made, Mrs. Mary Silver, board chairman, explained.

A total of 402 permits was suspended for speeding in October, while the total for the previous month was 638.

An aggregate of 2307 reports was received in October, an increase of 1509 over the preceding month.

'Truth Serum' Charge Halts Murder Trial

(From Press Dispatches)

Martinez, Calif., Nov. 18.—An Air Force sergeant, who said he "must have killed" his wife, today heard a recording of his own voice tell an entirely different story under the influence of a "truth serum."

Kenneth Long, 26, on trial for the murder of his wife, listened while the wire recording of his voice accused another man of the slaying.

Yesterday, he testified he "couldn't remember" what happened June 27 when his wife, Mrs. Barbara Jean Long, 22, was killed with a knife in their Richmond (Calif.) apartment.

"From the looks of things, I guess I must have done it," he said yesterday.

Recording Admitted

Defense Attorney George T. Davis did not place Long on the stand today, but asked and received permission from Superior Judge Hugh Donovan to introduce the wire recording, taken October 30 while Long was under the influence of sodium pentothal.

After the recording was played, Judge Donovon recessed court and ordered the sheriff to begin an immediate search for a former sailor who disappeared from Richmond a few days after the slaying, and is believed to be in the Northwest now.

Long's voice told of his homecoming from an Alaskan base to straighten out his wife's threat to divorce him.

"Said She Lied"

A priest, Long related, apparently had affected a reconciliation but when he and Mrs. Long returned home, "she looked at me and laughed and said she lied to me and the priest."

Suddenly, the wire recording went, there was another man in the apartment, armed with a knife. Long quoted his wife as saying "'Kenneth, he's going to kill you, to get you out of the way so we can have happiness.'"

But the stranger, Long related, said "I don't know whether to kill him or not," and stabbed Mrs. Long to death.

Ships Seen First to Get Atom Power

Robert F. Bacher of the Atomic Energy Commission, last night told Washington scientists that economic operation of atomic power plants is still in the speculative stage.

At the same time, he said small-scale atomic power plants may be operating on a demonstration basis within two years, and perhaps in quantity within 8 or 10 years.

Bacher spoke before a meeting of the Washington Academy of Sciences at the Cosmos Club Auditorium on the subject, "Research and Development of Atomic Energy."

New technical developments, he said, will make the production of electrical power from nuclear reactors "technically feasible." But as to questions of efficiency and economic operation, he added, "whole sections of this work are (presently) unexplored."

Bacher said the use of higher temperatures in nuclear fission is expected to lead in the not too distant future to development of a mobile power plant for powering surface ships and submarines. This, he said, "seems likely to be the first application of a mobile nuclear reactor."

Capital Firm Destroys Cave Where Two Boys Were Killed

Filling-in operations were completed yesterday morning on the cave which killed two Southeast youngsters Tuesday when it collapsed on them, police announced.

Destruction of the cave in a sandy embankment at 33d pl. near M st. se., was done by the Capital Mortgage & Title Co., which owns the property.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman, who inspected the site of the cave-in Wednesday, said yesterday that the bank into which the boys dug their tunnel has "a normal slope," and is "just like 4000 or 5000 other banks in the area."

Korman said no city ordinances had been violated, and stated that the District was "in no way responsible" for the accident.

A requiem mass for one victim, Francis O'Donnell, will be said today at 9 a. m. in St. Francis Xavier Church, 2806 Pennsylvania ave. se. The 10-year-old boy, of 3222 M st. se., was in the fifth grade at Francis Xavier School.

Services for John Whalen, 12, of 3232 M st. se., the second victim, will be held Saturday at 2:30 p. m. in the Lee funeral home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Both boys will be buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Teeth Urged For Anti-Trust Enforcement

A former Assistant Attorney General yesterday urged Congress to give the Justice Department something better than "slingshots" to enforce the Federal antitrust laws more vigorously.

Wendell Berge, formerly with the department's antitrust division, told the House Small Business Committee that huge business and industrial combines should be broken up. The growth of monopolies, he said, threatenes to destroy the entire free enterprise system.

To enforce the antitrust laws, Berge continued, "the tools which have been given the Department of Justice are ike slingshots—wholly inadequate as against the Goliaths of American industry."

He said the antitrust enforcement staff should be enlarged. In addition, he said, it should have 10 million dollars to 15 million dollars a year to spend on prosecutions. He added that the antitrust division's annual budget now is less than four million dollars.

C. F. R. Ogilby Law Offices Burglarized

Law offices of Charles F. R. Ogilby, collector of the estate of the late Charles B. Porter, former treasurer of the Washington Times-Herald, were entered and burglarized over last weekend, it was disclosed last night.

Ogilby said an associate discovered "several postage stamps and some small change" missing from a desk in the offices at 613 15th st. nw. at about noon Saturday. They had been closed since about 6 p. m. Friday.

The attorney is custodian of the files of Porter, who committed suicide September 14, until the will of the late Eleanor M. Patterson, publisher of the Times-Herald is disposed of.

Ogilby said the burglary at his offices apparently was "not connected in any way, shape or form" with what he called "the matter of current public interest."

Mrs. Patterson's daughter, Mrs. Relicia Gizycka, has filed suit to set aside her mother's will.

Patterson Will Case Lawyer Denies Horn-Blowing Charge

William A. Roberts, Washington lawyer and former District people's counsel, is scheduled to appear in Municipal Court November 24 on a charge of blowing his automobile horn unnecessarily.

Roberts was arrested on a warrant Wednesday in his office in the Transportation Building by Pvt. Seidel L. Keys of the Third Precinct. He posted $7 collateral at the station house.

The lawyer, who is one of the attorneys representing Mrs. Felicia Gizycka in the contest of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson's wil, has denied that he was in Washington on September 21—the date of the alleged offense.

Keys, who swore out the warrant, said that about 1:55 a. m. September 21, he noticed a car going north in the 1300 block of 21st st. nw. with the horn blaring. He said he stepped out into the street to flag the auto down with his flashlight, but it continued without stopping after slowing down briefly to avoid hitting him.

The policeman said he did not see who was driving the car but he was able to get the license tag number, through which he traced the owner. He swore out a warrant for Roberts the following day.

Roberts said he was not in Washington that night. He said he has a transcript of court proceedings in Jackson, Miss., where he was handling a case at the time, to prove it.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King said the case is being handled in a routine manner.

Senator Cain Says Wife Will Seek Divorce

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), at a press conference yesterday, announced that he and Mrs. Cain are separating and that Mrs. Cain will seek a divorce.

The announcement, issued by the Senator at his Capitol Hill office, said Mrs. Cain will file suit for divorce in Tacoma, Wash., their home. Her suit will charge incompatibility. They have made an amicable property agreement, and Mrs. Cain will have custody of their two children, Harry P. Cain 2d (Buzzie), 11, and a daughter, Marlyce, nicknamed "Candy," 5. The Cains were married in 1935. She was Marjory Dils of Seattle.

Mrs. Cain plans to remain at their Westchester apartment with their daughter. He will leave for Miami today with their son for a vacation of several weeks.

Since entering the Senate two years ago, Senator Cain has become widely known in Washington for service as chairman of the Senate subcommittee in charge of District tax legislation.

Trades Show Wage Boosts

All but five AFL building construction trades in Washington won wage boosts ranging from 4.2 to 18.8 per cent between July 1, 1947, and July 1, 1948, according to a report made public yesterday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Robert R. Behlow, regional BLS director, said that in 25 of the more than 50 trades surveyed, increases ranged between 5 and 10 per cent. In 21 trades he reported, wage hikes amounted to 10 per cent or over.

In journeymen classifications, union scales last July ran from $1.70 for composition roofers to $2.75 for stonemasons.

Highest increases, the survey showed were won by sheet metal workers, who went from $2.15 an hour to $2.50; stonemasons, from $2.37 to $2.75; tile layers, $2 to $2.37; plasterers' laborers, terrazzo workers' helpers and tile layers' helpers, $1.50 to $1.75.

Five trades showed no advance during the year. These were bricklayers, machinists, sign painters, sprinkler fitters and sprinkler fitters' helpers.

Inquest to Fix Cause of Death Of Woman Who Fell From Cab

A decision on what caused the death of a 25-year-old woman who fell from a moving taxicab Tuesday night will rest with a coroner's jury, Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said yesterday.

Police listed the woman's name as Mrs. Grace Skarvonnes of 1925 Biltmore st. nw., but said she had also at various times used the married names of Evans and Roy.

Dr. Murphy said death resulted from a fractured skull. Whether she suffered the injury in the fall from the cab will be up to the coroner's jury to decide, he said. No date has been set for the inquest.

Mrs. Skarvonnes died in Emergency Hospital after falling from the cab at 24th and Calverts sts. nw. George Skarvonnes, 30, who was riding in the cab with the woman and who, police said, told them he had been living with her recently, was released in $1000 bond pending the inquest. Also ordered to appear at the inquest was the cab driver, Clifford Crawford, 23, of 200 11th st. se.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Hoover Commission Studies Revolutionary Federal Pay System

An entirely new system of fixing the pay of most Federal workers is under serious consideration by the Hoover Commission. The plan, though revolutionary, has real merit. It provides for the separation of Federal workers into three groups and for the fixing of their salaries as follows:

1. In this first group would be perhaps 90 per cent of all Government people, the clerical, subprofessional, per diems, postal, and employes in just about every other field whose salaries are below $6000 a year.

It's proposed that local wage boards fix the salaries of this great mass of Government workers—the same method now used to determine the salaries of the so-called "blue-collar" or per diem workers. The salaries of these people would conform to the prevailing wages for similar private jobs, if any, in their respective geographical areas.

In other words, the authority to fix salaries of the postal and Classification Act workers would be taken out of the hands of Congress. And remember this—the average per diem worker whose salary has been fixed by a local wage board has gone up considerably more since the war than that of the average Classification Act employe.

Such a system would undoubtedly result in pay raises for many employes in high-cost-of-iving cities like Washington, New York, etc. On the other hand, it also would lower some salaries in low-cost-of-living areas. However, the dollars paid the employes would buy the same amount of goods for the job performed in any area, or at least that is the objective.

2. In the second group would be the professional, administrative, and employes of that rank—the so-called upper middle class. Definite pay raises would be given this group since the employes in it have been given small pay raises since 1940. This is how salaries of persons in this group would be set:

Congress would be asked to fix a "floor" under which the salaries of the many different groups couldn't fall, and a "ceiling" over which they couldn't rise, a flexible range. Civil Service would have the authority to set grades and salaries from the "floor" to the "ceiling." The salaries and grades would be Nation-wide and they would cover all agencies.

3. In group three would be Cabinet and other official jobs the salaries of which are now and would continue to be fixed by Congress. Substantial increases for the executive group are a sure bet to be suggested by the Hoover group.

LETTER: From one of the Veterans' Administration's own employees comes this serious indictment of its operations:

"I'm an insignificant employe of VA, but as a citizen first and a veteran second, I'm most anxious for my agency to do a good honest job. Your stories of the unnecessary delays and red tape in our insurance division are literally a drop in the ocean.

"The real scandal in VA has to do with the rank favoritism and revolting discrimination in the handling of every possible kind of case for the veteran. I personally know of cases where a veteran has gotten drunk and has been hurt through his own stupid negligence in a fight or a fall and every possible pressure is exerted in our agency to get him a highly questionable lifetime pension because of his injuries. That's a type of case we are frequently ordered to rush and to expedite.

"Yet I've seen hundreds; yes, thousands, of cases of poor widows and worthy veterans who need and are entitled to immediate help—like the Power and Brear cases you mentioned in your column—but we are directed to lay them aside, to delay action on them, to give priority to the 'influence' cases.

"VA can never do a completely honest job until its officials learn two lessons: (1) to say 'no' to the influential politicians and officials of veteran groups who daily pressure us into outrageous decisions, and (2) to judge each case on its merits on the basis of fixed standards instead of the consideration of outside influence.

"You report that President Truman is interested in speeding up action on veterans' cases. I wish him success. If the President would guarantee absolute immunity and protection to VA employes, I'm sure he would be given the real reasons for VA's present sad state of affairs."

LOYALTY: The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People charges that the Federal worker loyalty program is being used to intimidate employes who oppose segregation and discrimination of Negroes. It will defend employes where charges are based on race, color or activity in any group which the NAACP approves.

Meantime, four aditional members have been appointed to the Fourth Regional Loyalty Board, which covers the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and this city. They are:

Paul B. Cromelin, a Washington lawyer who is a past president of the District Bar Association; John H. Hessey of Baltimore, dean of the University of Baltimore Law School; Dr. Mary Phlegar Smith, dean of Hollins College, and Clifton A. Woodrum jr., of Roanoke, Va., an attorney, a veteran, and a former Federal official.

Slain Salesman And Accused

BELMONT WOODRIDGE
Six bullets in his body

JAMES T. NOLAN

Grand Jury To Get Nolan Case Monday

Man Held for Murder Of Arlington Salesman Confessed, Police Say

A murder charge against James T. Nolan, 24, accused of the Armistice Day slaying of a well-to-do Arlington salesman, is scheduled to go before a special Fauquier County, Va., grand jury Monday.

On Wednesday, Nolan led Fauquier and Arlington County law officers to a deserted spot about 5 miles northwest of Warrenton, Va., where they found the body of the slain man, Belmont Woodridge, 44, beneath a pile of leaves.

Until the body was found, police did not know Woodridge, who traveled extensively in his job, had been killed. Arlington Police Chief Harry Woodyard said he had been shot six times with a .32-caliber revolver.

Nolan, who lives at 1021 N. Taylor st., Arlington, was being held without bond in Fauquier County jail yesterday pending the grand jury session. His is the only criminal case on the jury docket.

The murder suspect, a former Arlington cleaning store employe, waived a preliminary hearing in Fauquier Trial Justice Court. His case thus goes directly to the grand jury.

Fauquier County Sheriff S. S. Hall, jr., and Commonwealth's Attorney Charles G. Stone yesterday went to Romney, W. Va., where Nolan was arrested Monday, to gather evidence for any future trial.

Break in the murder case, and Nolan's subsequent confession, according to Arlington police, came when Nolan was being quizzed in connection with the $500 robbery of an Arlington cleaning shop November 11.

He was linked to Woodridge's disappearance by the slain man's 1947 Cadillac coupe, which he was driving when picked up in Romney after local officers became suspicious of Nolan's "free spending."

Woman, Boy Are Killed In Traffic

Two Passing Vehicles Strike Child After He Falls Out Rear Door Of Uncle's Car

A woman pedestrian and a child who fell from a moving automobile were killed yesterday in traffic accidents in Greater Washington.

Dead are:

Beatrice Williams, 45, of Gum Springs, Va.,

Robert Henry Chapman, jr., 6, of Darnestown, Md.

The woman was struck at 6:10 p. m. while walking about six feet from the shoulder on Route 1 four miles south of Alexandria. Virginia State Police said she was hit by the center of the radiator grille of the car operated by Truman J. Sindy, 35, of Stipe's Tourist Court, 2 miles south of where the accident occurred.

Sindy, an Alexandria cab driver, was released under $250 bond on technical charges of reckless driving and manslaughter for appearance in Fairfax County Trial Justice Court December 22.

The Chapman boy was killed when he apparently fell from the rear door of the automobile driven by his uncle, Benjamin G. Beall of Darnestown, on Route 28, three miles west of Rockville about 5:50 p. m. His mother, Mrs. R. H. Chapman, was in the front seat, and William R. Beall, 5, the driver's son, was also in the back seat.

He was struck by two vehicles coming from the opposite direction, Montgomery County police said, after he fell to the roadway. They were operated by Dr. George C. Poffenbarger and Jacob S. Carter, both of Boyds, Md. None of the drivers were charged by police.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, pronounced the boy dead at 6:48 p. m. at Gartner's funeral home, Gaithersburg. He said death was instantaneous, resulting from a crushed skull.

Mechanic Held In Fatal Row After Crash

Bennie L. Griffin, 32, of 2120 S. 2d st., Arlington, yesterday was held for action of the Arlington grand jury in the death of a 65-year-old man he is charged with striking November 5.

Griffin, an auto mechanic, sat calmly in Arlington County Court yesterday as the murder charge was read.

The Commonwealth attorney's office indicated, however, that the murder charge probably will be changed to manslaughter later. Griffin's bond of $2500 was continued, and he was released after the hearing.

Victim of the tragedy, Audie Carroll of 829 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, was struck in an argument after his auto and Griffin's collided on Wilson blvd. at N. Fillmore st.

A witness, Fred W. Marlowe of 4819 N. 16th rd., Arlington, yesterday gave the court this version of the fatal blow that followed the minor traffic accident:

Both men were standing beside the cars, Marlowe testified, when Carroll "said something about Griffin's brakes," and Griffin told the elderly man he "should have stopped for the stop sign" on Fillmore st.

Next, according to the witness, Griffin called Carroll "a few names," and Carroll replied: "You're another one."

Then Griffin grabbed Carroll by the lapels, according to Marlowe, hit him once.

"He (Carroll) was off balance and I didn't think he would hit him again," Marlowe testified, "but he hit him a second time and the old man fell to the street."

Carroll died four days later in Arlington Hospital. Dr. William Dolan, a pathologist, yesterday told the court death was caused by a fractured skull and brain hemorrhages.

Carroll also suffered fractures of four ribs, plus cuts and bruises, Dolan said. The pathologist said he believed death was caused by Carroll's head striking the pavement.

The elderly man's widow, Mrs. Gaye Carroll, was present in the courtroom when a statement police said was signed by Griffin was read. It described how the mechanic struck Carroll twice and later left the scene in his slightly damaged car.

Man, Accused Of Arson, Held For Grand Jury

Benny Sims, 42, of 220 G st. sw., yesterday was ordered held under $2000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of attempted arson.

Benjamin Cooper of 712 Pleasant ct. sw., told Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn that part of the front door of his house was burned Monday night after someone had placed a cardboard box, filled with paper, under the front step and set fire to it.

He said earlier in the evening he had had an argument with Sims when he refused to let the man enter the house.

Several other witnesses testified that Sims had threatened to burn down the house and that they had seen him in the vicinity shortly before the fire was discovered.

New Approach Used in Malaria Study

Well Mosquitoes Being Infected In Navy's Search For Preventative

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Humans are now giving malaria to healthy mosquitoes in scientific search of a malaria preventive and cure at the Naval Medical Research Institute, Bethesda, Md.

The new approach in malaria medical research is described in the December issue of Science Illustrated, released today.

The project, headed by Dr. Levon A. Terzian, of Kensington, Md., turns the winged insect into a test animal to show the workings of antimalarial drugs. And since autopsies on mosquitoes are beyond the scale of normal medical research, the scientists have been forced to devise special tools and techniques.

Basis for the continuing research, said Dr. Terzian, stems from preliminary findings that the life cycle of malaria parasites in mosquitoes correspond to the parasites' progressions in man. It follows, he said, that if a drug can be found to break those cycles in the insect host, the same drug may cure man's malarial ills.

By feeding imprisoned, malaria-bearing mosquitoes with food mixed with drugs to be tested, he said, drug effects on the malaria parasite can be studied microscopically—in mosquitoes rather than in human volunteers. Earlier tests with chicks and other animals proved pointless since no valid relationship to the disease's progress in humans could be established, he explained.

Working with Lieut. A. B. Weathersby, of the U. S. Navy Medical Service Corps, and Nathan Stahler, entomologist, Dr. Terzian said his team has been able to prove the mosquito-man relationship by studies with known suppressive drugs on two of the four kinds of human malaria.

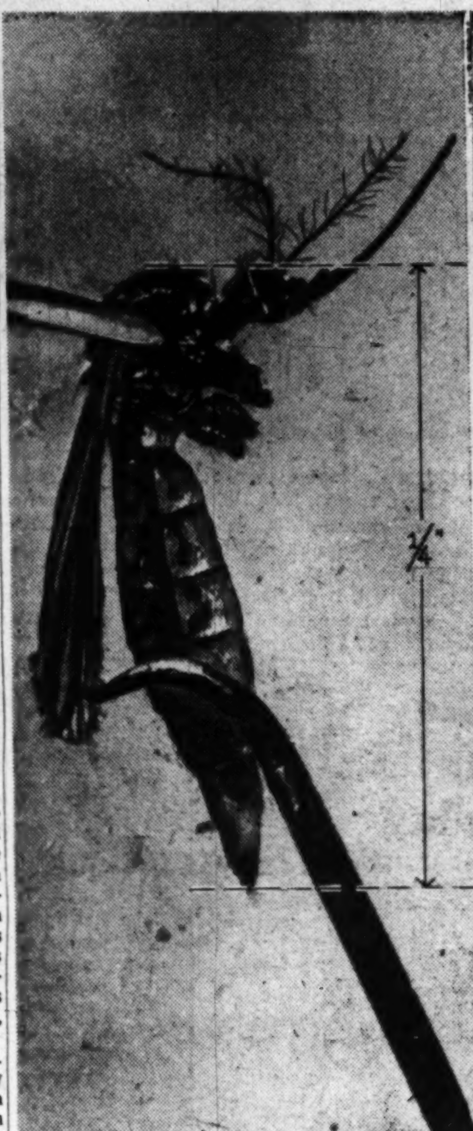
Though there are many antimalarial drugs (atabrine, paludrine, plasmoquine, chloroquine and quinine, to name a few), none works on all four kinds of human malaria, and they only stave off rather than cure the disease. Thus, the malaria patient who stops taking the drug is in constant fear of recurrence of malarial chills and fevers as severe as though they had never been treated.

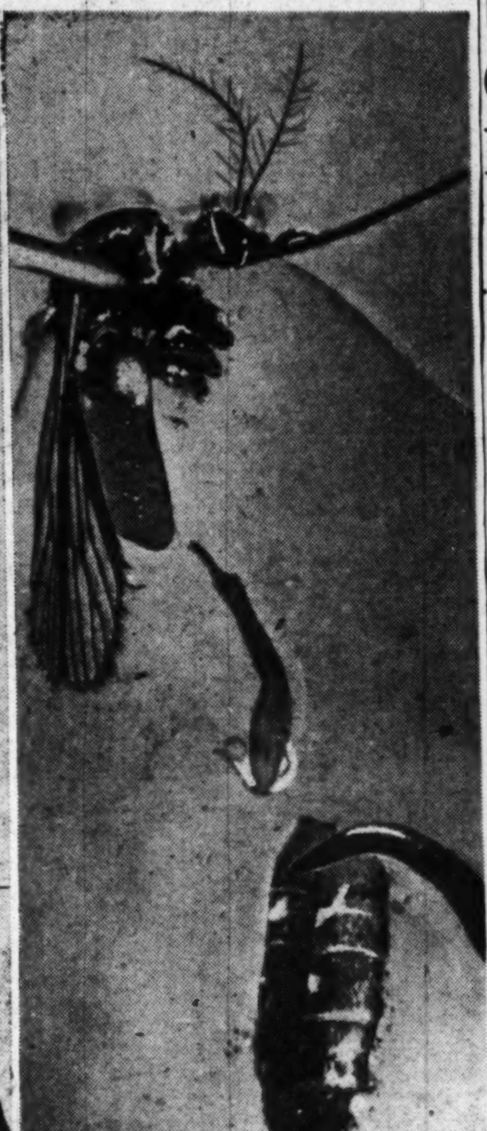
Healthy mosquitoes are infected with the parasite by permitting them to bite mental patients that have been given malaria in the now well-known fever therapy for neurosyphilis. The mosquitoes are then allowed to feed on drug-mixed foods and later dissected at varying intervals for study, the scientists stated.

The work naturally centers on the insect's stomach, where the malaria parasite incubates, Dr. Terzian said. And in later stages at the mosquito's head when the parasite is ready to be transferred from the insect's salivary glands to human bloodstreams.

Further value of the mosquito as a test animal, they reported, is that testings take only about two weeks, in comparison to previous chick-and-human experiments that required a year and were inaccurate at best.

The new tests, they said, have now reached a stage where they can methodically work with drugs in search of one that may cure malaria permanently, or one that may prevent human malaria, or, the optimum goal, one that will do both.





From December Issue of Science Illustrated

1. MICROSCOPIC OPERATION—Special instruments are used to dissect the malaria test animal, a mosquito of the same species that carries the malaria parasite to man. Instruments used measure half the diameter of the common straight pin

2. MOSQUITO SURGERY—The stomach is freed from the insect's body and the researchers may now study developmnet stage of the parasite to determine effects on it by the test drug which has been mixed with the mosquito's diet

Drive Urged To Publicize Chest Work

The director of the United Community Services, Arthur Kruse, said yesterday the UCS should stage a year-round community education drive to acquaint the public with the services of Community Chest agencies.

Kruse, who heads the body which replaced the old Washington Community Chest unit and the former Council of Social Agencies, addressed a group of Chest agency directors at a closed meeting of the Executive Conference of the District. The conference is composed of the executive directors of all Chest-supported agencies here and acts as an advisory body to the UCS.

Kruse said there now is a greater gap between Chest agencies and the general public than there was 10 years ago, and added that agencies need to show that their services, which are not direct charity, are as important as so-called direct charity agencies.

"We must bring Tom, Dick and Harry into our own boards of directors and make them assume some responsibility," Kruse said, emphasizing the need for broad citizen participation so individuals will not have to be "sold" on Chest agencies.

The executive conference, which met at the YWCA, 17th and K st. nw., elected the following members to its executive committee: Miss Gertrude Bowling of the Instructive Visiting Nurses Association; Miss Lucile Bruner, Travelers Aid Society; Kenneth B. Spear, District Boy Scouts of America.

The Community Chest, which has collected 68.7 per cent of its $4,566,790 goal to date, will hold a general report luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today in the Washington Hotel.

Though the Red Feather drive is scheduled to end today, Chairman Chauncey G. Parker said last night that "no reasonable person can expect us to come up with the $1,429,000 we must have to reach our goal."

GI Convicted Of Assault, Intent to Rape

A 19-year-old Army private yesterday was found guilty of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge of a 15-year-old girl on the McKinley High School grounds last May.

Cook

He is Pvt. John Joseph Cook, of the Third Infantry Regiment, stationed at Fort McNair. He faces a maximum sentence of 15 years.

A District Court jury of 10 men and 2 women deliberated less than two hours before returning the verdict with a recommendation for leniency.

"This defendant has gotten all the leniency he's going to get from this court," Judge Edward M. Curran declared. He set November 26 for date of sentencing.

Cook was on trial for having carnal relations with the girl. Judge Curran instructed the jury, however, that it could bring in one of four verdicts—not guilty as charged, guilty of the charge with or without the recommendation for the death penalty, or guilty of assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge.

The girl testified that she was assaulted by Cook while walking with him to a car stop after he had visited at her home. She was admitted to Gallinger Hospital for head injuries at the time.

Charter Fight Won't Disrupt County Services, McNayr Says

Citing "uncertainty and confusion" resulting from the Montgomery County charter dispute, County Supervisor I. G. McNayr yesterday pledged that county services "will not stop or deteriorate."

In a statement issued to allay fears of persons wishing to do business with the county government, McNayr also defended the council-manager system called for under charter.

A decision by the county commissioners on Tuesday to file suit attacking the legality of scheduled charter council election on January 6 has caused many citizens "to call or write me concerning the uncertainty and confusion in Montgomery County government," McNayr said.

Planning for expanded school and road systems will continue, McNayr said, as well as "necessary government functions such as assessing, tax collection, purchasing, zoning, policing, public health and welfare and financial control."

"Citizens and employes of Montgomery County must not have the impression that county services will either stop or deteriorate during this confused period," he declared.

At the same time, McNayr declared that "council-manager government is now working successfully in more than 800 cities and towns and in 12 populous counties." He said that "at present, 16,500,000 people in the United States are being governed locally by a council-manager government and after January this figure wil be raised to 17 million."

"Obviously then, the system cannot be said to be new and untried," he added.

Duane Proposed As Candidate for Charter Council

Frank J. Duane, 710 Bennington dr., Silver Spring, Md., Washington architect and a civic leader, has been recommended as a candidate for the Montgomery County Council on the Charter Committee's slate for the January 6 election.

The recommendation was made by the Seven Oaks Manor Citizens Association of which Duane is a past president, in response to the Charter Committee's suggestion for candidates from various organizations.

A special committee composed of Harry Bagby, John Lemp and William Peterson has been appointed by President Joseph Blomgren, to work for Duane's candidacy.

Duane is chairman of the Montgomery County Civic Federation's safety committee and a leader on the county's citizens' zoning committee.

Budget Chief Urges Repeal Of District's Income Levy

Fowler Proposes 'Fair' Sales Tax Take Place of 'Unjust' Measure

District Budget Director Walter L. Fowler told the Northeast Businessmen's Association yesterday that the District's personal income tax "is an unjust tax and should be repealed."

Fowler also told the association at a luncheon meeting in the Hotel Continental that "real estate is paying enough in the District of Columbia" and repeated his request for "a fair, just, equitable sales tax."

"We will never be able in this District to get a fair income tax," Fowler said.

"About 90,000" Paying

Out of 350,000 employes, only about 90,000 workers "pay any income tax at all" here, Fowler stated, adding that he felt Congressmen would never permit income taxes to be levied on constituents who live here but maintain residences in their home States.

Real estate taxes already provide the District with 57.72 per cent of all direct tax revenue, or about $32,500,000, Fowler said, although only about 48 per cent of the District's total land area is taxable.

Reminding his listeners that the District is faced with a probable deficit of $13,443,376 in the fiscal year of 1950, Fowler said an additional $5,500,000 will have to be added to the deficit if the Federal pay raise is extended to the District.

"There isn't any question that we'll get increased salaries," Fowler said in this connection.

Give "Three Big Choices"

In the face of this deficit, he said, the city has "three big choices:" a much larger Federa contribution, higher real estate taxes, which he called "a strong possibility," or a sales tax, "which I'm recommending.'

Asking for "a good sound sales tax—one that we can adjust," Fowler said that "if we can get it just as soon as Congress gets back, we'll have enough money to make this city go."

A 2 per cent sales tax should bring in $13,500,000 in the first full year of operation, according to "conservative estimates," Fowler said.

He cautioned that the tax would take about 60 days to be put into operation, however, and that the District would "lose the last few months" revenue for the 1950 fiscal year, which begins July 1, 1949.

A 32-year-old handyman was seriously injured about noon yesterday when he fell two stories to the pavement after a ladder split beneath him.

The man, Walter Fowler, 32, of 428 9th st. sw., was installing storm windows for an apartment at 510 C st. ne. when the accident occurred. Nathan Tolstoi, occupant of the apartment, said one of the uprights of the ladder split away from the rungs. Fowler had used the ladder in the morning while washing windows.

At Casualty Hospital, Fowler was said to have suffered head contusions, cuts on the right hand and left ear and a possible fractured neck. His condition was termed fair.

'Rat-Proofers' Give Show for Farmers

A procedure for "rat-proofing" corncribs, designed to save millions of dollars a year in grain losses, was demonstrated for Prince Georges County farmers yesterday at the Melvin Suit farm, near Upper Marlboro.

About 100 farmers, including one group which came all the way from Berryville, Va., witnessed the all-day demonstration in which a group of workers from the Prince Georges County Health Department applied the "proofing" materials to a large corncrib as an educational feature of the county's rat control program.

The procedure entailed construction of sheet metal strips, 30 inches in height, around the bottom of the crib, installation of metal flooring and sealing of all "vulnerable" joints with concrete. As a result, all parts of the crib which normally would be exposed to destruction by rats were effectively sealed.

"Rat-proofing" of all corncribs in this manner, it was pointed out, would virtually eliminate a grain loss which in Maryland alone, amounts to about 750,000 bushels annually.

Cooperating with the county health department in the demonstration were the University of Maryland Extension Service Rural Rat Control Program and the Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service.

GI's Father Rules Out New Reburial Rite

There won't be any re-reburial service after all for Sergt. Thomas F. Dalton, who was reinterred in Arlington National Cemetery without his next-of-kin knowing anything about it.

Sergt. Dalton

Thomas Andrew Dalton, of 1884 Ontario pl. nw., the youth's father, said yesterday he's decided against additional services "because nothing can be accomplished but new sadness."

Sergt. Dalton, a veteran of the Bataan death march, was an airman and died of pneumonia in a Japanese prison camp at Osaka on March 14, 1945. He was reburied October 29 but through a clerical error his family was not notified. His father first learned about the service through a newspaper article.

Today at 2 p. m., reburial services will be held for Sergt. Raymond Dombroski, 25, whose family lives at Beltsville, Md.

A native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sergt. Dombroski was educated in the public schools there and later worked as a hotel desk clerk. He joined the Air Corps in January, 1943.

He was killed on a bombing mission over Italy in 1944 while serving as a nose gunner with the Fifteenth Air Force. He had been overseas six weeks.

Surviving are three brothers, Alphonse Dambrauskas, Daniel Dambrauskas and Robert Dombroski.

Another brother, Charles Dombroski, was killed on Guadalcanal while serving with the Marine Corps.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Capital Transit 50c Dividend Is Year's First

By S. Oliver Goodman

Patient stockholders of Capital Transit Co., who have gone without dividends for nine months, finally were rewarded yesterday. Directors declared a dividend of 50 cents a share, payable December 21 to stock of record December 1.

Restoration of a dividend followed a company estimate that the transit line will show net income of about $500,000 this year. On the basis of 240,000 shares outstanding, this would be equal to $2.08 a share.

The dividend action, a company spokesman said, follows "consideration of prospective income which will result in November and December from the financial relief granted, by the Public Utilities Commission." A fare increase went into effect November 1, to offset a wage boost effective July 1 and other rising costs.

The 50-cent dividend will be the only one paid this year and compares with $2 a share disbursed in each of five preceding years.

If earnings are maintained at the current rate, local financial circles believe that it would indicate that the company could return to a regular quarterly dividend basis of 50 cents a share next year.

Directors yesterday also authorized the purchase of 25 additional buses at a cost of $440,000, to be delivered in the first three months next year.

HEADS INSTITUTE: Stuart L. Bailey of Washington has been elected president of the Institute of Radio Engineers, a national group with headquarters in New York City. Bailey is a partner in the local firm of Jansky & Bailey, consulting radio engineers. Born in Minneapolis, he graduated from the University of Minnesota. During his college days, he was active on the staff of W9XI, an experimental station of the university. Later he was chief engineer of WLB, the university's station. Following two years with the Commerce Department, he joined with C. M. Jansky, jr., in 1930, to form the consulting engineering firm bearing their names.

From 1935 to 1942, Dunn was on the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Prior to that he was associated for 10 years with consulting engineering firms.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Cotton futures were under moderate pressure of hedging and liquidation which found trade support light today. Final prices were 35 to 65 cents a bale lower.

Earlier losses extended to 90 cents a bale, but the market firmed on a late flurry of mill buying and short covering. Selling followed a disappointing Bureau of Census report placing October cotton consumption at 695,887 bales, which was almost 133,000 bales under the same month a year ago.

Stock Trade In Doldrums; Trend Mixed

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Supply and demand were almost evenly balanced today in the slowest stock market in three months.

Changes were mostly fractional although there were a handful of wider swings.

Several timid attempts to get ahead were immediately blocked. At the same time any increase in selling pressure attracted instant support.

Turnover dropped to 780,000 shares, a low since only 510,000 changed hands on August 16. Yesterday's business amounted to 970,000 shares.

WHAT STOCKS DID

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	420	286
Declines	308	475
Unchanged	276	242
Total issues	1004	1003

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .1 of one point to 64.7. A gain in the industrial component outweighed a small loss in the railroad section.

Trading was almost entirely professional with little interest shown by the general public. A fair amount of tax selling was noted and considerable switching from one security to another. Investment demand acted as a market cushion.

Most traders shrugged off domestic news and corporation announcements. Investors and speculators, in a word, bided their time, many awaiting clarification of the new Administration's economic policies.

Not even a statement by Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) that an excess profits tax would lead "to destruction of business" was enough to jog interest. George is expected to return to the chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee.

His views were opposite to those expressed late yesterday by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), who came out in favor of an excess profits tax.

D. C. Accountants Hear Temple U. Professor

Don't overemphasize the importance of the "breakeven" point in a company's operations, Washington accountants were cautioned.

Just as soon as that point is approached, management will see that a new point is established, declared Sterling K. Atkinson at a meeting of the Washington Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants.

Atkinson is professor of accounting at Temple University in Philadelphia. Among those who heard him at the Lafayette Hotel meeting Wednesday night were Army and Navy financial and procurement executives.

Short Interest Steady

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The short interest in stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange stood at 932,403 shares on November 15 compared with 932,714 shares on October 15, the stock exchange announced today. It was among the smallest monthly changes either way on record.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—The grain market's advance ran up against some unfavorable news items today. As a result all cereals met some heavy selling. Prices dropped for losses ranging to 2 cents in corn.

News which brought the buying enthusiasm to an end included an embargo on bulk shipments of cash grain to Houston, heavy snows in the Kansas winter wheat territory and an easing of cash corn prices as corn dryers became much less aggressive buyers.

Only exception to the general lower trend was December wheat. It reached a new high since April at 2.38¼ in the early trading. Then it fell nearly 2 cents from this high during a general selling movement around midday. But in the closing minutes it bounded up again to around the previous close.

Post-Dewey Rally in Bonds Props McCabe-Eccles Hopes

By J. A. Livingston

THE United States bond market these last few days hasn't strengthened Thomas I. Parkinson in his quarrel with the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board. Parkinson thinks interest rates are too cheap. He wants to make money dearer. But the post-election upsurge in United States bond prices indicates that the turn Parkinson has argued for hasn't come.

Livingston

Parkinson's position is clear enough. The Equitable Life Assurance Society, of which he is president, is a big investor. So, the higher the yield on United States Treasury or corporation bonds, the bigger will be Equitable's earnings and dividends. Consequence: Its policyholders, present and prospective, will be better off. So Parkinson objects to what he's apt to call an artificially low interest rate.

Parkinson has berated the Government for still another reason. He contends—and the Federal Reserve Board won't deny it—that Federal Reserve purchases of United States bonds, in and of themselves, are inflationary. When the Fed buys bonds, it supplies funds to banks, insurance companies, and others. It increases the general money supply and the base for credit. (However, the Fed tries to counteract the inflationary effect of its purchases of long-term United States bonds by selling short-term governments. And today it holds fewer United States securities than a year ago.)

THE FED'S position is clear, too. Federal Reserve Chairman McCabe and former Chairman Eccles want no part of what happened (a) after the last war when Liberty bonds dropped to the low eighties or (b) during the depression when Andrew Mellon put out a new issue of long-term threes which promptly declined to 82. The mere suggestion of such a drop would produce a panic in an unpegged market. Where would long-term United States bonds be selling today, for instance, if the Fed hadn't bought four billion in the last three months?

Some persons, like Russell C. Leffingwell, chairman of the board of J. P. Morgan & Co., suggest that the Fed need not remove the peg entirely, but ought to drop it and so provide an orderly market. But McCabe and Eccles feel that once the bonds were permitted to go below par, selling would increase—for fear prices would go lower. To them, the only way to keep the market orderly is to peg it and keep it pegged. Their hope is that ultimately investors will become convinced the peg will stick, then prices will rise above the peg.

THE ELECTION bolstered that hope. Apparently, insurance companies, savings banks, Federal savings and loan associations, commercial banks and other holders decided that President Truman would continue the peg. Gone was the possibility that a new President might reexamine the policy and alter it. In the week ended November 10 the Fed had to buy only 87 million dollars of long-term bonds as against an average of 337 million dollars in the six weeks preceding. And last week, as noted, prices shot up.

Parkinson has practiced his preachment. He has reduced the Equitable's holdings of Government securities much more promptly than life insurance companies in general. This, presumably, on the assumption that Government bond prices would decline and yields rise.

At the end of 1945, the Equitable had 50% of its total assets invested in Government bonds—$1,900,000,000 out of a total of $3,900,000,000. But by the end of 1947, only 29% of Equitable assets were in Governments — $1,300,000,000 out of $4,500,000,000. Thus, while Equitable assets were increasing by 12%, Government bond holdings declined 32%. In the same period, all life insurance companies maintained their position in Government bonds at 20 billion.

DEPEGGING of United States bonds would validate Parkinson's postwar investment program. On the other hand, successful maintenance of the peg would indicate that Parkinson bet wrong on the trend of interest rates. The longer the Federal Reserve maintains the peg, the more deeply will the 2½% long-term United States interest rate become imbedded in the economy. The country will slowly build up around it a postwar pattern of rates. Then, what now seems to Parkinson an artificially low rate would become an accepted and realistic rate. Which, fundamentally, is what he's fighting against.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

COLLEGE FOOTBALL of the kind that is a ringing answer to the critics of overemphasis is programmed at Griffith Stadium tomorrow. No bowl bids will be in the balance. The result won't mean a thing in the national rankings. It will be just a football game between two schools itching to beat the tar out of the other. That's Georgetown vs. George Washington.

POVICH

It ought to be fun. George Washington has never licked GU in the feud that had its beginnings in the 90s. There was that scoreless tie of last season, when the Colonials went out there as longshots and messed up the Hoyas considerably but couldn't quite get over the hump. They're closer together in this year's pregame reckonings.

It could be George Washington's year. The odds against the Colonials were even heftier a few weeks ago when they journeyed down to Charlottesville labeled as pushovers for Virginia. Unbelieving, the GW's slapped down Virginia, 20-12. They don't hold the Georgetowners in any awe.

The Colonials and Hoyas will take the field licking their wounds of last Saturday's outings. Georgetown took a 36-7 beating from Villanova, GW got a 62-0 pasting at Duke. Winning this one would be balm.

AT GEORGE WASHINGTON, Coach Bo Rowland is no disciple of the two-platoon system in vogue at the bigger schools. GWU fans get a long look at their football players. Rowland doesn't shuttle 'em in and out in offensive-defensive units. He doesn't have 'em to shuttle, for one reason. Pete Cordelli is an example of what goes on among the Colonials football players. He'll be in the backfield tomorrow. When he isn't playing center, guard or tackle, that is.

Rowland plays the single-wing system, with its demand for crashing blockers but there's a scarcity of blocking backs. So he has introduced the running tackle in the absence of running guards who can pull out and block. Jim Feula gets that job. And all season Rowland has been drafting a pair of his ends, Bill Szanyi and Charley Butler for defense backfield roles.

His up-coming Freshmen are being well-grounded in Rowland's jack-of-all-positions system. They went down to Virginia this season with a squad totalling 14 players in the absence of four guys who were hurt. Virginia paraded a Freshman squad of 40 onto the field, but it didn't help. The Colonials' little iron men, most of 'em playing 60 minutes, knocked the Cavaliers off, 13-7.

THERE AREN'T ANY specialists among the Colonials, unless it is Andy Davis, their good tailback who specializes in most everything. Rowland all season has been indulging himself with what he fancied to be a smart tack with respect to his centers. He has been playing Talbot Dredge at center on offense and replacing him with Johnny Grinnell on defense, but that's out now. Dredge is hurt, and Ginnell is getting both jobs.

Charley Butler was a halfback last year, and he intercepted two Georgetown passes to stave off touchdowns, but Rowland has been compelled to improvise, and this year Butler is an end. Cordelli, a 160-pounder, played at tackle on offense in the Lafayette game, and then shifted to defensive back.

The Colonials have won only three games thus far this year, and at any other school that might be called a disastrous season, but Rowland can recoup beautifully if he beats Georgetown tomorrow. That's a nice spot for a coach—win one particular game and you can call your season a success.

ROWLAND THINKS HE has his team ready to win this one. He's making no grand claims—no statements that may goad the Georgetowners to surpass themselves—but the Colonials share his confidence. There are a couple of material reasons why. They answer to the names of Stan Burak and Andy Davis, and at George Washington there is the confidence Georgetown has nothing to match that pair of backs.

Burak is the blocking back who banged up his leg in the game with Citadel and was sadly missing from the Duke contest. For the Colonials, his absence was well-nigh crippling, but he's suiting up for tomorrow's battle, and Davis won't be without escort.

The GW's didn't have to take that 62-0 beating at Duke, but with the Georgetown game in view Rowland held Davis out of there throughout the second half. Despite the acclaim for GU's Billy Conn, the GW's think that in Davis they'll have the best football player on the field. And they may even have the best football team, after 58 years.

Burnett Blanked in Philly

Our Spy Finds Shibe Park But the Eagles Evade Him

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—Today I tried to get a view of the Philadelphia Eagles' practice for Sunday's game with the Washington Redskins and found it would be just about as easy to watch 'em make atom bombs at Oak Ridge.

For on-the-spot news, my advance trip to Shibe Park was a thorough bust.

I found out that Shibe Park attendants are the acme of courtesy, that the passageways under the stands are tidy, and that the Eagles' dressing room is cozy and clean. And that's about all I found out.

Armed to my Windsor knot with credentials and with the boss' final words still in my ears—"Get something first-hand, ya bum!"—I presented myself, sleepy but determined, at 11 a. m. The gatekeeper was polite, as previously mentioned—but firm.

"Wait here," he said and kept an eye on me while he whispered something into the phone. A large individual appeared, beckoned me to follow on an extensive tour of the stadium's subterranean passages.

Once we passed a runway and I could see two big men running out on the field. Just running, understand. My guide hurried me on. It was my most intimate view of the Eagles at work.

In the dressing room my companion settled down to paint headgear at a point between me and the door. He talked about Gorgeous George, the wrestler, and I brought up Steve Van Buren, Philadelphia's pile-driving back.

"Great ball player!" said the Rembrandt of the helmets.

I suggested a look at the Eagles' practice session. My big friend shook his head. That was enough. So we talked sporadically about Sammy Baugh and Chuck Bednarik and a few other gridmen.

"Great ball player!" my friend said about each one.

The Eagles' great passer, Tommy Thompson drifted in, blew his nose and said "This damn cold . . ." He sat down long enough to remark that (1) the '48 Eagles are the best team he's ever played on, (2) Sunday's game will probably go to the team getting an early jump, (3) his injured shoulder is almost well, and (4) the Eagles are "certainly up for this game."

"Great ball player!" my jailer commented as Thompson went out.

Livingston Out; Cheverko In

A New York Giant halfback replaced a former New York Giant halfback on the Washington Redskins' roster yesterday with the purchase of George Cheverko and retirement of Howie Livingston to the reserve list.

Cheverko is a 26-year-old 195-pounder, two years out of Fordham University where he paired with Joe Andrejco as the "Touchdown Twins." He is also a defensive standout like Livingston, whose injured knee A defensive standout like Livout the remainder of the season.

Highs Get Armory Free With Two Conditions

The public high schools yesterday were granted free-of-rent use of the National Guard Armory for interhigh basketball double-headers, with two strings attached:

1. The highs will probably have to give up their big double-header night of Friday.
2. They will have to pay $100 per double-header for use of the floor bleachers.

The three-man Armory board made those announcements yesterday after listening to statements by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Hobart M. Corning and Director of High School Athletics Hardy Pearce.

Financial Question

Pearce's original elation over news of the board's concession after a year-long verbal fight was dampened by the two conditions. He expressed doubt over whether or not the school series could function on an even financial basis without Friday night play.

Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, manager of the Armory explained that Friday and Saturday night dates are the ones from which the Armory collects its highest revenue.

"I have been told to make the Armory function on a self-sustaining financial basis. If the highs were to have the Armory on Friday nights at no charge, I doubt if we would finish in the black, said Bergman.

The only nights available to the highs under the present plans would be Wednesday and Sunday. They could use the floor on any afternoon.

George Washington and Georgetown Universities have rented the Armory for most of the Saturday nights. And the National Guard uses it on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Cost $900 Last Season

In his plea for free use of the Armory, Pearce reported that the schools were billed $1900 last season in rent by the Armory for nine dates. The schools were able to pay only $1000.

The bleachers were subleased by George Washington and Georgetown from the National Seating Co. for $3000 for four months. Last year, the public schools paid $500 for the season, to the two colleges.

Under this year's plans, the schools would pay $100 per double-header to G. W. and Georgetown. But last night, Rome Schwagel, graduate manager of athletics at Georgetown, said that he'd be glad to talk the problem over with Pearce to work out a cheaper rental for the bleachers.

Veeck Visits, Talks Trades With Griffith

Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, was in town yesterday warming over trade talk with Clark Griffith of the Nats.

Veeck sparred around for one of the Nat pitchers, presumably Walter Masterson, but Griff isn't letting any of his hurlers go unless he receives a pitcher in return.

Veeck also felt out Griffith on the possibility of acquiring First-baseman Mickey Vernon but the princely promoter of the Cleveland club didn't have much to offer in exchange.

Griffith indicated that he might be interested in Al Rosen, promising rookie from Kansas City of the American Association. Rosen can play third base or the outfield and might be converted into a first baseman, should the Vernon deal materialize.

Veeck was the second American League boss to drop in on Griffith in recent weeks to see if the old gentleman would turn loose of some of his trading material. George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees, preceded Veeck here.

But last night it looked as if Griffith would celebrate his seventy-ninth birthday Saturday by holding onto his prize stock until something more is offered by the bargain hunters.

Cleveland Offers Steve O'Neill Job

Cleveland, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—Steve O'Neill, who was fired as manager of the Detroit Tigers two weeks ago, was offered the job as pilot of the San Diego Padres in the Pacific Coast League by Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians signed a working agreement with San Diego last Wednesday, making the Padres the No. 1 affiliate in their farm system.

O'Neill, reached at his home in Cleveland, said he had not yet been notified officially of the offer by the Indians management, but added he would "think it over." He said he planned to "shop around" at the annual major league meeting in Chicago next month.

The portly former Tiger manager has made it known that he woud like to rejoin a major league club in some capacity.

Walsh Solves Hoya-GW Riddle—for Hoyas But Heft Discounts 'Foreigner's' Kibitzing

Native Herb Sees Davis Pacing GW Win

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

How do you like that guy Walsh . . . a foreigner . . . a Philadelphian no less . . . sticking his nose into the George Washington-Georgetown feud.

What does he know about it? He's seen only Georgetown this season, doesn't even know that G. W. is on G street.

Well take it from a hometown boy—G. W. will lick Georgetown. And get this—by two touchdowns. The score, I predict, will be G. W., 19; Georgetown, 7.

Walsh raves about Billy Conn. Well, I'll stick with the guy who plays like a pro, Andy Davis, that passing dandy.

I'll admit that this Conn boy has shown a lot of swift, and an occasional good pass for the good old Hoyas. But can he do as many things, as well as Davis?

D-A-V-I-S Does Everything

The answer is—wait and fail to see.

Davis can roll in that open field. He can smash inside the tackles, He can pass. He can punt. And he's G. W.'s No. 1 defensive back. He'll stand the Hoyas on their ears.

Now, let's talk about G. W.'s coach, Bo Rowland. A cagey fellow. He'll tell you that the G. W.-Georgetown feud is something he just recently heard of. Don't let Bo, the old possum, fool you.

He really wants that game, and has wanted it since the season opened. He began personally scouting Georgetown's Friday games in September. He scouted only one other team personally. That was The Citadel. And he wanted that win badly, too. He used to coach there. G. W. won that game, 14-0—remember?

You may ask—and how do you figure that G. W. will score three touchdowns. The Colonials did that only once this season.

That's right. But look who the Colonials scored 'em against—Virginia, one of the toughest teams in the South. G. W. won that one too, 20-12.

That was G. W.'s first victory over Virginia in 55 years. G. W.'s aiming to make this its first victory over the Hoyas in 58 years.

The G. W. line will be out-

Jack Picks Score, Too: Georgetown, 14 to 7

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

They told Herb Heft and me to argue this GW-Georgetown affair at Griffith Stadium Saturday pro and con. Well, I'm happy to take Conn's side.

I look for Billy Conn to lead those Hoyas to a hard-fought victory in a close, exciting ball game. I'll even pick the score for you—(Gallup's still in business, what have I got to lose?) Make it Georgetown, 14; George Washington, 7.

Look, here's another inside tip. Don't waste time reading Heft's fabrications. Why the chump went to George Washington U.

One tough thing about this game for me and Coach Jack Hagerty is that it's what they call a traditional tilt. You know, past performances count for naught and all that sort of thing.

Truthfully, Hagerty is worried. And, truthfully, I don't blame him a bit. All you have to do is to look over the series scores to realize that those Colonials play like demons against poor little Georgetown.

Pool Cards Even "Biased"

They've never won, but that's another problem. It's bad enough to play 11 hopped-up madmen without have percentage going against you.

The game's a toss-up in anybody's book. I was afraid Georgetown would be made a false favorite. But what are the sharpsters doing? Only giving GW 13 points. They sure aren't working for Georgetown.

Let me weaken my argument a little more. I must confess I'm afraid of this little guy Bo Rowland. Bo became my Coach Of The Year when his undermanned squad went to Charlottesville and came back with a 20-12 victory over Virginia. And Bo told me himself he wants to beat Georgetown 10 times as much.

But enough of this defeatist talk. I repeat—Georgetown will win.

Con's ready to run and that's the best thing that could happen to the Hoyas. Billy's a brilliant soph and he's going to be an All-American before he's through. Conn's in a good spot to show up this

W. Va. Frosh Lose, 26-12, To Terrapins

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 18.—Maryland's Frosh spotted West Virginia's yearlings a 12-0 lead and came back in the second half to score a 26-12 victory in a Knights of Columbus charity game here tonight before 4500.

The Mountaineers went ahead on two touchdown passes by Ken Bartges who threw a 34-yard toss to Tom Harden and a 27-yard aerial to George Hott.

Bartges had another big moment in the second period when he booted a 94-yard punt. Maryland was stopped on the West Virginia 4 when Bartges went into the end zone to boot. His kick traveled to the Maryland 30 in the air, bounced to the 12 and rolled dead on the Terp 2.

The second half was all Maryland. Big Ed Modzelewski, Terps' terrific fullback, got the first score on a 1-yard plunge and passed to Henry Fox for 41 yards for the last.

Sandwiched were Lynn Davis' 4-yard scoring end run and a six-pointer made by Sub Tackle Bill Treiver, a Cumberland boy, who fell on a bad pass from center in the West Virginia end zone.

W. Virginia Frosh	6	6	0	0	—12

Maryland: Touchdowns—Modzelewski, Davis, Treiver, Fox. Points after touchdown—Fry, 2 (placement). West Virginia: Touchdowns—Harden, Hott.

Wilson Loses 2d Player on Ineligibility

As an aftermath of an investigation prompted by the Jack Talbert case, Halfback Nick DeLodovico, jr., yesterday was transferred from Woodrow Wilson High School.

The reason given is that DeLodovico gave a false address when he enrolled at Wilson in September. He was a McKinley Tech schoolmate of Talbert's last year.

Last Tuesday, school authorities discovered that Talbert was a Tech graduate, playing football at Wilson under the assumed name of "Ralph Swiggard." Wilson had to forfeit three victories.

DeLodovico's correct address is 241 Longfellow st. nw., within the Calvin Coolidge High boundary. It was not certain whether DeLodovico would be transferred to Coolidge or Tech. But the transfer was to be effective today.

A junior, the 140-pound DeLodovico alternated as regular right halfback with George Papafotis on the Wilson team. His 14-yard pass to Bob Rielly last Friday accounted for Wilson's only touchdown as it lost, 34-6, to Central.

DeLodovico could not be reached by phone last night. His mother said he was out "taking a walk with Jack Talbert."

All eight principals in the interhigh schools were conducting their own investigations of the eligibility of their football players. School officials were leaving it up to the principals to forfeit games as soon as eligibility infractions are discovered.

Zanelli KO's Anton Raadik

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP).—After giving away 12½ pounds and almost that many years, rough Ralph Zanelli of Providence, R. I., gained a technical knockout verdict over Middleweight Title Contender Anton Raadik of Chicago, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round feature boxing bout tonight at the Boston Garden.

Zanelli weighed 147½ to Raadik's 160 pounds.

Raadik, who boasts that he floored Middleweight Champion Marcel Cerdan three times in Chicago a few months ago, took four nine-counts after being belted on the head and jaw by the overaged Rhode Islander's lefts and rights.

Ike Stops Nixon

Rose Bowl Invitation Rides on Saturday's Results

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—This football forecaster is lumbering along with an eight-weeks' average of .779 on 494 correct predictions and 140 misses as we plunge into the next to last go-round of the 1948 season:

Michigan vs. Ohio State—By spoiling Michigan's bid for a second straight all-victorious season, the Buckeyes would have a legal claim to the Rose Bowl assignment, provided Illinois upsets Northwestern. This corner foresees no such reversal by either Ohio State or Illinois, however.

Baylor vs. Southern Methodist—This is the time of year when the strangest things happen in the Southern Conference. The Mustangs have been flirting with disaster for the past three weeks and could get it in the neck here. But as long as Doak Walker can run, pass and kick those extra points, the choice is SMU.

Dartmouth vs. Princeton—With Cornell due to battle Penn for the championship on Thanksgiving Day, this has no real bearing on the Ivy League title. Dartmouth is a 1-point favorite. So be it. Dartmouth.

Northwestern vs. Illinois—Despite a natural tendency to let down after their heartbreaking loss to Notre Dame, the Wildcats aren't likely to kick away the trip to Pasadena that will be theirs if they win this finale.

Minnesota vs. Wisconsin—For the Rose Bowl bid, what happens if Minnesota wins, making its record 5-2 in the Big Nine, and upsets by Ohio State and Illinois leave Northwestern and Ohio State with final conference standings of 4-2? You figure it out. Minnesota.

Stanford vs. California—The Bears to wind up a perfect 10-game season. But if Oregon should get the Rose Bowl nod, won't that Pasadena contract look somewhat silly with the only unbeaten teams in the two conferences involved out in the cold?

Oklahoma vs. Kansas—Both teams have won seven straight since dropping their openers. For two years they have shared the title in their conference, now the Big Seven. The powerful Sooners are favored but Kansas is capable of an upset.

Duke vs. North Carolina—The Tar Heels missed their chance to tie Clemson for the Southern Conference crown when they were deadlocked by William and Mary. But they still have a chance for a Bowl assignment.

Penn State vs. Pittsburgh—The Panthers always are tough for the Nittany Lions, who enter this one with the full realization that the jinx might lead to an upset. But our vote rides with Penn State.

Oregon vs. Oregon State—After taking this one in stride, all the Webfoots need to do is to sit back and wait for the Rose Bowl votes to be counted.

Furman vs. Georgia—It's nice for the Bulldogs that they get to chew on poor little Furman the week before they collide with Georgia Tech in the Southeastern Conference showdown. By a mile, Georgia.

Yale vs. Harvard—Now that these ancient rivals and their freshman coaches have taken it on the chin from so many others, they should have fun taking it out on each other. In a close one, Harvard.

Kentucky vs. Tennessee—The Vols' November stretch drive struck a snag in Mississippi but they should be able to handle Kentucky, despite the fact both teams have identical records.

Central Should Clinch High Title in Western Game Today

7th Straight Win Sought By Vikings

On the threshold of their first Interhigh football championship in six years, Central's Vikings can gain their goal today by beating thrice-beaten Western at 3:25 p. m. at Central.

The Vikings haven't been licked in six league games, and have a clear-cut claim to the title if they can finish off their last rival today.

INTERHIGH FOOTBALL STANDINGS

Central	6	0	1.000	Western	3	3	.500

Eastern	5	2	.714	Wilson	0	6	.000
McKinley	4	2	.667	Roosevelt	0	6	.000

A Western upset would, however, throw a wrench in Central's works. The Vikings would have to play off with the second-place team for the title.

At present, Anacostia and Eastern are tied for second, and McKinley Tech can join the deadlock by beating Coolidge today at Tech. Wilson entertains Roosevelt in the only other Interhigh game today, all starting at 3:15 p. m.

The Western camp yesterday served notice that it will provide "more than token opposition" to Central.

"This is our big ball game, and we'll crack the whip, and use every trick to win," said Western Coach Fred Mulvey. "Even though we are out of the running, the boys feel their season can be a success with a victory over the champions."

Western uses a fancy T-formation with little Dale Summerbell, a passing and running star, in the quarterback slot. Dick Casey, a hard plunger, will be at fullback, and Jim O'Leary and Eddie Dunlap will round out the backfield.

Sorely missed will be Dale Larsen and Wade Hubbard, Western's brightest stars earlier in the season. Both are out with injuries.

Central will bank on its great little quarterback Jimmy Pantos to guide it to victory. When he isn't running or passing, Jimmy will hand off.

When he isn't running or passing to Ends Bill Dunker and Franny Gleason, he'll be handing off to line-smashers Jack Wert and Johnny Romans.

Savannah Drops Move to Have NBA Discipline Conn

The Savannah (Ga.) Boxing Commission has decided not to seek suspension of Heavyweight Billy Conn for withdrawing from a scheduled fight there, it was announced tonight.

Harvey L. Miller, executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, said that Savannah boxing commissioner, Leon Collins, has withdrawn his intention to ask that the N.B.A. suspend Conn.

Conn was to have appeared in Savannah last night against Whitey Berlier of New Orleans, but he withdrew from the fight on Tuesday, saying he had suffered a hand injury in a Macon, Ga., bout Monday night.

Collins advised Miller that affidavits from Macon indicated that Conn had an injured hand and also that Conn's agreement to box in Savannah was not a formal contract.

Landon J.V. Eleven Beats St. Albans, 7-6

The Landon J. V. football team won its final game of the season yesterday by nosing out St. Albans, 7-6, at St. Albans. St. Albans made its score in the second period. Landon came back in the fourth quarter when Otto Ottman ran 25 yards off tackle to tie the score. Andy Francis made the extra point on a run to win. The Landon 120-pound team remained undefeated by winning its last game of the season, 13-6, over St. Albans. Danny Slowe starred by scoring both touchdowns and the extra point.

Duel of Glamour Boys Shares Billing With Lions, Ramblers

A duel of glamour kids will be featured in the nets tonight when Coach Frank Beisler's Washington Lions return to Uline ice against the New Haven Ramblers in an American Hockey League match at 8:30 o'clock.

Emil Francis, handsome 22-year-old brunette goal tender who represented the old Eastern League Lions here several years ago and who played with the Chicago Black Hawks last season, will be on the job for the invaders. Lou (Whitey) Crowdis, 21-year-old platinum blond rookie, will represent the Lions.

Francis was fair-haired boy of the Eastern League Lions as a 17-year-old here during the war, and was voted his team's most popular player at that time. Crowdis, a graduate of Oshawa Juniors, is Washington's most promising young goalie since Francis, and will be soundly tested in tonight's match.

Lock Haven Seeks Sixth Win In Game With Catholic Here

Lock Haven State Teachers College seeks its sixth victory of the football season Saturday when it plays Catholic University at Brookland

The Bald Eagles, fifth in the mythical 13-team State Teachers College conference in Pennsylvania, has lost four games against five victories. The C. U. engagement is the finale on the Lock Haven schedule.

Lock Haven has scored 163 points against its opponents' 96. Victims of the Eagles include Lincoln University, Millersville, Indiana and Mansfield Teachers Colleges and Geneva (Pa.) College.

Undefeated West Liberty (W. Va.), and Bloomsburg (Pa.) Teachers, and Alliance (Pa.) College scored victories over Lock Haven.

The veteran Bald Eagle team is sparked by Dick Colliver, left halfback from Johnstown, who has tallied 48 points to rank tenth in Pennsylvania. Right End Bob Snaith is a defensive standout.

Far from discouraged by his team's dismal record, Catholic U. Coach Tom Chisari thinks the Cards will surprise in their finale. Catholic doesn't figure to win but with Joe Mauiri back in the lineup, Bucky Ennis and Bill Holl ready to go, it'll shoot the works.

Episcopal Shooters Lose

George Washington of Alexandria defeated Episcopal High, hometown rival, yesterday in a rifle match at GW's range, 870 to 760. Morrison Clements led the winners with a score of 99 prone, 85 standing for 184.

Marines Win, 61-21

The Headquarters Marine Corps basketball team yesterday defeated the Army Communications Station, 61-21, at Henderson Hall. This was the Marines' second win.

With Toledo

This Season Stahley's in Glass Bowl

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 18.—Football fortunes change. Last year Skip Stahley won only one game with his George Washington team and resigned. This year Skip skippers the Toledo U. eleven in the third annual Glass Bowl December 4.

It should be pointed out that Toledo automatically is the host team and its record is an unsensational three victories and six defeats. But Skip's in a bowl.

Another Washington twist is that Oklahoma City University today accepted a bid to oppose Toledo. Bo Rowland, Stahley's successor at GW, tutored the Oklahomans last season.

Oklahoma City has won four, lost three and tied one. It defeated Youngtown, Ohio, and tied Dayton, Ohio.

Spartans Available

Detroit, Nov. 18 (AP).—Michigan State College is willing to give consideration to any offer to send its football team to "a major bowl game."

Athletic Director Ralph H. Young made this statement today following a proposal that the Spartans play off a recent tie game with Penn State in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl. Young said Michigan State had received "feelers" but did not say from which bowls.

Texas Tech Declines

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Texas Tech, Border Conference leader, rejected an invitation to play in the Sun Bowl here New Year's Day and bowl officials immediately announced that Texas Mines, the local Border Conference entry, would be invited as the host team.

Prominently mentioned as possible opponents were Maryland, Lafayette, West Virginia, Utah, Miami of Ohio, Cincinnati, St. Bonaventure, Lehigh and Dayton.

Even Troh Plays

Jacksonville, Ala., Nov. 18 (AP).—Finis Gaston, sports publicity director at Jacksonville State Teachers College, said today Jacksonville has accepted an invitation to play Troh (Ala.), Teachers in the Camellia Bowl at Pensacola, Fla., December 18.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 18 (AP).—Excelsior Springs High School of Kansas City, Mo., will oppose Augusta Military Academy of Fort Defiance, Va., in the second annual Orchid Bowl December 3.

The Missouri team has gone undefeated for 19 games. As champion of the Missouri River Valley Conference, it has won nine games this year. Augusta Military played in the first Orchid Bowl game last year, defeating McCallie of Chattanooga, 27 to 13.

Masterdom Pays Price; Picou Wins 3

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 18.—What began as a mild afternoon of racing turned into a rather hectic affair with a variety of happenings. Not necessarily in the order of their importance, but some of the highlights were:

1. P. E. Albert's Masterdom won the fourth race at a $159 win mutuel, the longest individual payoff of the Maryland fall season. Jockey J. Robertson, who had a hand in yesterday's rags-to-riches daily double, was aboard Masterdom.

2. Today's daily double paid a mere $11.40, quite a drop from the $2942 return for the usual $2 investment yesterday. Today's combination was 3 and 3.

3. Confusion marked the period after the fifth race. Not only did the finish bring a dead heat between J. Schwebel's Gino Gold and W. I. Jones' Helen Dear, but it also produced a foul claim that was not allowed.

4. Apprentice Clarence Picou, current saddle sensation, rode three winners on the program, two of them for his contract employer, the Brookmeade Stable, trained by Preston Burch of Washington.

Among Picou's victories was one in the day's feature, the Colmar Manor.

Favorites Win, Too

He coasted Brookmeade Stable's Me Always, into the finish line to take the sprint of six furlongs for 3-year-old fillies. The daughter of Menow, operating before a crowd of 9000, finished three lengths in front of Mrs. P. F. Lister's Evenin Rose with the latter a like margin ahead of C. E. Tuttle's Discovert in the field of eight.

Me Always was the afternoon's fourth favorite to win and returned a $4.80 mutuel to her legion of backers, many drawn by the saddle artistry of young Picou. The Texas lad sent the filly the three quarters in 1:12 2/5.

Evening Rose, hopped to the front at the break with Me Always close up and Paintandpowder, which drew good backing, third. Evening Rose set a steady pace while Picou sat tight with the public choice. In the stretch, the boy asked for speed and Me Always replied by charging past Evening Rose and it was all over.

Winners Pay $11.40, $13

The pacemaker continued willingly when displaced and held Discovert safe for the place money. Paintandpowder, showing a dull effort, finished in fifth position, 14 lengths behind the winner.

Apprentice Dick McKenna, who rode Gino Gold, claimed the fifth-race foul against apprentice Willie Gilbert who piloted Helen Dear, maintaining the latter's horse lugged in on his mount in the final sixteenth. The stewards listened and then allowed the result to stand.

Three and a half lengths behind the dead heat came the favorite, William Irvine, jr.'s, Turn Back to be third in the field of 12 operating at a mile and a furlong. Gino paid $11.40, $13 and $6.40, while Helen Dear returned $13, $13.80 and $6.40. Turn Back was $2.60 to show. The winning time was 1:56 2/5.

weighed by about 15 pounds per man, but don't let that scare you. Tackles Harvey Shipman and Jim Feula, Center Johnny Grinnell and the other Colonias played their best games against heavier Virginia, V. P. I. and Wake Forest teams. One of their worst games was against V. M. I., a team which was lighter than G. W.

Nine local boys will be in the G. W. lineup. They know what a win over Georgetown would mean. Besides "One Man Gang" Davis, G. W. hometowners are Backs Dick Koester, Al DuGoff, Joe Buell and John Shullenbarger, Center Johnny Grinnell, Guard Dixie Howell and Tackles Clarence Drayer and Duke Mathieson.

The Citadel Coach Signs 5-Year Contract

Charlestown, S. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Head Coach J. Quinn Decker of The Citadel announced today that he had decided to accept a five-year contract to remain at the military college.

He turned in his resignation last month and asked that consideration be given to relieving him of his duties in March, 1949,

'Our Spy' Finds Shibe Park But Eagles Evade Him

so I asked for a pardon. I was led back to the gate, still without a blindfold. Just before I regained my freedom my companion apologized for not allowing me out on the field. I caught myself with the urge to say—"Great ball player!"

The Eagles' Coach Greasy Neale was cornered at a Pen and Pencil Club luncheon later. He was in a cocky mood. But it was in a serious tone that he said: "We want to knock the Redskins out of the Eastern division race ourselves. We don't want the Bears to do it for us next week."

Neale said that Halfback Pat McHugh and Fullback Jack Myers, the only doubtful players up until now, definitely would play Sunday. "Everybody will be ready," he cracked, "unless the players start running into each other."

Ends Neil Armstrong and Dick Humbert again will be used as halfbacks for pass defense, Neale said, as a result of last week's experiment against the Boston Yanks.

You got the idea Neale and his Eagles may be leaning a little toward overconfidence. Neale pulled a lot of stops when he discussed his stars. Asked to compare Van Buren, the National Football League's leading ballcarrier, with the great Red Grange, Neale said:

"Grange never saw the day he could run with our boy. The nearest runner to Steve was Jim Thorpe."

Walsh Picks Hoyas by 14-7

Andy Davis and he's a good enough competitor to do just that.

If Conn's injured knee acts up, look for my boy Elmer Raba to step in and help. Raba's thrown some nice passes in the last two games, two for touchdowns. He's a hometown boy, a senior, and I think he's going to justify his high promise in this, his last game.

Hoyas Score in Every Game

Georgetown hasn't been held scoreless all season and I don't think it will be blanked Saturday. The Hoyas have some good backs—Johnny Hughes, Dick Barba, Lou Miller, Dick Haesler, Tony Beyer, Connie O'Doherty, Jack Kivus, Tommy Hardiman, Billy Rose to mention just a few.

The ends are good, too. This boy George Benigni is the best pass shagger I've seen all year. George has caught 12 of 14 and many of his catches have been slightly unbelievable. Benigni himself has scored three touchdowns. Bill Dzugan, Fran Desmond and Bob Noppinger are other good wings.

One thing's certain, Davis' passing won't be "on" if he's rushed. And the Hoyas have the line to do that rushing. It's anchored by Capt. Vic Banonis, an underrated center who can play with any of them. Behind him is Bob Kelly.

Big Jim Ricca, Sal Cavallero, Phil Funk, Jim O'Keefe, Andy Ronon, John Berger are some of the other boys who've promised to dump Handy Andy.

The whole squad agrees on one thing—it won't be the first Georgetown team to lose to George Washington.

Bearden Named 'Player of Year'

Cleveland, Nov. 18 (AP).—Gene Bearden, the Cleveland Indians' rookie southpaw, was selected by the Cleveland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America today as "Baseball Man of the Year."

Bearden will be honored at a banquet by the chapter in late January.

Harry Jones of the Cleveland Plain Dealer was elected chairman of the chapter,

Terps Test For Vandy's High Scoring

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

One thing's almost certain, that Maryland-Vanderbilt battle at Nashville Saturday won't wind up in a scoreless tie.

Vanderbilt, riding high on a five-game winning streak, hasn't scored fewer than four touchdowns in any game since its first three. Only once this year have the Terps been held to less than three touchdowns.

Big Jim Tatum drove his Terps long and late yesterday at College Park. In fact, they continued after darkness, turning on the lights for the first time this season.

Terps Hope to Repeat

Maryland's anxious to repeat its 20-7 upset over the Commodores last season, the first victory the Terps scored in five attempts. If they can, they'll regain some of the prestige they lost against North Carolina.

The squad leaves in its chartered plane 11 a. m. today for the three-hour hop to Nashville. Win, lose or draw, it will be back Saturday night.

Statistics Favor Maryland

Statistically, the Terps should hold that high-scoring Vanderbilt outfit. Maryland's second nationally on total defense and fourth on passing defense.

Both squads are in good shape for the contest but three Terps will be left behind. Out for the season because of injuries are Vern Seibert, halfback; Bill Everson, line backer, and Jim Moller, reserve end.

Charley Miller Wins Midget Race

Charley Miller of Linden, N. J., won the 25-lap feature midget auto race at Uline Arena before 1150 fans last night. Jim Forte was second, and Don (Flash) Gordon third.

Bill Doggerty of Philadelphia received a broken nose in one of the trial runs when his auto crashed into the retaining wall. His car was not damaged.

GW Coaches Attend Georgetown's Smoker

President Jim McNarama and the rest of his "G" Club band of Georgetown lettermen plan to whoop up a little anti-George Washington feeling at a smoker at 8:30 tonight at the Washington Hotel. But GW's athletic department and coaching staff is big about it and will attend the Georgetown rally for Saturday's big game.

G. W. High Captures Cross-Country Meet

The scores were: G. W., 16; Baltimore Poly, 82; Woodrow Wilson, 101; McKinley Tech, 107; Anacostia, 145; Washington-Lee of Arlington, 190, and Air Transport Service, 220.

George Washington High of Alexandria won a cross-country meet yesterday at Alexandria's 2-mile course. Virginia's high school half-mile champ Bobby Jones led the G. W. troupe across the wire.

Basketball Meeting Set for December 1

An organization meeting for basketball leagues to be sponsored by the recreation department of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will be held on Wednesday, December 1, at 8500 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md.

Terps Enter Meet

East Lansing, Nov. 18 (AP).—University of Maryland is expected to enter the tenth annual NCAA cross country grind which will attract 250 entries from 40 colleges to Michigan State, the host school.

Soccer Match Sunday

The Maryland Sport Club will play the French Embassy soccer team on Sunday at 2:30 p. m., in the opening round of the Maryland State Stewart Amateur Cup competition at Piney Grove.

W-L Will Row

Washington-Lee High of Arlington will enter the field of rowing this season, the school announced yesterday. Under the direction of Charles S. Butt of the Potomac Boat Club, the school will have an eight-oared boat crew.

Harriers Will Run Monday

The first Metropolitan Cross-Country Interhigh Meet will be held on Monday, November 22, at 2:45 p. m. at Gallaudet College. All high schools in Washington's metropolitan area are scheduled to compete.

War Vets Play Sunday

The Irish War Veterans unlimited grid squad will meet the Fredericksburg Eagles at the James Monroe Stadium in Fredericksburg, Va., on Sunday, November 21, at 2 p. m.

Dunbar Plays Today

Dunbar High is host to St. Elizabeth's High of Chicago today at 2:30 p. m. at Brooks Stadium.

My Hobby

Some people like to gather stamps . . . Old coins or bottle tops . . . Antiques or match book covers or . . . The labels from the shops . . . Their hobbies are innumerable . . .
And show all sorts of trends
. . . But I am always striving to . . . Collect a lot of friends
. . . Because they mean much more to me . . . Than ordinary things . . . Like photographs and greeting cards . . . Or lavaliers and rings . . . They comfort me when I am sad . . .
They smile when I am gay . . .
And in their company I live
. . . A more exciting day . . .
Although they cost me nothing they . . . Are priceless as can be . . . And that is why my hobby is . . . To save them carefully.

ASHES! THAT'LL FIX 'EM! THESE ASHES WILL STOP THOSE YOUNG SCAMPS FROM SLIDING DOWN THIS HILL!

What's the Verdict?

LENGTH OF WOOD

Q. A farmer brings to town a load of wood sawed into 1-foot lengths. Does the length of the wood have anything to do with how he may sell it?

A. If there were no statute or municipal regulation on the subject, he could sell it as he saw fit. But regulations for selling many types of articles are common. In the District, a statute requires that wood more than 8 inches long must be sold by the cord. Shucked oysters may be sold only by liquid measure or numerical count. A barrel of corn on the cob is 350 pounds; a barrel of shelled corn is 280 pounds. . . . F. L. D.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Gently Reared by Illiterate Mother, Girl Achieves Some Business Success, Then Weds College Man Whose Social Set Frightens Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My father died when I was a baby, leaving my mother with three small children. Mother isn't educated, can't even write her own name, and had to do all kinds of domestic work to provide for us.

Although we were always poor, mother was very clean and had a very sweet disposition. We were always well liked and respected in our neighborhood, but due to mother's lack of education we were very sheltered and as a result I am very sensitive, get hurt at any remarks made about me, and blush until I almost burn up.

I have a grammar school education and started work as an office clerk. I was employed by the same firm for 15 years, until I married, and in that time worked myself up to office manager. In this capacity I met my husband. We were married six months ago.

Don is three years my junior, a college graduate, handsome, with a winning personality. We own a beautiful home, I have plenty of gorgeous clothes, which I never had before, and we are very much in love.

Hears Two Girls Taking Her Apart

HOWEVER, a painful incident that happened two weeks ago has made me so self-conscious that I wish I had married in my own class. Don's club gave a dance two weeks ago, and he insisted that I go with him, even though I do not dance. To avoid argument I agreed to go, much to my sorrow.

While I was in the lounge, two girls entered, who didn't see me. They started to criticize me, saying, "What did Don ever see in her? And did you notice the way she pronounced her words?" Since then I am just going crazy, torturing myself, knowing my education doesn't equal Don's, and being sensitive about it.

Some evenings later I wouldn't go to a friend's home with Don because as soon as I open my mouth I get scared to death. My voice breaks, my tongue gets dry, and my hands are very clammy. I don't want Don to know this; but last night he remarked that I wasn't my sweet self, but getting moody.

I am even avoiding our neighbors, because they also are of the

"EACH recipe has been tested in the laboratory of the family, the home kitchen," reads the introduction in the new Congressional Club Cookbook, due to come from the press about December 1. Here, Mrs. Clifford Davis, president of the club, tries out a cake recipe, while Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith, chairman of the cookbook committee, looks over a dummy of the binding planned for the book. This copy is blue and beige, but there'll be red and beige ones, too

How to Fix What for Whom

New Congressional Cookbook Ready

By Lucia Brown

YOU CAN learn how to make an official call, "Stuffed Monkey" a la Australia, or Mrs. Truman's "Ozark Pudding" from a unique, 600-page book which will soon come from the press.

It's the new Congressional Club Cookbook, latest edition of a volume first published by the congressional wives organization back in 1927. And though previous issues—there have been three—approached "best seller" demand, the new one boasts a lot of things the old ones didn't have.

A section on protocol—of particular interest to newcomers in Washington—is one of them. Then there are recipes from some 50 foreign countries, contributed by members of the diplomatic colony. Information about calories and diet is included for the benefit of those who would retain svelte figures despite Capital dinner parties.

Menus, tips on table setting, and other handy household information appears, and the book is illustrated by beautiful colored photographs of tea table arrangements at the clubhouse and of various dishes. Main portion of the volume, however, is devoted to hundreds of recipes contributed by the wives of Cabinet members, Supreme Court Justices, Congressmen, former Congressmen and Governors.

The new cookbook, to be issued on the fortieth anniversary of the Congressional Club, has occupied a large share of the time and attention of one of its members for the past year. She is Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith, whose husband is Congressman from Wisconsin and who serves as chairman of the cookbook committee.

A Task for the Editor

EDITING Congressional Club Cookbooks isn't a new job for Mrs. Smith—she was in charge of the 1942 wartime edition—but this one has proven quite a task. Some 2000 recipes were collected via carefully planned blanks that called the writers' attention to the need for including exact oven temperature, the number of persons the dish would serve, and other vital points. After the recipes arrived, there was a lot of sorting to be done—sorting that revealed such snags as the fact that eight Governors' wives had sent in recipes for Cheese Souffle. There was also the job of translating receipes in Spanish, French, and other foreign languages.

To help her with the job, Mrs. Smith had nine other committee members, each of whom had some special responsibility. For instance, Mrs. William Whittington of Mississippi, a past president of the club, wrote the protocol section, and Mrs. Dean Taylor, of New York, a home economics graduate, compiled the material on diets.

Of particular help in getting the foreign receipts together was Mrs. Carlos Romulo, wife of the former Philippine Resident Commissioner who is now delegate to the United Nations. Members take pride in this foreign recipe section, feeling they can help spread a bit of international good will by the exchange of recipes. The one for Stuffed Monkey, incidentally, was contributed by Mrs. Norman J. O. Makin, wife of the Australian Ambassador.

The wife of the President of the United States, who joined the club when her husband was Senator, has written a foreword for the book and contributed some of her favorite recipes, too. Signed simply "Bess W. Truman, Missouri," are the following directions for making Ozark Pudding, a dish which features chopped apples and nuts and is served with whipped cream or ice cream.

OZARK PUDDING

¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup chopped apple
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg and sugar together for a long time until very smooth. Mix flour, baking powder, and salt and stir into sugar-egg mixture. Add nuts, apples, and vanilla. Bake in greased pie tin in medium oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 35 minutes. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

Preview of Recipes

RECIPES contributed by congressional wives range all the way from Mrs. Karl Mundt's for "Pheasant Casserole" to the "Husband's Cake" suggested by Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff of Michigan. Just to give you a preview, here are a few from wives from various sections of the country:

PHEASANT CASSEROLE

(By Mrs. Karl Mundt, South Dakota)

Shortening
1 pint cream (either sweet or sour)
Flour
Salt
Pepper

Skin the pheasant and draw as you would in preparing a chicken. Cut in pieces for frying. After rinsing, wipe each piece carefully, removing any stray feathers or shot. Roll in flour. Fry in generous amount of shortening to a golden brown. Place in covered roaster or casserole, season with salt and pepper, and add 1 pint cream. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 1 hour. If liquid

Sponsor's Tea Opens Exhibit

Parable of Omelettes and Chicks

Mrs. Lausche, One Maid, Six Carefully Screened Murderers Work Miracle

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

JANE, wife of former and also Governor-elect Frank Lausche of Ohio, has been in town briefly, staying with her Cleveland school pal, Kay Halle. Slight, brunette Mrs. Lausche, after two years of private life (her first quiet spell in 15 years) is on her toes to again take on the Governor's Mansion in Columbus.

Life for a Governor's lady, especially in Ohio where an extraordinary amount of unusual things seem to happen daily, is rugged. Jane Lausche will preside over a 27-room house which she'll try to keep in repair on an allowance of $600 a year.

Even in wartime (her husband was Governor in 1945 and 1946) when the mansion was supposedly officially closed, she served around 1400 meals a month. This was practically done with mirrors since they were allotted no extra ration points, had to make do on four books. When omelets and eggs creamed with mushrooms began to pall, she bought day-old chicks, and in the back garden raised over 500 to frying stage during 12 months. Her experiences as chicken fancier rival those of "The Egg and I"s Betty MacDonald.

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

MRS. FRANK LAUSCHE

Wanted: Longer Hours

THE mansion is run without a housekeeper, without a personal secretary, but with Carrie, a competent cook of 18 years service, a maid and six masculine convicts. The convicts are "lifers," in for murder. All are carefully screened, first apprenticed and trained in the warden's household. Their sole hope for liberty lies in a gubernatorial pardon. They arrive at 7 a. m., are driven back to what they call "the institution" after work.

Once Mrs. Lausche, distressed at their over-long hours, mentioned she'd try to shorten them. "Oh, aren't we satisfactory?" they chorused. Assured that they were, her staff asked for even more work—otherwise they'd be locked alone in their cells.

Interested in prisoner rehabilitation, Mrs. Donahey, wife of a former Governor, first employed lifers. Since they are "one crime" men, forced to murder under exceptional circumstances, Mrs. Lausche says the idea has proved a two-way success. For example, Lightner, 200-pound plus colored butler, as a teen-age boy killed a drunken father attacking his mother. After two decades imprisonment, he was pardoned by the Governor.

Days Like Nightmares

JANE LAUSCHE'S "day" sounds like a nightmare. She gets up at 7, spends all morning answering mail and telephone calls. She receives between 3500 and 4000 letters a year and in trying to answer all can't keep up with her friends. Every day in the year she has a luncheon, an afternoon meeting, tea or reception and either has company or dines out evenings. In eight months, she once estimated, she and her husband had dinner together twice.

During campaigns she handles the woman's angle—never makes political speeches but travels all over the State, meeting and talking to women. She loves Ohio's small towns, river sections and mining districts.

After graduating from school Jane took a job with a Cleveland decorating firm, made a specialty of designing lighting fixtures for offices and hotels. She met her husband on a double date, was engaged five years, has been married over 20.

A Natural Politician

FRANK LAUSCHE, who's regarded as one of the brightest younger men in national politics, is of Slovene and German-Slovene extraction. His mother came from a small village near Ljubliana in Yugoslavia. The eldest of six, he helped younger brothers through college, teaching law nights for extra money. Possessed of the passionate love of country typical of southeastern Europe, political life was a natural attraction.

He started his career as leader of Cleveland's Twenty-third Ward, up to a judgeship on the Common Pleas bench in 1941 was elected mayor. After a second term in the mayoralty he was elected Governor with the greatest majority in Ohio history. He lost by 38,000 votes in the Republican 1946 sweep, but this year, though all political bosses fought him bitterly in the primaries, was returned with a second overwhelming majority.

Like his wife, Governor-elect Lausche is a terrific worker. He plays a neat game of golf when he has time—which is practically never. Next step onward is a rumored Senatorship—after that, anything's possible.

Polish Staff Entertains At Musicale

Diplomats and socialites gathered last evening at the Polish Embassy for a musicale and buffet supper. Lois Jordan, soprano, appeared instead of Stephen Hero, violinist, who was ill. The singer offered a program of songs written by Polish composers.

Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were placed around the drawing rooms, where several hundred guests were seated during the concert. The Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz received their guests at 8:30 o'clock, and after the concert led the way into the ballroom where a long buffet table offered a delicious repast. Another buffet was set up in the dining room. Both tables were centered with yellow flowers and candles.

The Ambassador of the Soviet Union, Alexander S. Panyushkin, was among the guests, as well as the Ambassador of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Outrata. Also, the Minister of Hungary and Mrs. Sik, the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jutila, the Charge d'Affaires of Romania and Mme. Preoteasa and the Charge d'Affairs of Bulgaria and Mme. Athanassov.

Others included the Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin, the Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Thomen, the Ambassador of Guatemala and Senora de Gonzales-Arevalo, the Ambassador of Pakistan, M. A. H. Ispahani; the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann, the Minister of India and Mme. Nehru, the Special Representative of the State of Israel and Mrs. Epstein, the French Minister and Mme. Berard, Associate Justice and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson and Mrs. Stanley Woodward.

Open House At Orphanage To Cite Needs

A tea and open house for members of the board of trustees, members and the ladies board, and friends of the Church Orphanage Association of St. John's Parish will be held this afternoon from 4 to 6 p. m.

The purpose of the tea and open house at the orphanage at 1922 F st. nw., will be to acquaint those present with the needs of the orphanage for the coming year, according to Mrs. William L. Breese, jr., president of the ladies' board.

The orphanage was created in 1881 to provide a home for orphans and needy children of broken families. Today, 18 girls and 12 boys, ranging in ages from 6 to 15, are in residence.

During the past year the playroom was redecorated by volunteer students from George Washington University. A handicraft room was opened October 12 and handicraft instruction in leather, wood, shell and ceramics is taught two evenings each week. The girls between the ages of 11 and 15 prepare their own meal one evening each week.

THE graceful way to pick up something from the floor was explained by Ida Jean Kain (right), Washington Post columnist, during a talk on "Beauty of Movement" before freshmen women at George Washington University Wednesday. Dee De Paoli, junior student from Brooklyn, N. Y., demonstrates how to keep your back straight and bend your knees when you're stooping down. "It's prettier than bending from the waist, it's more efficient and it helps you keep young," says Miss Kain

Short Girls Must Battle to Keep From Being Buxom

By Ida Jean Kain

The short, stocky gals, just a whiff over 5 feet and just a mite over 130 pounds, have to put up stout resistance against a widening waist and sugar-coated calories. Many complain they have only to glance at a cream puff to gain.

If you have a stocky build, curves are becoming, so don't try to be slim. Normal weight for you is above the average for your height. Allow 110 pounds for 5 feet and 5 pounds for each extra inch—or the proportionate fraction for a fraction of an inch.

The Right Pattern

For pleasing example, the short stocky girl of 5'1" should not weigh less than 115 pounds. But anything over 126 pounds for 5'1" is bordering on buxom.

The problem is to keep from getting plumper with passing years, for there is no getting around it, you do put on weight readily. The right pattern of eating can help to keep the curves beautifully controlled.

Keep the daily menus quite high in protein to step up the calorie burning. Have an egg every day, sometimes two, and have a generous serving of lean meat or fish, plus cheese and buttermilk or skim milk. When dining out, order oysters or shrimps for the first course.

At home, in preparing the meat get the broiler habit. The fat can even be trimmed away from the meat before it is broiled to prevent any infiltration into the lean. But with some meats, such as ground round steak or cube steak or liver, there isn't any fat. There are many varieties of low calorie fish—bass, blue fish, cod, flounder, haddock and trout—and all are good sources of protein.

Have lots of vegetables in the daily menus, and have them cooked quickly in a small amount of water so that they retain their natural flavor and taste good without butter or sauce. Of course, take only one starchy vegetable with a meal.

No Rich Dressing

When a bit of mayonnaise is used, thin it with skim milk rather than cream. Or better still, use boiled salad dressing, made with skim milk. In making French dressing, use more vinegar or lemon juice than oil and add a little brown sugar to take off the sharp edge.

For dessert, the best bet is fresh fruit. If you have a rich dessert only once a week, you can eat it and enjoy it without being calorie conscious.

Hints to the Homemaker . . .

Pin dresses to the washline by seams or waistbands unless they are dried on hangers.

Shirts should be fastened to the clothesline by the tail, since wear at this point will show up least.

Try keeping the clothes line and clothes pins in a heavy paper shopping bag. When hanging out the clothes, the bag can be slung over the arm and the clothes pins are right at hand, and it is just as convenient when taking the clothes from the line.

How long has it been since you have had the scissors sharpened?

Also, how long has it been since you have had father's carving knife sharpened?

Sonny's new blouses will take the starch better if dried first, then dipped in the boiled starch and dried again.

Now What Does She Do?

Barkley's Daughter Will Be His Hostess

By Marie McNair

NOW that Mrs. Max Truitt is to be official hostess for her father, Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley, she has yet to learn what the job will entail.

Senator Barkley returned from a presidential rendezvous in Key West only long enough to pack a fresh bag, then was off yesterday to his old Kentucky home in Paducah.

A widower and long a Senator from the Blue Grass State, Mr. Barkley could have taken his choice from a dozen or more applicants who wrote that they'd like the job. Two letters that came to Key West caused the prospective V. P. to remark: "I didn't know whether they wanted to marry me or hire out to me."

Mrs. Truitt, the former Marion Frances Barkley, is the mother of four growing sons—the eldest, 17, named for his father, the second for his distinguished grandfather. Then there are Thomas Helen Truitt, aged 13, and 9-year-old Stephen McKenzie Truitt.

The Truitt's house of Wyoming ave., is big and pleasantly comfortable, but as far as Mrs. Truitt knows her father will keep his apartment at 2101 Connecticut ave.

The Vice President-elect's son, David, lives in Paducah; another daughter is Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, whose husband, a nephew of the general, is First Secretary at our Embassy in Brussels. The MacArthur's one daughter, Laura, better known as Mimi; David's small Alben III and Dorothy Anne, swell the total of the Senator's grandchildren to seven.

A REELECTED Republican of Michigan Roy O. Woodruff, can nevertheless be added to the list of disappointed Congressmen. The Woodruffs will come back, as Mr. Woodruff weathered his sixteenth campaign with a 21,000 majority in a Democratic landslide. But Tom Dewey was a boy from Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff's home town, sang in the same church, some years later, of course—where Mrs. Woodruff was soprano solist.

The Woodruffs renewed friendships with the Republican candidate in Owosso last month when the town gave a welcome-home party for the Governor.

After a busy campaign summer Michigan's Representative and his wife returned to Washington, will be off in a day or two for a month's vacation in Venice—Florida.

Mutation Mink Stoles Steal Fox's Fashion

By Sonia Stein

The mink has pushed the silver fox right out of the fashion picture. For this year's fashion darling, the stole, flat furs are prettiest. The markings on silver-blue and pale brown mutation minks show up most elegantly in the wide sweep of a cape merging into a stole in front.

The way in which the skins are combined for soft fullness, to show off the markings, takes the eye in any fur show, but little tricks seem important too. One mink-dyed squirrel cape-stole combination, shown yesterday at the opening of a Connecticut ave. fur shop, has a double purpose stole. The ends can be hooked back into cuffs which in turn can be held together as a muff.

One broadtail coat shown at Fuchs Furs, during its continuous fashion show on opening day, is tightly fitted with a Spanish toreador cape used instead of sleeves. The cape arrangement, edged in sable, is flung across one shoulder. It takes dash as well as cash to wear this coat.

A Christian Dior gray broadtail jacket billows away from the wearer as if a high wind had got inside, but it's buckram stiffening that does it.

New York Stylist Ruth Ruddy, John Tangorra and Balence designed many of the fur creations shown yesterday.

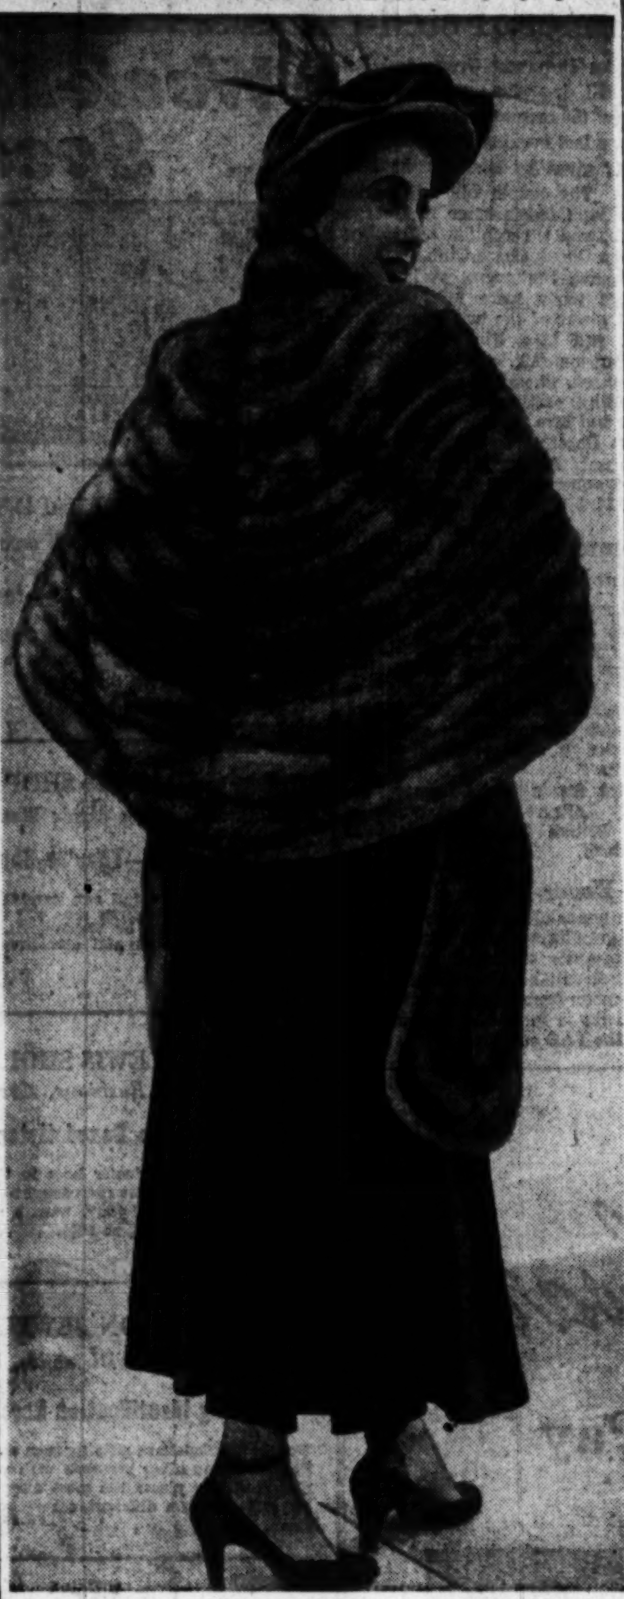
The Newest in Furs . . .



THE newest color in mutation mink—royal pastel breath of spring—is used in this cape and stole combination designed by Ruth Ruddy. The green felt hat with rust velvet trim topped with green and yellow birds is by Mme. Chautemps. This and other fur creations were modeled yesterday at the opening of the Fuchs Fur Shop. Hats by Mme. Chautemps and Elies, and gowns by Louise Armour and Yvette were also modeled at the all-day showing

THIS handsome modern cabinet of prima vera wood and the coffee table in the foreground are the work of furniture designer George Nelson. Sliding glass doors, a cupboard, and drawers with silver-plated metal pulls are among the features of the cabinet, while the coffee table has a recessed copper receptacle for plants at one end

The work of Nelson, as well as of other outstanding contemporary designers, is on display in the new showrooms opened this week by Richmond Bradshaw, Washington architect, at 1625 Connecticut ave. nw. A series of model interiors are seen in these showrooms, one of particular interest to Washington apartment-dwellers being a bed-sitting room designed by Mr. Bradshaw. It shows how contemporary furniture can be used to make a very smart and "elastic" small apartment. Interesting use of modern lighting fixtures and such accessory articles as Limoges porcelain dinnerware, graceful urns, sculpture and paintings is also seen in the model rooms

Ask Anne

About Cake for 1-Year Old

Can you suggest a birthday "cake" that a 1-year-old could eat? My daughter's first birthday comes next month and, as yet, she's had no sweets of any kind. A. McM.

A sponge or angel food cake served with very light frosting or none could be eaten by a normal year-old child. Also, most year olds can eat a plain white cake which is not too rich. An icing which is very light, pretty and suitable for a year old is made by whipping any tart red jelly into egg white. Whip the egg white first and then add the jelly, a spoonful at a time until the color and flavor you wish is achieved. Put this icing on the cake just before serving, as it tends to soak the cake somewhat.

Thank you so much for answering my questions about preserving a wedding gown. You say to wrap it in blue or black paper. I have asked at 5 and 10 cent stores, drug and department stores and I cannot find any. Can you tell me where I can purchase it? Also, I wonder if it should be the dark blue or black. Could that be put right next to the satin without the color coming off on the material? L. M. S.

There is a paper supply house on Pennsylvania ave. which sells a dark blue tissue made especially for storing white fabrics. It can be used next to the fabric. The firm can be reached by calling National 2945.

Can you really tell me of anything to do for a black suede handbag which rubs off badly? E. H.

I know of no home method for correcting this problem. However, some leather repair stores have a method which will do much to correct it. One such store can be reached by calling Executive 0961.

My turkish towels and wash clothes are very stiff and rough and the stain in the center of them seems impossible to remove. Some are colored. Have you any suggestions? S. M.

About the only way to remove completely the discoloration from towels and wash cloths is to use household bleach. When you start your wash, place the discolored towels to soak in warm water to which has been added a cup of bleach for each gallon of water. Let them soak in this for 30 minutes, then lift them directly from the bleach solution into the machine. The discoloration may not all be removed by the first treatment. If not, repeat until they are clear and bright. This concentration of bleach should not noticeably affect the color of the towels, but even if it should lighten them somewhat, my vote has always been for a paler towel, if need be, but at any rate one which is not dingy.

As for the coarseness and stiffness, when you wring them get out as much moisture as possible and then just before hanging, give them several brisk shakes to fluff them.

higher class, and I am afraid that they too will criticize me and I just cannot face it. Please, please help me before I go out of my mind.
V. D.

Bride Is Superior to Her Sly Critics

DEAR V. D.: The distinguishing mark of the truly aristocratic mind is the ability to recognize fine quality at a glance; and on the score of fine sensibilities, you are at least Don's equal and probably his better, as he doubtless realizes with grateful appreciation.

Your naivete, sensitivity and humility are all part of your distinctive charm for him, I am sure; and these are typical by-products of a sheltered rearing whether at the top or the bottom of the economic ladder.

So get this through your head: it isn't your lack of so-called higher education, but rather these rare lovely qualities of being, that vitally differentiate you from the sort of girl who entered the lounge to make cruel remarks about your personality and way of speaking.

Girl Was Sucker for Put-Up Job

I HAVE a hunch the principal speaker knew you were there, when blandly using her tongue as a sword; and very likely she or the other was a defeated contender for Don's heart. I think the incident was a put-up job on somebody's part to try to get your goat, if possible, and start chain reactions that would blight your joy with him and his pride in you—as has happened to some extent; but don't let it go any further.

There is no justification for feeling that you've married above yourself. Rather, get wise to the fact that Don, in presenting you to girls of his "class" who knife a newcomer as these girls did, is really casting a pearl before swine; so of course they'll turn and rend you, if they can; that is, figuratively bare your bosom to the attack.

As Don's beloved wife, you've a new job to tackle, a new field to conquer, and you can come out on top in his social circle, just as you did in the office, if you proceed as before—with patience, intelligence and willingness to learn—to become full mistress of the situation. Instead of brooding, snap into action. Take dancing lessons, voice lessons, singing lessons, a course in modeling—for posture and swank—and read, read, read—the better literature—as time permits, to enrich your mind and improve your vocabulary, with the ready help of a good dictionary.

Territories Included

THE Territories weren't overlooked in making up the new cookbook. Hawaiian recipes of Mrs. Joseph Farrington add piquancy to the epicurean possibilities of the volume. One of those from the wife of the Hawaiian Delegate combines bananas and coconut, as follows:

BANANA PUDDING

Grate a coconut. Pour over the grated meat one cupful sweet milk. Bring mixture to a boil very slowly. Drain carefully, squeezing the meat in a piece of cheesecloth until all cream is extracted and the meat is dry. Then mix the cream with a little arrowroot or pia and pour this over six chopped bananas. Bake in casserole for about 20 minutes. The pudding may be served hot or cold.

From the foreign recipe section of the book come the following, only two of the many provided by the wives of Ambassadors in Washington:

DEEP FRIED BALTIC HERRINGS (SMELTS)

By Madame Erickson, wife of the Swedish Ambassador

Clean, tail and behead fish. Remove inside, rinse and dry well on a towel. Sprinkle with salt. Make a batter of two cups whipped cream mixed well with one cup wheat flour. Add one small wine glass of beer and two whipped egg whites. Leave fish in batter for one half hour. Boil in hot oil or drippings, take out with fork and drain fat well. Serve with sauce piquante or tartar sauce.

STUFFED EGGPLANTS EPICUREAN

By Mrs. Alberto Tarchiana, wife of the Italian Ambassador

2 medium-sized eggplants
4 tablespoons imported olive oil
Small clove garlic, chopped
4 tablespoons imported grated cheese
4 eggs
1 cup plum tomatoes
2/3 cub bread crumbs
Sprig parsley, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste

Peel eggplants, then cut into halves lengthwise. Scoop out centers, leaving a shell about ½ inch thick. Wash and allow to stand for 10 minutes in salted water. Take the scooped centers and chop fine. Soak in salted water for five minutes. Squeese out water, then saute in about two tablespoons olive oil. To this add a dash of pepper and the garlic. After cooking about 10 minutes, cool and add the other ingredients—eggs, grated cheese, one tablespoon tomatoes, bread crumbs, parsley, salt, and pepper. Mix thoroughly and stuff this mixture into shells. Arrange stuffed eggplants in buttered baking dish or casserole, pour over them the remaining olive oil (about ½ tablespoon) over each half eggplant. Pour the rest of the tomatoes into the baking dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ hours. This recipe serves four.

You'll find several of the favorite recipes of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann of Kansas—the famous Dolly Gann who served as hostess for her brother, Vice President Charles Curtis, during the Hoover Administration. Here is one for an easy-to-make dessert, lemon pudding.

LEMON PUDDING

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon grated rind
⅛ tablespoon salt
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites

Blend sugar, flour, lemon juice and rind, and salt, yolks and milk. Beat well. Fold in egg whites, beaten. Pour into glass baking dish. Set in pan of hot water. Bake one hour at 300 degree temperature. Serve plain or with whipped cream. This recipe serves four.

Among the Supreme Court wives represented in the book is Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of Associate Justice Burton. Her contribution is a recipe for a big angel food cake that will serve 16.

ANGEL FOOD CAKE

8 egg whites
1 teaspoon cream of tartar (rounding)
1 cup sugar
¾ cup flour, sifted four times
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon vanilla

Whip the egg whites in a large platter with a wire whisk until frothy. Add cream of tartar. Continue whisking until whites stand in peaks. Add sugar gradually, still whisking. Fold in flour and salt in three portions. Fold in vanilla. Add 2 or 3 drops of vegetable coloring if desired.

Pour into ungreased angel food mold and place in a cold oven. Bake 50 to 60 minutes in oven 250 to 300 degrees. Remove from oven when lightly and evenly browned. Invert in mold until cool.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

"Foolish" Fears Must Be Considered

My mother still enjoys telling of the time that my brother and I, left in the bathtub, began to scream with fear. In playing around we had pulled the stopper and when she rushed back into the bathroom, we were huddled together as far away from the drain as possible. We were afraid we would run out with the water. Moving shadows at night on the curtains of a child's room also may be fearful things.

One could list all sorts of such "foolish" fears. But are they foolish?

We must remember that youngsters have had limited experience. A few months after our adventure, my brother and I would have known that there was no danger of running down the drain. The child frightened by moving shadow will learn that they are caused by the well-beloved tree just outside his window. But until there is understanding, fears are not foolish and we adults must keep that fact in mind.

Our job is to help the child understand, not to scold him, make fun of his fears or otherwise make the situation worse.

On the Town

THE SHOREHAM show this week is halfway a holdover. The Costello twins are the same blonde lovelies who make with the musical comedyish dance routines. They're very cute and can contort themselves into almost any human position, all in rhythm.

Bob Bromley is the new addition to the show and comes in with a bunch of novel looking puppets that received a generous share of the laughs in the Blue Room. Bob handles the puppets well enough to make them tap dance in time with the music even when the recording machine with tap steps isn't playing. He started with puppets in rather an odd manner. Some time back he worked for M.G.M., making midget sized dummies of movie stars so that they could be used for crash scenes without endangering the stars' lives. (We've decided not to say that some of their lives should be endangered for making some of the pictures they do, so we won't.) After spending some time making dummies of different stars, he decided that he could do the same thing on the borscht circuit for a lot more money. Since then he's played many a spot in this country and has just finished a year in London's Palladium.

Rosiland Courtwright will be coming back to the Mayflower Lounge this coming Monday. Now there's a gal you don't want to miss. She was here last year and wowed the crowds in the lounge with satires on their own set.

The Club Cairo held over most of its whiz bang show for another week. Larry Kent, the comic; Bobby Brandt, the new dancing find who's really a find; June Brady, the singer, and Vaughn and Whitney, the ballroom team.

The Annapolis Anchor Room has opened the fall season with the "Electrotones," a husband and wife team who play the novachord and organ. This is their first time East as a team. Some years back six or seven to be exact) Helen played Washington as a solo act. She then went West and met Dave. They just breezed in from an engagement in Chicago.

Quip of the week from Barnee Breeskin at the Shoreham: Asked if he were close to a certain columnist in town, he said, "Close to him? Why I got his apartment for him! How much closer can you get to a guy?" You're so right, Barnee.

TOMORROW night marks the first official dance for Name Bands. The dance will be held in the National Guard Armory with all the music being featured by Vaughn Monroe and his orchestra. Vaughn will have a busy evening, what with doing his regular radio broadcast from the Navy base in Annapolis and then herding the band together for a whirlwind ride up here to make the dance in time. Vaughn was here last New Year's Eve and played to a sell-out house. With the right sort of weather they should do the same thing tomorrow night. If all goes well with plans there'll be a beauty contest to pick "Miss Nation's Capital Glamour Girl." If the titles get any longer they'll be outdistancing the long, slinky legs on the girls. Anyway, she's due for a free trip to Atlantic City as guest of the Brighton Hotel. She'll also win a traveling suit 'n such stuff.

Normandy Farm and Water Gate Inn have been famous for their hot popovers for some time now but we wonder if anyone is ever curious about their reason for serving them. Interested or no, you're about to find out. Some time back Marjory Hendricks, who owns both spots, employed a French chef and specialized in the French dishes he prepared so well. Along with all the usual delicacies, the chef used to make brioche, a French roll that takes almost a full day to prepare but is worth it. One day the farm had an unexpected rush of business on a slow day and friend chef hadn't prepared enough brioche dough. The chef ran to Miss Hendricks wringing his hands in the approved culinary manner.

Now Miss Hendricks has more recipes up her sleeve than Duncan Hines has ever tasted. She told the cook she'd whip up a batch of hot popover, a Pennsylvania Dutch dish that looks almost like brioche, in no time or less. She did and the public was satisfied. In fact so satisfied that shortly after that they began asking for the popover instead of the chef's beloved brioche. The chef considered this a blow to his pride and quit. That litte event might almost be given credit for starting the swing from French to Pennsylvania type cooking at the farm.

Speaking of the past, Murray Lane, the organist at the Sheraton, used to play the organ in the old nickel silent theaters when you did everything but throw pop bottles at the villain. While working in one theater Murray played on a platform that rose from the orchestra pit to stage level. One day he flipped the go button and started playing. He became so interested in either the picture or the playing that he forgot to stop the platform until it jammed many feet in the air. After finishing the number, he had to climb down from the platform on a ladder.

Young Studies Plan to Expand Water System

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young yesterday received plans for a major expansion of the District's water supply system and began consideration of what steps should be taken to put it into effect.

The plans were drafted by David V. Auld, superintendent of the District water division, and E. A. Schmitt, chief of the local water supply division, Army Engineers, at the request of General Young.

He met with the officials yesterday and declared that although he has not yet ascertained the total cost of the plans, "a new method for financing such capital improvements must be found."

Boy Scouts to Aid Brightwood Drive

About 50 Boy Scouts from six troops in Northwest Washington will help to inaugurate the Brightwood Citizens Associations' "cleanup" program Saturday by distributing literature to every house in a 60-block area.

Karl K. Gower, chairman of the organization's streets and highways committee, yesterday announced adoption of the slogan "Keep Washington Clean." At the same time he urged residents of the area to cooperate by "cleaning their yards and the adjoining streets and alleys of leaves, weeds, paper and other debris."

Without the "personal effort of every citizen," he pointed out, the program's goal—"permanent attractive properties"—cannot be attained.

He asked residents to see that:

1. Weeds over 4 inches high are cut or pulled up and the soil shaken from the roots.

2. Ash, refuse and garbage containers are kept covered and left on private property near alley entrance.

3. Leaves are gathered together in suitable containers for trash collections rather than swept into the streets.

4. The rear of their premises is numbered in numerals at least 3 inches high.

The "cleanup" literature will be accompanied by a home inspection blank aimed at freedom from fire hazards. It contains a "pledge" of cooperation through elimination of hazards uncovered.

The area to be covered is bounded by 7th, 13th, Hamilton and Underwood sts. nw.

Security

Blair House Checked by Secret Service

With a minimum of furore, the Secret Service is insuring "security" for President Truman when he moves into the temporary White House—the Blair and Blair-Lee Houses.

Already, according to James J. Maloney, Secret Service chief, a "security investigation" is under way for people who live or work in the Blair-Blair-Lee House block.

Maloney said the investigation is "simply a matter of routine," but it involves looking into the backgrounds of each of the block's residents and workers.

For "security" reasons, a tree on property owned by the Carnegie Foundation was removed yesterday. The tree stood at the rear of an alley between the Blair House and the Carnegie property.

A canopy also is being erected from the door of the temporary White House to the street to afford the President and his visitors protection against the weather.

Conduits carrying extra telephone lines into the Blair-Blair-Lee House have been installed

Archbishop O'Boyle Given Post on Board

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, yesterday was named a member of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

The archbishop was named to a one-year term on the board at a meeting of the hierarchy of the Catholic Church at Catholic University.

The board of NCWC will meet today to name a chairman and organize for the coming year.

Members of the board are the four American cardinals: Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia; Edward Cardinal Money, Archbishop of Detroit; Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Archbishop of Chicago, and Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York.

In addition to Archbishop O'Boyle, who succeeds Bishop Karl Alter of Toledo, the following archbishops are members of the board: Francis P. Keough of Baltimore, John T. McNicholas, O. P., Cincinnati; Robert E. Lucey, San Antonio; Richard J. Cushing, Boston, and Joseph E. Ritter, St. Louis.

Also the following bishops: John Mark Gannon, Erie; John F. Noll, Fort Wayne; Emmet M. Walsh, Charleston, and Michael J. Ready of Columbus.

McGrath Thanks Virginia Backers Of Straight Ticket

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Martin A. Hutchinson disclosed today Democratic National Committee Chairman Howard McGrath had expressed the party's appreciation to leaders of the straight ticket forces in the presidential election in Virginia.

The Richmond attorney, campaign director of the Truman-Barkley headquarters here, said the two letters were "somewhat of a personal nature" and he did not feel free to make them public.

There have been reports here that McGrath also sent letters of thanks to Democratic Chairman G. Alvin Massenburg and Party Secretary Jesse W. Dillon, who operated the presidentially neutral central committee headquarters.

Truman Will Ask Postage Increase To Cut Deficit

President Truman will renew with vigor next year his plea for higher postal rates to help balance the budget, those in the know said today.

The Postoffice Department now seems likely to wind up 500 million dollars in the red next June 30—an unprecedented loss which would account for more than a third of the deficit forecast for the entire Government's operation this fiscal year.

Officials told a reporter privately the increases most certain to be proposed will involve second class mail—made up chiefly of newspapers and magazines.

Maryland Held Free to Enact Absent Voter Law

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond advised the Legislative Council today that a "valid absentee voting law" could be enacted in Maryland without violation of the State constitution.

Nevertheless, he recommended that a constitutional amendment authorizing such an act be proposed along with the absentee measure.

The council is studying a bill granting absentee voting privileges for others than those in military service.

Italian Art Works Returned From German

One on the Aisle—

Marlene on War, And on Being 80

By Richard L. Coe

NOW WHAT WOULD you do if Marlene Dietrich would see you for a chat at the very hour you should be covering a movie for an early deadline?

Right.

Marlene close up is just as wonderful as she seems from afar, an immensely intelligent and beautiful lady. Quite apart from her assets as an entertainer, I admire her because for more than three years during the war she stayed overseas, much of the time not benefiting from the wads of publicity short-term USOers netted. Marlene is not a commodity, a term which covers too many of the bright lights who went overseas—briefly—"for the boys." Marlene is a person.

In the course of an hour, Marlene touched on many things which didn't get into the interesting column our resourceful Mrs. Thayer wrote about the lady.

About movies: "The remarkable thing about Hollywood and its complicated setup is that good movies are produced. The main trouble in picture-making is that the director relies so much on the complexities of technical detail. If a scene is perfect except for the fact that the sound man missed one word, it has to be reshot to satisfy the head of the sound department. And so on through all the departments. What matter if one word is missed? One misses a word or two frequently even in conversations like this."

About producers: "They're new in the movie setup. When I first went to Hollywood, the director did it all, but, as I say, it's become so departmentalized the producer system has grown up. It would require a complete revolution in movie-making to change the present Hollywood system."

"When I'm 80"

About her future as an actress: "No, I don't think I'll be acting when I'm 80. After all, I really haven't got the inner fire. I like acting, but I like doing lots of things. Produce or direct? No, nothing so grand as all that. I'd be a cameraman if I knew enough about it. Oh, yes, there are any number of things I'd like to do and they're not limited to acting."

About audiences: "They're usually underestimated. Individually some people may be saps, but en masse they're marvelously alert. Give them something good and they'll choose it every time.

About Americans: "When you choose your own country, as I have done in becoming an American, you know your countrymen much better than you do simply by lucky circumstances of birth. That's why I don't think war is likely. I just don't think the people want another war and I don't think dramatic talk about it is a good idea."

About drinking Scotch at high noon: "I never used to touch a drink before the war, but when I went overseas we used to drink in the morning to get warm. And what awful stuff; you could nurse your cigarette lighter along on it. I do drink now, but I don't think it's hurt me." (Check!).

No Tryout for Movies

About the stage: "How lucky the theater is in being able to polish and rewrite plays at a tryout stage. In the movies this tryout business before an audience is missed. Once a picture is finished, it's finished, and for the next several years it's shown throughout the world, although its creators may be dissatisfied with the finished product. There is nothing they can do about it. Schedules must be met."

About movie scripts: "'A Foreign Affair,'" produced, written and directed by Billy Wilder, is one of the few movies I've ever made for which we had the completed script before we started shooting. The result shows that that's the sensible way to make movies."

On her immediate future: "Terry Rattigan (he wrote "The Winslow Boy") is working on a script that sounds promising. I hope that will be my next; we'd film it in England."

About censoring foreign films: "I took some friends to see "The Room Upstairs,' which I made in France with Jean Gabin, and I had trouble figuring out what it was all about. Scenes had been cut here and there which had certainly been in the original version, but their absence made the film a hodgepodge in New York. The odd thing about all this censoring business is that the strangest things are permitted; one can never tell what the State boards will delete."

A Boo for Petrillo

About recordings: "I'd give anything to make more records, but the Petrillo (pronounced in the Italian style) ban still stops us. You know, I'll never forgive that man for his recording ban during the war. It made so many soldiers overseas turn to the Berlin radio. While they were too sensible to be swayed by the 'go-home-the-4-f-boys-are-taking-your-girls' cries of that Boston woman over the Berlin radio, they couldn't help being affected by it. Petrillo was criminally wrong there, and I'll never forget it."

On her willingness to smoke an interviewer's brand of cigarettes: "Remember the horrible kinds we used to get on our ration—and sometimes only two a day? No, the luxury of any cigarette and lots of them is still marvelous."

On a return trip to Washington: "I've told Mme. Bonnet that I'd love to come down and be saleslady again next year for the American Aid to France bazaar. And I'll make another promise. When you get a splendid picture starring Gerard Philippe, "Le Diable au Corps," I'll fly down to see it with you. That's a picture you shouldn't pass up for a talk with anyone. And I'm sorry you missed Dickie Haydn's first job as a director, 'Miss Tatlock's Millions.' It's lots of fun."

Which must temporarily stand as the review which was to occupy this space; the Warner couldn't ask for a better recommendation.

TONIGHT: Jacques Cartier presents his one-man "Theater Cavalcade" in the Mayflower's Sapphire Room at 8:15; tickets at the door . . . "Gay Time," that hillbilly show, goes on in Turner's Arena at 8.

SHE THINKS HE'S HER BROTHER, which is what causes some of the merry mixups when John Lund and Wanda Hendrix meet in "Miss Tatlock's Millions," the new comedy at the Warner. Directed by Richard Haydn, known for his comic screen roles, the cast further includes Barry Fitzgerald and Monty Woolley

'No Minor Vices' Is a Cute, In Fact Maybe Too Cute, Film

By Orval Hopkins

CUTE, I think, is the word for "No Minor Vices," though there are some others here if anybody wants to drop in and look at them. "No Minor Vices" is the movie at the Capitol Theater this week. It's about a young child psychiatrist (Dana Andrews), his lovely wife (Lilli Palmer) and a by no means witless artist (Louis Jourdan) who pops into their life. The artist wants to paint the wife, the doctor is understandably against such a prospect and thereby is supposed to hang a tale. But nothing much happens and it all turns out just as you knew, or maybe feared, it would all along.

The film is talky and unimaginative, it makes use of shopworn situations that I had thought long since discarded (like the lobster in the bathtub), it misses completely in the employment of what should have been its one effective device, and it is not helped much by its performers, Miss Palmer excepted.

This was my first experience with Miss Palmer, and I found her charm and intelligence most compelling. She had not much to do and even less to say, but she handled both assignments very gracefully. She may call again at any time, for my money. Andrews, never the carefree type and usually only happy with something grim confronting him, walks resolutely through this, leaving on all sides the telltale print of his heavy hand. Louis Jourdan, come to think of it, did what he could, but suffered, I thought, from story and direction trouble.

The device I referred to is that of having the actors' voices project their thoughts while the performers on the screen simply stand around and look smart, perturbed, or whatever. It's a nice trick and can be very effective. It's another example of the immense range and flexibility of the movies. The effect is lost in this film because the speeches are shabbily written and the actors have been instructed to be too coy about it all. This holds even for Miss Palmer, but she is such a lovely creature that you can almost overlook it.

Paul Regan headlines the stage bill and he had a good-size crowd giggling foolishly at the show I saw. Also up there are Susan Miller, who sings, Berk & Hallow, who dance, and Yvonne, Clavelia and Farrar. The last named presents a man dancing with two women, and it's a good trick no matter how you look at it. There's a March of Time about air power, too. It takes you right back to 1941.

"NO MINOR VICES." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release of Enterprise pictures produced and directed by Lewis Milestone. Screen play by Arnold Manoff. Music by Franz Waxman. Photographed by George Barnes. At the Capitol.

Photographer's Window Gets New Look

Mrs. Morris Benson of 5020 2d st. nw. is the observing type.

Several months ago she noted that a photographer opened a shop in the financial district. In his window were pictures of many male notables, and a sign which read:

Frank Turgeon
Photographer of Men

The other day, Mrs. Benson noticed that a lovely picture of the Duchess of Windsor had been added to the window, and the sign now read:

Frank Turgeon

GIVE-AWAYS

"Good watch dog, 1½ years old, male; outdoors type." (Warfield 6181).

"Three cute, playful kittens, 2 months old." (Shepherd 3106).

"Clean Maltese cat and her four 6-week-old kittens; housebroken." (North 9845).

"We have three little kittens, about 6 weeks old. For each one for which you find a home, we'll add another dollar to the Dorothy Kilmer Fund." (Taylor 5117, evenings).

"Two 5-month-old kittens, formerly named Dewey and Wallace, now called Buttons and Fatso; they'll eat anything." (Decatur 1394 after 6 p. m.).

MISCELLANY

Dr. Wayne McFarland, the physician who is treating Dorothy Kilmer, has consented to serve as administrator of the Dorothy Kilmer Fund which District Liners are raising . . . Those quarters we've been paying to visit the Lustron model house on Riverside dr. (between The Stables and Water Gate Inn) accumulated to the tune of $250 during the first two weeks the fund was beneficiary, and will continue to accrue to Dorothy from now on . . . Charley Feller wonders (and so do I) why it is that when a crowded streetcar approaches the transfer point at the end of its run, people who had been seated try to push their way out before the standees can debark . . . The new St. James Catholic School (W. Broad and Spring sts., Falls Church, Va.) is holding a Thanksgiving festival and bazaar today and tomorrow . . . And James M. Pickens of 417 Dorset ave., Chevy Chase, Md., tells me not to forget the Bethesda Christian Church's bazaar at the Malcolm Scates store, 7242 Wisconsin ave., today (10 a. m. to 9 p. m.) and tomorrow (10 a. m. to 6 p. m.), but Jim cautions: "Don't mention my name because I'm not helping much, but if you've gotta use a name—my wife is in this thing up to her ears" . . . Ah, James, how well I know what you mean . . . Add incidental intelligence: Sherry Robertson, the ball player, was once a Secret Service operative . . . What a transformation! He used to be a law-enforcement officer; now they're teaching him to steal—every time he gets on base.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

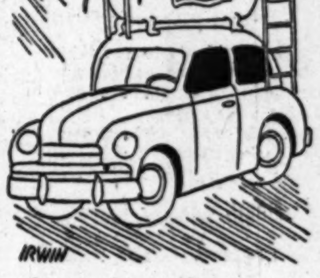
Betty Hendricks of 5709 43d ave., Hyattsville, Md., finds that magazines (like newspapers) can pull some dandy boners.

In the November House and Garden Betty discovers an ad for "toast" glasses which are priced at "$5 for a set of four —$3.25 a dozen."

Mrs. Salvatore Panarello of 165 Wesmond dr., Alexandria, Va., thinks that the poor fellow described by the New York Mirror needs a good lawyer, because the Mirror said:

"He was treated for lacerations of the writs."

J. P. Jones of 7 Magnolia pkwy., Chevy Chase, Md.; Nancy Greene of 1600 16th st. nw., and the Ed Fisher clan of 4713 S. 29th st., Arlington, Va., join forces to pluck this priceless gem from the classified columns of one of our afternoon contemporaries. It offers:



OLDS 1948 2-dr. hydramatic sed., r. & h., every extra, less than 900 miles . . . bath, 2d floor, pvt. entrance."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Here's my dollar for the Dorothy Kilmer Fund. I was jogged out of my inattention by Miss Dunman's letter.

I'm enclosing also my entry in your paper's football contest, and hope you'll turn it over to the contest editor.

Somehow it seems appropriate to send off the dollar in the same mail in which I post my football picks.

On the gridiron, we admire good sportsmanship and a stout fighting spirit. And anybody who saw the picture of that big smile on Dorothy's face as she was being carried into court on a stretcher will know that she has a fighting heart.

I hope our dollars help her score many a point in her courageous struggle in the Game of Life; and I know that other football fans will also lend a hand—from one good sport to another.

Leonard J. McCarthy,
Falls Church, Va.

Dear Len:

Well put. If we can raise $10,000 for a course of physical rehabilitation, Dorothy will have a fighting chance to "walk" again—to get out of her wheelchair, and get around on her own power.

But so far we've barely passed 40 per cent of our goal, because less than 2000 District Liners bothered to take the few seconds required to make out an envelope, drop in a dollar, and mail it.

So thanks for the reminder, Len; if we're really good sports, we'll spare those few seconds right now—and lend a helping hand to a gal who can still smile when Life has her on the 1-yard line.

Bill.

Robert Morley, the star and co-author of "Edward, My Son," is an inveterate horse-player. "I really dislike acting," he explains, "and betting on horses helps get one through the matinees" . . . In the opening scene of the play Morley is shown as his own, balding self. In the final scenes, he wears a toupee of thick gray hair. When he was asked how it is that the character is bald as a poor young man but has thick gray hair when he's old and rich, Morley shrugged: "He's so successful, he found a way to grow hair" . . . If Morley should become ill, he'll stay home. "I don't believe in that 'Show Must Go On' business," he said. "Why must it go on? I once saw Joe Greenwald die on stage No play is worth it"

For every 60 Puerto Ricans Pan-American Airways brings into New York on its weekday runs, it takes 40 back on the weekends . . . Leslie Reade, the playwright who will adapt "The Winslow Boy" for the Theater Guild of the Air, became a writer as a result of the British case on which this play was based. Reade worked with A. Conan Doyle on the case, writing stories for the press. The campaign succeeded, and Reade gave up the law for a career as a writer . . . During the Sunday night telecast of "The Eyes Have It," Dale Carnegie, one of the four guest experts, asked another expert: What's the program conductor's tor's name? I've forgotten it."

Hoover Finds A Friend In Truman

By Drew Pearson

Regardless of the GOP defeat, it looks as if the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Government was going to win out in the end.

Pearson

Created by the "second worst Congress," and sponsored by Senator Taft's spokesman, Congressman Clarence Brown of Ohio, most Democrats figured the Hoover Commission's work would now be junked. But it won't, and there are two good reasons why.

One reason is Harry Truman. The other is Herbert Hoover.

These two gentlemen have become quite fond of each other. Despite the cracks he took at Hoover during the campaign (which came under the head of "campaign oratory"), Truman really likes Hoover. And the feeling is reciprocated.

Hoover had never set foot in the White House since the sad day he left it in 1933 until Truman invited him back after Roosevelt's death. The fact that Truman called the former President in for consultation automatically shielded him from the barbs and sting which the New Dealers had slung in his direction for 12 long years. No longer was Hoover their favorite punching bag.

Not only that but Truman had brought him before the public eye once again.

Truman, in turn, not only likes Hoover, but plans to use Hoover's name to wrest from Congress powers which they refused to give Franklin Roosevelt.

Truman not only wants to be a good President, but he is acutely sensitive to Dewey's charges that Washington needs a housecleaning. He has one in mind. But he has learned, far better than Dewey, that you can't clean house unless Congress gives you the power to houseclean.

FDR asked for housecleaning power, and Harry Truman, then only a junior Senator, vividly recalls how the Republican press smeared it as the "Dictatorship Bill" and how a Democratic Congress barely passed a bill giving him severely restricted powers.

So Truman wants to use Hoover's name to put through a new reorganization bill, and he wants Hoover's support in lining up conservative Republicans to back him.

Furthermore, Truman believes that Hoover, like the Supreme Court, has read the election returns, and will not recommend anything which he, Truman, can't go along with. Since Hoover was also once a President, conditioned by the White House background, they think somewhat alike on what is needed in the executive branch of the Government.

There are only two living men who have any idea of the cares and wear and loneliness of the Presidency. This bond makes the two men closer than party labels. That, perhaps, was one reason why Hoover stayed out of the recent campaign, even refused to let the Republicans get campaign ammunition from his commission files.

Furthermore, Hoover needs Truman even more than Truman needs him. This is Herbert Hoover's last public service. He has worked long, hard hours, and he wants this reorganization of Government to be a final monument to his career. That is why he is leaning heavily on Truman to rescue his last efforts from defeat. Unless Truman does so, and gives them a Democratic label in the new Democratic Congress, they will have no chance of passage and Hoover's last effort for his country, his one chance to stage a comeback, will have vanished.

Chiang Under Fire

Chiang Kai-shek's chances of receiving vast new appropriations from the incoming Democratic Congress appear pretty slim, if energetic Congressman Sol Bloom, new chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, has his way.

Quoth Sol privately to friends: "I'm not going to vote to give Chiang another gun or another dollar for war purposes until he cleans his own house. That Chinese government has corruption coming out its ears—and their so-called army is the worst offender.

"Furthermore," opined Bloom, "we ought to stop these phony American observers who go over to China for a month and then come back to tell us either what we already know about Chinese army graft, or only what Chiang wants us to know."

Bloom was referring to William C. Bullitt, who can claim the unique distinction of having deserted three American Presidents and who, having jumped on the Dewey bandwagon, ducked off to China before the Truman Administration could stop him. He was appointed by the Republicans—before the elections—as an "observer."
